MISSING NAVY FLIERS FOUND SAFE ON OCEAN

Lost Pilot Descends and Is Towed by Ship as Fuel Runs Low.

WIRELESS ABSENCE HALTS NEWS RECEIPT

First Intimation of Trio's Safety Is Sighting of Plane and Steamer.

SEARCHERS ARE HELD BY WORD OF RESCUE

Orders for 21 Aircraft to Take Off on Hunt Are Canceled at Once.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Lost in the clouds with his fuel supply running low, Ensign George P. Hatfield, pilot of the naval seaplane reported missing Saturday night on a flight from Philadelphia to Norfolk, landed his plane alongside the Commodore Rollins, Norwegian fruit steamer, 15 miles off the Virginia Capes Saturday night shortly after 7 o'clock.

Learning his position, Ensign Hatfield requested that he be towed inside the capes, and the little fruit steamer, bound from Philadelphia to British Honduras, took the seaplane in tow.

Fliers Stay on Plane.

Hatfield, with his two companions, Aviation Machinist's Mate J. F. Reeves and Radioman K. Hair, remained aboard their craft after it was taken in tow.

Since the rescue steamer had no wireless, news of the safety of the missing plane and its occupants was first received at the Hampton Roads Naval Air Station early this morning when five searching planes, which shoved off from the local air station at dawn, sighted the steamer with the missing plane.

News of the rescue was immediately radioed back to the local air station, automatically canceling flight orders of 21 more planes, which were to have joined in the search at 8 o'clock.

Tender Is Dispatched.

The aircraft tender Sandpiper was immediately dispatched to meet the rescue steamer and take the plane in tow. She returned to Hampton Roads shortly after 9 o'clock. The plane was found to be undamaged and the fliers none the worse from their experience than wet clothing and lack of sleep.

Ensign Hatfield said he became lost in the clouds soon after he left Philadelphia Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and, realizing that he was far off his course, headed eastward toward the sea so as to be sure of a landing place for his giant seaplane in the event of a forced landing on account of failure of the gasoline supply.

Execution of Deposed Afghan Ruler Confirmed

Delhi, India, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Dispatches received here today confirmed yesterday's report that Bacha Sakao, deposed usurper of the Afghan throne, and a number of his followers had been executed.

Nadir Khan, newly elected king, who had pardoned the prisoners, was described as having yielded to demands of Afghan tribesmen from the South and West, who insisted that the men pay the death penalty. Gaining custody of the men, the tribesmen led them to a spot inside the Shepur cantonment and shot them. The usurper's two brothers, Muhammad Sadiq and Saiyed Hussein, were named as among those shot.

Flapper Robber Given One Year to Life Term

Chicago, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Josephine Dobscher, 19, of the flapper type and good looking, was found guilty of robbery with a gun by a jury today and sentenced to the Pontiac, Ill., reformatory from one year to life.

The girl pleaded that she was forced into the holdup industry by a youth named William Levinson, who has not been caught. Herman Nortnick, a grocer, identified the girl as the one who held a gun at his head on September 9 while her partner robbed him of $34.

Georgetown Student Held as Car Kills Man

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Morris Gerber, 20 years old, of 1900 F street northwest, Washington, was the driver of an automobile which tonight struck and fatally injured Robert Storm, 60, of New York. Gerber, a student at Georgetown University, was on his way home after attending the New York University-Georgetown football game when the accident occurred at 152d street and Macomb place.

Gerber took Storm to Harlem Hospital, where the injured man died of a fractured skull soon after being admitted. Gerber was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Plans for Providing Redress for Victims In Traffic Discussed

Nine States Have Laws Requiring, in One Form or Another, That Autoists Provide Redress in Case of Traffic Mishaps.

(Editor's note—This is the second of a series of articles by William Ullman, automobile editor of The Post, dealing with the question of compensation for the victims of motor vehicle accidents. It is agreed on all sides that throughout the country this problem is crying for solution. In this series Mr. Ullman attempts to present the bitterly debated issue impartially to clarify it for the average man, who is bound to be directly affected by its ultimate disposition, whether he be car owner or pedestrian.)

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Of the three concrete proposals advanced for solving the pressing problem of how to compensate the victims of motor vehicle accidents or their dependents, the so-called safety-responsibility or financial responsibility law commends itself first for discussion. By virtue of its adoption in one form or another by nine States, it has received wider attention than any of the three proposed methods for solving the problem. Vigorously defended on one side, it is assailed with equal vigor on the other.

In its original form, legislation of this type was referred to as dealing with financial responsibility. "Safety-responsibility," by which it is now being designated in many quarters, is declared to be the product of an adroit propaganda designed to give it a catchy, popular appeal, while hiding many delinquencies.

Broadly, this is the principle involved in the safety-responsibility or financial responsibility statute:

That, once a motorist has had an accident or committed a breach of the traffic regulations which stamps him as a dangerous driver, he shall be compelled to guarantee his financial responsibility before being permitted to drive again. He may adopt one of three methods in providing this guarantee.

First, he may take out a liability insurance policy providing $5,000

UNRULY PRISONER FIGHTS POLICEMAN

DRUNK-DRIVING CHARGED

Hundreds of theatergoers early last night witnessed a desperate fight between Policeman G. O. Hite, of the Traffic Bureau, and Carlyle C. Lomax, 24 years old, of Fifteenth street near Swann street northwest, at the corner of Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest. The policeman won the battle by a vigorous use of his blackjack and Lomax was taken to Emergency Hospital to have numerous cuts on his head sewed up.

Lomax, the policeman charges, was the driver of an automobile that struck a machine driven by John Hanngean, of Baltimore, at Pennsylvania avenue and Madison place northwest. Hite was attracted by the sound of the collision and he left his post at Fifteenth street and New York avenue to investigate.

He declared he found Lomax intoxicated and attempted to place him under arrest. On the way to the patrol box, he claims, the man slugged him and threw him to the pavement. Lomax, a big fellow, was putting up a good fight, Hite claims, until he brought the weapon into play.

The fight attracted so large a throng that police headquarters was besieged with telephone calls. Inspector Albert J. Headley, now acting as night superintendent of the department, made an investigation, and gave his opinion that Hite was fully justified in his use of the blackjack.

Dr. John Marion Baber, attached to the staff of Emergency Hospital, took seven stitches in Lomax's head. After treatment he was lodged in a cell at the First Precinct on charges of driving while drunk and assaulting an officer.

Hite's uniform suffered severely in the melee. His trousers were badly torn, and his entire uniform was soaked from having wallowed in the street during the fight. He was ordered to appear before Inspector Headley to make a statement on the case.

Man Slain, Deputy Shot In Kentucky Rum Raid

CAPITAL MAN HURT IN STRANGE ATTACK

Harry E. Thompson Leaves Hospital Against Advice of Attendants.

BEATEN UP NEAR T. B.

Injuries of a serious nature received early yesterday morning near T. B., Md., by Harry E. Thompson, 38 years old, giving his address as 1518 W street southeast, who admitted laconically that he had been "beaten up," led to an announcement by J. Frank Parran, Prince Georges County State's attorney, that an investigation will be made in the case at once.

Thompson sought medical attention at Casualty Hospital at 3:40 o'clock yesterday morning for what attendants there characterized as a possible fracture of the skull and severe lacerations of the scalp.

Driving to the hospital in an automobile with a companion whose name he gave only as "Mr. Heflin," also of 1518 W street southeast, Thompson remained there until about 10 o'clock in the morning and walked out of the building against the admonition of attendants, who advised him that his injuries were sufficiently serious to warrant careful attention.

Thompson was "put on the spot," according to the brief story hospital attendants said he told them, while he and Heflin were riding together in a machine a short distance below T. B. shortly after midnight. Thompson was quoted as declaring that one or more men forced his car to stop and then beat him about the head. He refused to give any details or to say whether he knew his assailants.

Heflin, who exhibited no injuries of any nature, drove the car to the hospital and then left with Thompson.

Striking Turkish Women Granted 50 Cents Daily

Kastamuni, Angora, Nov. 3 (A.P.). For the first time in history Turkish women workers have gone on strike. They won. The strike was inaugurated by 2,000 Anatolian peasant women still wearing their veils. They were employed by the Turkish Forest Exploitation Co. They walked out because they received only 25 cents a day, half of the wages paid men.

They demanded wages equal to the men's and their employers promised to cease economic distinction between the sexes in future.

Berwyn Woman Is Killed By Washington Motorist

Mrs. Mary Edwards, 78, Is Run Down on Washington Boulevard in Front of Her Home; John Russell Caldwell Held.

Mrs. Mary Edwards, 78 years old, a resident of Berwyn for many years and mother-in-law of Justice of the Peace H. W. Phillips there, was instantly killed at 10:15 o'clock last night when she was struck in front of her home on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard by an automobile operated by John Russell Caldwell, of Fourteenth and K streets northwest.

Caldwell, who remained at the scene of the accident, was arrested a few minutes later by Policeman Claude Reese, of Prince Georges County, Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown and Maryland State Policeman Louis Bloom. Justic of Peace Herbert J. Moffat, of Hyattsville, immediately swore in a coroner's jury, headed as foreman by Chief H. L. Leonard, of the Prince Georges Fire Department, which began an investigation.

Upon alighting from an automobile, in which she had been riding with her grandson, when it was being parked in front of the Westmoreland Hotel, located close to her residence, Mrs. Edwards began to cross the highway when she was struck and hurled, it was said by police, about 80 feet to the bottom of the steps which lead to her home, situated on a small eminence. She was pronounced dead on the spot.

INCOMES DATA SHOWS 62 NEW MILLIONAIRES

TAXES PAID IN 1927 INCREASED, REPORT

Revenue Bureau Figures Set Average Earnings at $5,496.

11 RICHEST PERSONS' LEVIES $15,407,979

Corporation Profits Fell Off Nearly $1,000,000,000 From 1926, Claim.

(Associated Press.)

Sixty-two new millionaires are shown on the Government's income tax rolls for 1927, boosting the total to 290 for that year.

Included in this group are three unmarried women and 23 wives.

The total incomes of the 290 was $600,640,846 and upon this they paid $98,657,237 in tax.

During the same year, figures made public yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau showed, there was a total of 2,440,941 individual tax returns, with net incomes totaling $22,545,090,553. Taxes paid aggregating $830,639,434. Returns also were received from 1,660,606 persons who did not pay any tax.

Increases Are Reported.

The total income of all individual taxpayers for 1927 showed an increase of $586,594,904 over the previous year while the tax paid showed an increase of $98,168,644, received from 35,545 more persons than paid taxes in 1926.

The average net income for the year showed an increase to $5,496, as compared with $5,306 for the previous year and the tax liability also increased, averaging $202, as compared with $177 in 1926.

In the millionaire class 138 persons had incomes of between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 and paid taxes of $28,471,058; 56 persons had incomes of from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 and paid taxes of $16,313,262; 55 had incomes of $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 and paid taxes of $21,271,277; 22 had incomes of from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 and paid taxes of $12,341,256; 8 had incomes of from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, paying taxes of $4,852,405; and 11 had incomes of more than $5,000,000, paying taxes of $15,407,979.

Women Report Incomes.

There were two single women, heads of families, who reported net incomes of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 and one single woman reported a net income of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. Of the wives filing separate returns from their husbands, 17 reported incomes of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, two reported incomes of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, three $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 and one had an income of $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

Of the total incomes, $10,218,449,780 was received from wages and salaries; $3,287,421,294 from business; $1,755,145,035 from partnerships; $1,813,395,955 from profit by sale of real estate stocks and bonds; $1,081,186,018 from capital, net gain from sale of assets held more than two years; $1,302,275,981 from rents and royalties; $2,026,897,032 from interest and investment income; $47,479,483 from interest on Government obligations not wholly exempt from tax; $4,254,828,886 from dividends on stock of domestic corporations; $6,394,981 from fiduciary. There was a total gross income of $26,208,560,568, from which total deductions of $3,663,470,015 were made.

Corporations in 1927 made 475,031 returns, of which 259,849 showed net income totaling $8,981,884,261 and a tax of $1,130,674,128. In 1926 there were 455,320 returns from corporations which showed 258,134 with net incomes of $9,673,402,889 and a tax of $1,229,797,243.

Officers Hunt Father After Son Is Stabbed

New York, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Police tonight were looking for Alexander Parcelli, 42, who, according to a boy bystander, stabbed his 16-year-old son, Tony, three times with a pair of shears this afternoon. Tony, critically ill, is in St. Vincent's Hospital. The Parcellis were moving, and Tony and his father were carrying out the family furniture. Nicholas Ignazia, 12, was looking on.

"Why don't we buy new furniture, pop, instead of moving this old stuff?" asked Tony. His father thought the question "too fresh" and slapped his face. Tony slapped back. Then, Nicholas told police, the man picked up a pair of shears and stabbed his son in the side, chest and neck. Tony ran to the street and collapsed. His father fled to the roof of the building and escaped.

COALITION AIMS FOR TARIFF BILL TO AID FARMER

Administration Group in Senate to Let Allies Have Their Way.

FINAL PASSAGE BY NEW YEAR IS GOAL

Harrison Predicts Pending Measure Will Show Improvement.

BORAH CONFIDENT OF EARLY ACTION

Eleven Farm Organizations Make Public Plea for Duty on Hides.

(Associated Press.)

A coalition confident that a tariff bill designed for agriculture's benefit will be passed at the special session and an administration group willing to let the opposition have its way will go into the Senate today determined to place a new customs revision law on the statute books before the dawn of the new year.

Only four weeks remain of the special session and a huge task faces the tariff law-makers to get the Hawley-Smoot measure to such a stage that it will not interfere seriously with the regular session program. But party and group leaders, after weeks of futile effort to make real headway, now see a ray of hope for early final action through the decision of the Republican regulars to let the coalition write its own bill in the hope that some compromise might be reached in conference.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, one of the Democratic tariff spokesmen, predicted yesterday that when the pending bill leaves the Senate it would be a great improvement over the measure passed by the House and that offered in the Senate by its finance committee.

White Flag of Surrender.

"With those who framed the bill having run up the white flag of surrender," Harrison said, "it ought to be easier for those of us who are opposed to many features of the bill to present and press to early completion our suggestions for revision."

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee said it appeared now that the coalition had agreed to let the bill pass because of "pressure" aimed to secure some tariff legislation.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, leader of the Republican independents, reiterated a belief that a bill could be passed by the Senate this session. There was a "manifest disposition" to get it out of the way, he said.

The Democrats, Harrison contended, were trying to work out in conferences "such plans as will curtail unnecessary debate, expedite the consideration of amendments and hasten the final vote on the bill."

Despite constant interruptions last week, the bill, in Harrison's opinion, made "much progress" by virtue of the adoption of "some very helpful amendments."

"It has been clearly demonstrated," Harrison said, "that the bill as a whole is obnoxious to the Senate, and while it will be impossible in the future consideration of many of its provisions for all those who have labored for its revision to agree as to rates or classifications, enough is known to give assurance that when the bill passes the Senate it will be a better bill than passed the House and a far better bill than was recommended to the Senate by the finance committee.

Calls Action Conservative.

"The action of the Democrats throughout the consideration of the bill has been conservative, in keeping with campaign pledges and with an eye single to justice to every class, section and industry as well as the general welfare of the people of the whole country."

While the Senate chamber was silent, eleven national farm organizations made public a communication that had been sent to members of the Senate urging a tariff on hides.

"Millions of farmers, dairymen and stockmen are asking for duties on cattle hides and calf skins," it said. "Adequate duties on hides will be at once effective in raising and stabilizing the price in this country, as we now import annually some 300,000,000 pounds of cattle hides and about 35,000,000 pounds of calf skins. Your vote to accomplish this will be hailed as evidence of a real desire to help agriculture."

See No Protection nNow.

The statement said that the duties on live cattle did not give protection on hides; that the big bulk of hides were sold on the open market, and that "free hides, by virtue of excessive imports, so depress prices in this country that farmers and ranchers, as well as butchers and small packers, often

ALLEN COUNSEL FILE DEMAND TO EXAMINE ENTIRE TRIAL BOARD

Officer, Feared Slain, Arrested in Far West

'Other Woman' Involved in Northcutt Mystery, Investigators Say.

Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt, U. S. N., missing from his station at Portsmouth, Va., since October 22 and at first believed to have been kidnaped or slain for $250 which he had collected for the University of Virginia, has been located in Bremerton, Wash., and is held by the Navy Department there.

Capt. R. E. Pope, of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, made the announcement here yesterday afternoon, but said that the message he had received contained no details of the adventures of the young officer since his disappearance.

Investigation of Northcutt's disappearance, made by the Department of Justice, led agents to connect a strange woman in Canada with the mystery. Just what their investigation disclosed was not made public in the announcement from Seattle regarding Northcutt's identification in Bremerton.

Letter Declares Group Is in Same Status as Jury Panel.

RIGHT ALSO RESERVED IF BODY IS CIVILIAN

Decision on Whether to Ask Outside Board for Doyle Due Today.

SEPARATE DEFENSES TO BE MADE BY PAIR

Corporation Counsel May Be Challenged on Right to Prosecute.

Right to examine members of the Police Trial Board on their fitness to serve in the trial of Robert J. Allen, suspended Eighth Precinct policeman, is formally demanded by H. Ralph Burton and Tench T. Mayer, counsel for Allen, in a letter sent yesterday to Capt. Louis Stoll, chairman of the police board.

In support of their demand, the attorneys cited a court opinion which held "that the defendant shall have access to the list of jurors, and that he shall have presented to him face to face for challenge jurors ascertained to be legally qualified."

The attorneys stated that regardless of whether Allen is to be tried before a board of police officials or civilians, they desire the right to examine the jurors.

The formal request was made in accordance with the 48-hour notice required for the filing of a challenge in connection with a Police Trial Board.

Separate Defenses.

Both Allen and Capt. Robert E. Doyle, suspended commander of the Eighth Precinct, are scheduled to go to trial before the Police Trial Board Wednesday. Whether an extraordinary trial board, composed of business and professional men, to try Doyle will be asked will be decided today by his counsel, Chapman W. Fowler and T. Morris Wampler.

Allen and Doyle will make separate defenses, although their cases are related in that Capt. Doyle's support of Allen in connection with the arrest of a local broker prompted the charges filed against both of them.

The demand made by Allen's attorneys is based on practically the same ground on which counsel for Doyle last week challenged the entire trial board, composed of Capt. Stoll, Capt. C. P. M. Lord and Capt. William E. Sanford, selected to try both Doyle and Allen.

Thorough Test Likey.

At the time that the challenge against that board was filed, Attorney Wampler stated that they proposed to exercise the right to challenge the members of any board that might be formed to try Capt Doyle.

Since Allen's attorneys demand the right to examine members of the trial board as well as challenge them, it is likely the legality of the Police Trial Board and its procedure will be thoroughly tested.

Allen's attorneys point out in their letter that unless counsel for a defendant has the right to examine members of the board on their qualifications and fitness to serve in the trial, it would be manifestly impossible for them to know whether the jurors can give an impartial decision in the case.

Attorney Burton also intimated that they proposed to test the right of the corporation counsel to act as prosecutor in the trial of a policeman before the trial board while acting as legal adviser to the board.

Text of Letter.

The text of the letter by Allen's counsel to Capt. Stoll, of the Police Trial Board, follows:

MARKET AWAITING RECORD BUSINESS

Wall Street Scene of Sunday Activity, Preparing for Trading Today.

TREND HELD UNCERTAIN

New York, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Wall street made all possible preparation tonight to handle a record-breaking volume of business at the start of trading tomorrow morning. For the sake of its overworked clerical forces, it was hoping against hope that its estimates of the rush would prove exaggerated, a possibility scarcely supported by the enormous number of orders already on hand.

The majority of those orders are buying orders, according to brokers. Most commission firms, however, were insistently urging caution on the part of new buyers.

Such was the market situation, as revealed by a canvass of the financial district today, on the eve of a day which is expected to take rank with those of last week as one of the most exciting and important in Wall street history.

All guesses as to what will happen stumble against one uncertain factor. No one can estimate the recuperative power of the American people.

In the opinion of the majority of analysts, a period of stabilized trading is really near. No one knows whether its attainment is a matter of days or weeks.

No one attempts to guess whether it will be at a price level slightly above or slightly below that now obtaining.

Among leading bankers the greatest fear is that price fluctuations tomorrow will be too wide, inviting heavy profit taking and professional short selling and thus contributing to further disorderly trading.

It was reported tonight, although no verification could be obtained, that the Morgan banking pool is as

VIRGINIA TO WEIGH DEMOCRATIC REGIME

Voters to Chose Between It and Coalition Group at Polls Tomorrow.

FINAL SPEECHES TODAY

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Holding the spotlight as the only State to elect a governor in the Nation's off-political year, Virginia will decide Tuesday whether she will continue the Democratic administration she has maintained for more than 40 years or install a new regime represented by a coalition of anti-Smith Democrats and Republicans.

The Nation looks to the Virginia election for the answer to the question of the permanency of the division in Democratic ranks in the presidential campaign last year. The State is the home of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, a founder and leader of the movement in Democratic ranks to defeat Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency, and the bishop has endorsed the coalition formed in the State election this year.

John Garland Pollard, former attorney general and Democratic nominee, and William Mosely Brown, gubernatorial choice of the coalition, deliver the final speeches tomorrow in what has been the most spirited campaign in the Old Dominion since reconstruction days. The issues of the campaign, which have been legion and debated from the hustings in every section, were almost obscured during the past week under a flurry of charges and countercharges culminating in the "De Priest circular incident."

After Henry W. Anderson, Republican leader, had accused Democratic headquarters of circulating the "De Priest circular" and this had been vigorously denied by Pollard and campaign headquarters, I. C. Trotman, former anti-Smith executive committeeman, came forward with a statement that he was re-

Stimson Prepares to Meet Japan's Naval Delegation

Secretary of State Plans to Be Ready for Immediate Discussion of Ratio Change and Other Subjects When Orientals Arrive

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson, who will head the American delegation to the five-power naval conference meeting in London in January, has begun active preparations for the conferences he will have with the members of the Japanese delegation when they arrive in Washington on their way to the British capital.

Two of the most important questions to be taken up at the conference—the ratio between the Japanese navy and the American and British navies and the policy of naval reduction—are expected to be discussed at the meetings between the members of the two missions in Washington.

The American Secretary of State and the advisers of the State and Navy Departments who are assisting him in laying the groundwork for the work of the American delegation at the London parley, regard the meetings in Washington with the Japanese as an opportunity to talk over various unsettled questions relating to the two navies before the conference meets.

Before the Japanese delegation arrives here the middle of next month, Secretary Stimson expects to have a large number of matters ready for immediate discussion. It is generally expected by American naval circles that the Japanese will enter the London conference anticipating a 10-10-7 ratio between the American, British and Japanese navies rather than the 5-5-3 ratio established for capital politan Police Department, we hereby give 48 hours' notice that, as attorneys for and in behalf of Robert J. Allen, we demand that each member of the Police Trial Board shall submit to an examination on his voir dire. It is to be understood that this notice to you shall not be construed as a waiver of the right to object to the decision of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia as to the membership of the trial board.

"It will be our pleasure to meet your convenience and that of the board with reference to the request herein made at any time you desire, either before the board convenes or the day of trial. Our purpose in giving this ample notice is to eliminate any possibility whatever of a technical objection being made upon the ground that the provisions of the said manual have not been complied with fully. In support of this request, we submit that by the very inclusion in the Police Manual of section 21, chapter 17, providing for challenge to members of the Trial Board, it was obviously admitted by the Commissioners that members of the Trial Board were jurors as well as judges, and that being the case beyond peradventure or doubt, they are therefore subject to rules, regulations and decisions affecting jurors.

Federal Case Cited.

"In the case of Tierney vs. The United States, 280 Federal 322 (C. C. A., 4th, 1922), it was stated that the essentials of the free exercise of right of challenge are: 'First, that the defendant shall have access to the list of jurors, and, second, that he shall have presented to him face to face for challenge jurors ascertained to be legally qualified.'

"It therefore follows that members of the trial board are subject to examination upon their voir dire for otherwise it would be manifestly impossible for the person charged to know whether or not they were properly qualified to act as jurors in the particular case, and whether our client is to be tried before a board of police officials or civilians, we desire that our position be known and of record in ample time."

RECORD DAY WAITED ON MARKET TODAY

anxious to prevent a demoralized advance as it was to check disorder on the recent unprecedented decline.

Despite the widespread interest in tomorrow's price trend, careful questioning of leading brokerage firms failed to bring out any acceptable estimate of the proportion of buying orders to selling orders received since the suspension of trading last Thursday afternoon.

The several houses specializing in odd-lot trading have on hand the greatest volume of orders ever received. It is definitely known that most of the odd-lot business is on the buying side.

Most of the large wire houses, whose customers are scattered throughout the country, reported a preponderance of buying orders. A few said that orders were approximately balanced.

In no case was it found that selling orders already on hand were in the majority, but several houses pointed to potential selling which is being held back and which will be governed largely by opening prices.

In general, it was the consensus that neither professional speculators nor large investors would be anxious to sell at the prices of last Thursday's close, but might turn at least temporarily to the selling side on any further substantial bulge.

Some firms are trying hard to convince customers that this is not a time for attempting to make money out of speculation and that the prime necessity is to "put in shape" all margin accounts which survived destruction.

The normal Sunday quiet was conspicuously absent throughout the financial district today. Ten times the usual number of pedestrians were about in Wall and Broad streets and lower Broadway. Parking space was at a premium.

Much progress has been made in the greatest bookkeeping task Wall street has ever known, and a few houses have ever succeeded in getting out their monthly statements. On the whole, however, back work is not yet completed and many brokers fear tomorrow's trading will pile up an almost hopeless burden. Thus the purpose of the three-day holiday tends to defeat itself by adding a tremendous accumulation of orders.

Rumors again were heard today that reconsideration by the governing committee of the stock exchange would result in closing tomorrow, but these were flatly denied.

To facilitate tomorrow morning's rush, the exchange has ordered all specialists, telephone clerks and other floor employes to be on duty on the floor not later than 8:45 a. m.

Special Permit Rule Is Lifted by Mexico

Mexico City, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Americans, who visit in Mexico for less than 48 hours will be required hereafter only to give their name and address to Mexican border authorities.

The acting secretary of the interior, Senor Canales, in order to remove difficulties in connection with visits by Americans to Mexican frontier towns, announced today that henceforth special permits to cross the line would not be necessary. He expects to follow up this action soon with a visit of inspection to the border and several Texas cities.

KLEIN AGAIN SOUNDS CHEERY TRADE NOTE

Commerce Department Aid Sees More Reassurance Since Tuesday Talk.

STOCKS NOT BAROMETER

(Associated Press.)

Reiteration that "commercially and financially the United States is sound" came last night from Assistant Secretary Klein of the Commerce Department.

Speaking over the national network of the Columbia Broadcasting Co. for the second time since the slump of the stock market began, Klein said additional reassurance had come since his Tuesday address.

"We have come to see," he said, "more clearly that the stock market is not the principal barometer of business and that our American prosperity is deeply and firmly rooted."

He pointed to weekly statistics released by the Department showing that stocks of manufactured goods are at the same levels as last year as giving "unmistakable proof" of the stability of business, and added that "no indication whatever of any undue accumulation" was seen.

"And our economist friends tell us that congested inventories are the surest sign of trouble," he continued. "There's nothing of that sort in sight at all. And since production is running 10 per cent ahead of last year, this certainly seems to indicate steadily increasing outlets for consumption—surely an encouraging sign."

Dr. Klein was making his weekly radio address on business. He described "a healthy, progressive retail trade" as one of the bulwarks of prosperity and urged the compilation of and more dependence upon facts.

"We are utterly convinced," he said, "of the sovereign efficacy of facts as a remedy for business ills. Business men have got to know what is actually happening. They must have precise knowledge as to operations, trends, costs, methods and everything else. Guesswork is gambling—and we have seen recently the overwhelming disaster that can descend upon the gambler-speculator in business. The 'hunch' is a delusion. Faith in mere 'native shrewdness' often leads swiftly to befuddled fumbling."

Two Killed, Another Hurt as Auto Hits Pole

Hammonton, N. J., Nov. 3 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Two men were killed and another injured seriously today when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telephone pole on the White Horse Pike at Ellwood, about 6 miles south of here.

Lawrence ates, 30B. of Atlantic City, and enBjamin Savidge, 32, of Egg Harbor City, N. J., died while being taken to the Hammonton Emergency Hospital by State troopers. John Steen, 30, of Atlantic City, said by police to be the driver of the car, was taken to the Hammonton Hospital with a broken leg. He was charged with manslaughter.

New Plane Types Proposed in Army

Pursuit Able to Defend Itself From Rear Attack Is Davison's Idea.

(Associated Press).

Experiments looking to development of new branches of pursuit and observation aviation and increased effectiveness of Army air defenses were proposed yesterday by Assistant Secretary Davison, of the War Department.

Tests will be started soon by the air corps, he said, to determine the value of two-seater pursuit planes and three-seater, twin-engined, long distance observation craft; if successful, they will enable Army pursuit planes to defend themselves against attacks from the rear as well as from the front, and thus simplify one of the gravest problems that confront them in war tactics by eliminating the defenselessness of their rear position.

The new planes, still in the experimental stage of development as far as the Army is concerned, contrast with the present types of pursuit planes, all of which are single-seaters, and of observation planes, which have two seats and only one engine.

Williams to Quit House This Month

Illinois Representative to Start Bench Duties in Claims Court.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Thomas S. Williams, of Illinois, one of the House Republican leaders in farm relief legislation, announced yesterday that he expected to resign from the House on November 18 to assume his judgeship on the United States Court of Claims.

On that date the court will start a new session, Mr. Williams said. The nomination of the Illinois representative for that bench was confirmed last Friday by the Senate.

The retirement of Representative Williams from the House will leave two vacancies in the Illinois delegation, the other having been caused by the death of Representative King, also a Republican. Both seats, according to Representative Williams, will be filled in the regular State elections next year, the primary coming in April.

DR. PIERCE ASSAILS CONGRESS LOBBIES

Congregational Pastor Hits Selfish Groups, Lauding Education Bodies.

RAPS EVIL INFLUENCES

Never in the history of America have selfish lobbies been so insidious in the Capital as at present, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, told his congregation yesterday morning in a prelude to his sermon on "Lobbying in Congress."

The pastor went on to mention the "evils" following the appearance of "Shearers, Grundys, Kirbys and Arnolds" in Congress, but maintained that such incidents did not necessarily mean that all members of Congress were dishonest.

Mr. Pierce deplored the methods of selfish lobbies, but had praise for educational lobbies, in which list he included the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. He said:

"For beter or for worse the lobbyist is ever present at the Nation's Capital.

Pose as Patriots.

"The evils of lobbying arise because of selfish men and selfish measures. These evils come with those who pose as patriots when in reality they are the hirelings of financial interests. They come with the Grundys who may be honorable men but who by large financial support of party candidates in political contests seek to place both the President and Congress under obligation to them, and then by their constant presence and pressure they attempt to extort favorable appointments and legislation. They come with the Kirbys and Arnolds who organize tariff associations and tax-payers' leagues, which, according to their own testimony, collect hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Among other uses of these vast funds they seek to defeat legislators who have the independence to oppose them and to procure the election of those who will be subservient to their selfish wishes.

"Never in the history of America have lobbies been so numerous or so powerful as at present. Never have selfish lobbies been so insidious. The lobbyists themselves are unusual men and attractive women, all of them chosen for reasons—privileged ex-congressmen, smooth lawyers, wide-awake newspapermen, ex-Government employes with specialized knowledge. Their number is legion, over 1,000 of them representing 500 organizations here at the Capital. With their clerks, aids and publicity helpers they number 5,000, not counting the spokesmen who come from time to time to impress the President and Congress with their desires.

Urges End of Busybodies.

"It would be a relief to Congress and a blessing to the country if most of these busybodies could be swept out of Washington and put at constructive labor elsewhere.

"A direct bribe, or winnings at cards, or a gift of railroad stock, or a $100 bill at the bottom of a box of cigars—historic methods of corruption—would not affect most members of the present Congress.

"But who can estimate the terrific pressure of the existing social lobby, or the good will generated by a confidential tip on the market, or the prospect of political support from some large group of pleased constituents? Now more than ever are statesmen needed who can see through all cunning devices, through all snares to entrap them, who have the courage of their convictions, and who will vote for the right, irrespective of self-interest.

"A most unethical practice of certain lobbyists is to flood the country with misinformation, half truths, biased reports masquerading as fair statements. Country newspapers are furnished gratis with whole page cuts of interesting material, among which propaganda articles appear under false colors. Thus a misled public opinion is formulated to influence legislation.

One Field Legitimate.

"There is a legitimate field for honest lobbying. Here dishonorable methods are scorned. The work done is educational. Before the proper committees the merits of or objections to proposed legislation are pointed out by experts in these fields, and its ability to command popular support is evidenced. Representatives of groups affected by legislation may here very properly set forth their interests. Honest, truth-telling publicity may and should be resorted to.

"Conspicuous in this field is the work done by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. In contrast to groups seeking to change the tariff or taxation laws for their own advantage, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has never advocated a selfish interest, never sought to persuade a solitary congressman, never offered a dollar of premium, never mixed into partisan politics nor maintained a professional lobby. It has openly advocated removal of unjust discrimination in immigration laws, advocated adherence to the world court, the Kellogg multilateral treaty and the conference on limitation of naval armaments. It opposed the defeated larger Navy bill, but favored the defeated larger Army bill."

'Possum Plays Dead And Lands in Morgue

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Probably for the first time in history, a possum found an appropriate place to play "dead." It was through the open doors of the Allegheny County Morgue ambulance that one made its way while the automobile was parked in the Wexford road, a suburb, last night. Two deputy coroners, Guzenski and McQuaid, were sent to recover the body of a man found dead in the woods. Discovering the limp possum, they placed it in a box.

The drive back to Pittsburgh apparently pepped up the animal, for it was very much more alive than its traveling companion when brought into the morgue.

Endurance Plane Down After Third Attempt

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The endurance plane Sealedsweet of Florida landed at the Municipal Airport this afternoon at 5:50 o'clock after its third attempt to set a new world's refueling record. It failed to take on oil for the night from its sister ship.

The plane made its first gasoline contact in the air this afternoon, but the rope on a canvas sack being lowered with the oil became entangled in the Sealedsweet's tail and was broken, dropping the oil. It was too dark to attempt another oil contact. The Sealedsweet will go up tomorrow morning for another attempt.

The entire populations of the cities of Des Moines, Kansas City, Nashville or Albany could be moved to the National Capital and accommodated in houses and apartments that have been constructed here only within the past five years.

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY OF AUTO DRIVERS DEBATED

compensation in the event of injury or death of one person in an accident and $10,000 for injury or death of two persons in one mishap.

Second, he may deposit with the State cash or securities in the amounts mentioned.

Third, he may give a surety bond.

This law first was adopted by the State of Connecticut in 1926 and became effective January 1, 1927. In the past year, with the issue to which it relates rapidly coming to a climax, it has been indorsed and sponsored by the country's largest chain of motor clubs and has come to be viewed by insurance underwriters as at least preferable to any comparable proposal. In the interval during which it has gained powerful support, however, financial responsibility legislation has gained equally powerful opposition. Where its defenders point to the financial responsibility law as punishing the individual whose traffic conduct is unsound, its opponents insist it misses the point entirely in that it fails to guarantee compensation for the motor vehicle victim.

As already enacted in nine States, the financial responsibility law takes one of three forms. These are:

First—Requiring the owner or operator of any motor vehicle, or both, to take out liability insurance or file a surety bond or collateral to provide compensation for future accidents in the following instances:

(a) For violating certain traffic regulations, minor as well as major. In New Jersey, for instance, the law specifies 32 violations which it regards as sufficiently important to require the driver to guarantee his financial responsibility. These include such offenses as improper use of chains, coasting with gears in neutral, improper use of signaling devices, driving with lights out of focus, and following another car too closely.

(b) Driving without a proper license.

(c) For negligence in an accident which results in personal injury or death.

(d) Driving while intoxicated.

Second, providing for the suspension of an operator's license or car registration, or both, when a judgment arising out of an automobile accident has been unsatisfied for a period of fifteen days.

Must File Surety Bond.

Third, requiring the filing of a personal or surety bond conditioned upon payment of any personal injury or property damage, such a bond to be required of both the owner and operator of a motor vehicle upon the latter's conviction of reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, or failing to stop after an accident.

California, Connecticut and New York, in their enactment of the financial responsibility law, included provisions one and two. New Jersey, Maine, Rhode Island and Vermont have adopted the law with only the first provision. Iowa has specified only the second, while North Dakota is the only proponent of the third form of the statute.

It is an amazing array of claims and counter claims that one encounters when he attempts to weigh appraisals of the financial responsibility law in various quarters. Mainly, its defense seems to center in the argument that it does not compel every one to carry insurance, but rather aims at the individual whose conduct has stamped him as potentially the cause of an accident. Criticism, on the other hand, revolves about the accusations that the law fails utterly to guarantee compensation of accident victims and is the weapon of the insurance interests to defeat enactment of a measure that would actually accomplish this end.

Backed by Six Points.

Specifically, six broad claims are made in behalf of such legislation. They are that:

It provides for the universal adoption of a drivers' license law.

It suspends the driving permits of all persons found to be guilty of serious violations of traffic regulations until such time as they have provided liability insurance against future accidents.

It denies the use of the highways to a person who has failed to pay a judgment against him when the award is made by a court of competent jurisdiction. (This, of course, is true only in California, Connecticut and New York, the laws of which have this specific provision in them).

It requires proof of responsibility on the part of the dangerous and reckless driver without imposing the same expensive penalty upon those whose records are clear.

It eliminates the need for insurance by those living in rural areas and towns where accidents are relatively rare.

It places a premium upon safe driving and thus tends to reduce accidents.

Against these virtues claimed for the financial responsibility law, which they do not concede to be virtues, its opponents set forth what they vigorously label as its defects.

Compensates Only Few.

Among these are:

That it does nothing to compensate the vast majority of mishap victims. This is attributed to the fact that responsibility does not have to be acquired until after the first accident or driving misdemeanor. While it is granted that three States require that judgments be satisfied before operators' permits are restored, it is argued that were the judgment of any size, the average man could not pay it.

That such laws are "compulsory insurance" as the insurance companies would like it; that is, with the State forcing a vast volume of business into the offices of the insurer with the latter making its own rates and selecting its own risks. In this connection, the emphatic charge frequently is heard that such laws are more influenced by insurance practice than public policy.

That the State, under such a law, is made a collector of judgments.

That such laws haggle over the question of responsibility for accidents instead of concentrating upon the relief of the injured.

That they penalize the motorist for minor law infractions.

That they do not reduce accidents.

The strongest of the indictments against the safety-responsibility or financial responsibility theory is admitted, even by some of its most ardent advocates, to be that it fails to provide compensation for accident victims unless the driver involved happened to be participating in his second mishap. Robbins B. Stoeckel, motor vehicle commissioner of Connecticut, the first State to enact the law, agrees that it does have this serious defect, that "it locks the barn after the horse has been stolen."

Such admissions are seized upon avidly by opponents of this proposal.

"We already have means of punishing drivers who figure in accidents," says one prominent opponent of the law. "What we need now is a means of compensating the victims of those accidents. It is of small consequence to the individual maimed for life in a mishap for which he was in no way responsible that the State forces the responsible driver thereafter to carry insurance or denies him the right to drive. Such a law, obviously, is worse than none at all. The only thing it accomplishes is the sale of insurance and the forestalling of a law aimed directly to meet the real need."

Seen As Not Finally Settled.

It is argued that this opinion is growing at a considerable rate in many of the States which recently have enacted such legislation, which is construed as meaning that, even in these, the question is not finally settled.

Some of the most bitter foes of financial responsibility legislation, while holding no brief for the latter, insist it is worse than the Massachusetts compulsory liability insurance law. This point becomes doubly interesting to the unbiased spectator when it is realized that the best friends of financial responsibility are the severest critics of the Bay State statute.

The allegation is based upon the fact that whereas in Massachusetts the car owner is frankly and openly compelled to take out insurance, under financial responsibility it is possible by artifice and unfairness to achieve the same end with the added drawback that the State does not participate in rate fixing. A further way in which financial responsability is declared to compare unfavorably with compulsory insurance as practiced in Massachusetts is that in the latter the insurer can not arbitrarily reject an applicant.

The first claim for financial responsibility legislation, that it forces the application of a driver's license law, is scoffed at by many who point out that twenty States enacted such laws without benefit of any other measure.

The reporter attempting to corral all of the sentiment both for and against financial responsibility is impressed with the fact that its friends and foes argue from entirely different premises. The first say that careless and reckless driving is penalized; the latter that the question is not of penalizing the reckless driver but of compensating the motor accident victim.

Those who view the whole situation broadly point to this as one of the smokescreens which blinds the average man to the real question; that confuses him as to what is the issue actually involved.

Much the same charge is heard with reference to the proposal that the problem be solved by the enactment of compulsory liability insurance, the method which will be discussed in the third article of this series tomorrow.

The body will be taken to America by his brother, Lafayette Young, jr.

BARON NEARING END OF WORLD AIR TOUR

Youthful German Aviator Lands at New York With Three Mascots.

WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A tiny monoplane, slightly the worse for wear, arrived here today carrying a smiling, 23-year-old German lad, two horned toads and a Siamese cat.

The youth was Baron Friedrich Karl Freiherr Koenig von und Zu Warthausen, who is nearing the end of a fifteen-month tour by plane and ship that carried him into many of the far places of the world.

The cat was a present from the crown prince of Siam, and the toads were a good-will offering from friends in El Paso, Tex. Originally there were three, but the cat disposed of one during the flight to New York.

The baron flew from Berlin to Moscow, thence over the Ukraine, over Persia and above the mountains to India. In Siam he lingered awhile and then made a 1,200-mile nonstop flight from Bangkok to Singapore.

His plane carried him around the island of Sumatra, and then he shipped it to Kongkong. He flew to Shanghai, crossed the Yellow Sea by ship because the fog was too thick for flying, and then toured Japan. From Yokohama he shipped his plane to San Francisco and then flew across the United States by the southern route, lingering at many places en route. He made the jump here today from Albany in rainy, thick weather, wearing neither goggles nor helmet.

The baron reported he spent $600 on gasoline and oil and put his plane into a hangar only twice. Next year, he said, he hopes to have it painted and take a trip from Berlin over Siberia, Alaska, Canada, the United States, Central and South America.

Only two mishaps marred the journey. At Sweetwater, Tex., a wing of his plane was damaged in a storm, and in El Paso he was hit by a taxicab and spent three weeks in a hospital. In return for the horned toads given him in El Paso, he created a scholarship for study in Germany, which was awarded to Oscar Strobel, cowboy-artist, of Texas.

He plans to sail for home Wednesday.

Clemenceau Entertains Friends; Bans Doctors

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Georges Clemenceau, with mock ferocity, forbade his doctors to visit him today. As a consequence, neither Dr Laubry nor Dr. Degennes went to see him. "The Tiger" received friends, including Pierre Pons, musical composer, and Emile Bure, journalist.

M. Clemenceau was busy correcting the proofs of the book he is writing in the reply to Marshal Foch's utterance in the book by Raymond Recoury. "The doctors have made a big mistake," Clemenceau said humorously. "I am not a sick man," then after deep thought, concluded, "I am simply a dying old man, trying to finish his task."

Turkish Government Denies Shake-Up Plans

Constantinople, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The official newspaper Milliett today categorically denied reports that the Turkish constitution was to be changed so as to abolish the premiership and to transfer its prerogatives to President Mustapha Kemal.

Deputy Mahmut Bey signed the article, which concluded with: "The present Turkish constitution and regime, as well as the general life of the country, have reached a normal and stable condition, and there is no question of any further change."

Double Bombing Blamed on Union

Two St. Louis Film Houses Damaged, None Hurt by Blasts.

St. Louis, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Two neighborhood motion picture theaters were damaged by explosions which occurred 30 minutes apart early today. The theater owners attributed both blasts to the first outbreak of violence in a dispute with union musicians who are on strike.

No one was injured, but the explosion shook the neighborhoods and damaged the theater buildings, motion picture machines and talking apparatus to the extent of $11,000.

The first explosion, believed to have been nitroglycerine, was in the projection booth at the Lemay Theater, in St. Louis County, at 1.20 a. m. The blast blew a hole in the roof and was felt six or seven blocks away. Damage was estimated at $6,000.

Thirty minutes later, a similar explosion occurred in the projection booth of the Mackland Theater, in the southwest part of the city. It caused $5,000 damage.

Man Affected By Motor Gas.

Rowland G. Morrisette, 40 years old, of 1137 Abbey Place northeast, suffered minor effects from carbon monoxide poisoning at 7 o'clock last night while working in garage in the garage in the rear of his residence on an automobile with the motor running. On becoming stupefied he telephoned the Fire Rescue Squad for information and took its suggestion to receive medical aid at Casualty Hospital. He later was dismissed.

Bones of Boy, Lime Eaten, Found by Two Little Girls

Sheet and Pages From Old Newspaper Are Only Clews Discovered After Pair Sees Skull Through Clump of Bushes.

National Park, N. J., Nov. 3 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—The scattered remnants of what police here described as the skeleton of a boy, about 10, were discovered today by two little girls on their way to mass at St. Matthew's Church.

Although both arms, one leg, and the pelvis were missing, authorities stuck to their assertion that the bones were those of a boy. Their only clues were a sheet bearing the mark of the Domestic Laundry of Camden, N. J., and a few sheets of newspaper bearing the date, June 9, 1929, which were under the decomposed torso.

The flesh had entirely disappeared and there were evidences that lime had been used. The two girls, Margaret Rink and Genevieve Maguire, both 11, were walking along Grove avenue when one of them saw a skull through a small clump of bushes. Terrified, they stood still, staring, until the more venturesome Jesse George, 13, came along. He dared to do so much as kick the death's-head, whereat the girls screamed and neighbors, thus notified, called police.

The upper teeth were entirely missing. The body had apparently been wrapped in the sheet, most of which was eaten away by the lime, and deposited in a vacant lot on the street. The nearest house was a block away. Identification of the skeleton, if it is ever completely assembled, police said, would be impossible. The operator of the Camden laundry will be questioned, police said.

HOOVER RIDES HOME FROM CAMP IN RAIN

Friends of S Street Gather About Log Fire Before Trip to Capital.

GETS REPORT ON SCHOOL

(Associated Press.)

The visit to his mountain camp shortened by a rainstorm, President Hoover returned to the White House late yesterday after a 60-mile automobile drive through a pelting rain.

The wet roads led the President to choose a longer route for his trip back to Washington. He made the journey by way of Fredericksburg to avoid a slippery road.

Although the rain held the presidential party indoors for most of the day, it afforded an opportunity for an informal gathering of old friends before a cheerful wood fire in the living room of his mountain cottage. Most of his guests for the trip were friends who had enjoyed the informal hospitality of his "S" street home in the days before he took over the duties of Chief Executive.

The visit was the first Hoover has made to his mountain camp since his historic conferences there with Prime Minister MacDonald, of England several weeks ago.

The inclement weather did not prevent the Chief Executive from showing an interest in the mountain school which is being constructed in the vicinity of his camp. Lawrence R. Richey, one of his secretaries, visited the site of the proposed school at the request of the President. Richey reported that the foundations already had been laid for the structure and if the work went ahead it would be completed in time for classes there this winter.

13 Russian Refugees Found on Lapp Border

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three groups of Russian refugees, including one woman among the thirteen persons, were found today by Finnish guards on the Lapland frontier in a state of almost complete exhaustion by the hardships of their long overland journey from the Soviet prison on Solovyetsk Island in the White Sea.

While working in the forest they had knocked down and overpowered their three guards. The beginning of their march to Finland through the north country was accompanied by great hardships from cold and lack of food. They described conditions as a "reign of terror" and said that prisoners were dying daily.

Funeral Plans Made For William G. Lee

Cleveland, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Plans for funeral services for William G. Lee, 70, former president and general secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who died here yesterday, were completed today. Burial will be Tuesday afternoon in Lakeview Cemetery here. Services will be held in the Lee home, where death occurred.

Death marked the end of a losing battle with cancer with which he became afflicted in 1917. Since then he had been under the care of physicians for a greater part of the time. At the death bed were the wife of the labor leader, Mrs. Mary Rice Lee, and his brother, J. C. Lee.

Robbers Force Woman To Leave Her Bathtub

Chicago, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Three robbers who gained entrance to an apartment by a ruse roused Jesse G. Haber from a nap on the lounge, dragged his wife, Flossye, from the bathtub, and compelled her to lead them to her jewels in the bedroom. They escaped with gems worth $7,600.

"Jess, don't come in; I haven't a thing on," Mrs. Haber shouted as two robbers approached the unlocked door. While the foremost ordered her to hush, the second stepped to a corridor clothes tree, snatched up an evening wrap and passed it to his partner, who flung it to Mrs. Haber. She led them to the gem case.

SON WHO KILLED ILL MOTHER FACES JURY

Richard Corbett to Plead "Humane Right" at Trial in Var, France.

SLEW TO END HER PAIN

Draguignan, Var, France, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The trial of 30-year-old Richard Corbett, an Englishman who shot and killed his invalid mother at Hyeres on May 9, will open in this mountain town tomorrow. His defense will be that he exercised a humane right to kill.

Corbett's father was an English banker, who settled on the Riviera nearly 40 years ago when he married a French girl. Ten years ago he died. Three years ago Mrs. Corbett began to suffer from what physicians diagnosed as cancer. Her son acted as her nurse, scarcely ever leaving her alone in the small villa they occupied on the outskirts of the city.

In April, Mrs. Corbett's suffering became so great that even the opiates administered by the doctors did not relieve the pain. Day after day her son sat by the bedside watching her suffering and pleading with the doctors to do something to ease her. Early in May he was told there was no hope. On May 9 he cleaned a revolver, loaded it, walked into his mother's bedroom, kissed her, and killed her with one shot. He then shot himself.

Neighbors heard the shots and arrived to find Mrs. Corbett dead and her son unconscious. When he was able to speak at the hospital, his first question was, "My mother is dead?" The police told him he had killed his mother. "Thank God for that," Corbett was reported to have said. "Now she suffers no longer. I don't care what you do to me."

Corbett will contend that he had a right to kill, though the State will contend that no disease is incurable. But exactly what the defense intends doing remains a well-kept secret. Ordinarily, a sentimental plea would free a person charged in a similar case. Within the past four years, in France, seven persons have killed seven individuals in order to put them out of their suffering and the state failed to convict. Now the public prosecutor is out to get a conviction and create a precedent.

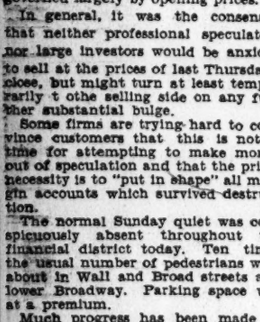

Corbett has refused the services of a lawyer and will plead his own case. He does not intend to ask for clemency.

Radohlavoff, Bulgarian War-Time Chief, Buried

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Vassell Radoslavoff, former premier who died recently in Berlin, was buried today in his native land from which he had been barred for years because he brought it into the World War on the side of the central powers. The exile to which he was sentenced after the war was lifted about three months ago, but he was then too ill to return home.

King Boris, ministers of the government, diplomats and political delegates from all parts of the country attended the funeral services today.

SUSPECTS GRILLED IN BORGER MURDER

Former Deputy and Another Held for Slaying of District Attorney.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

Borger, Tex., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Holmes murder mystery, which persuaded Gov. Moody to declare martial law in this turbulent oil town, and which has lain dormant since that time, eclipsed all other considerations in Borger here today as officers questioned the first two men to be arrested and charged with the crime.

Sam Jones, former deputy constable, and Jim Hodges, manager of a boiler works here, were charged with the murder after almost two months of investigation by State rangers, District Attorney Clem Calhoun and National Guard officers.

Jones was one of the first men arrested when the troops came to Borger. He was held without bond on a liquor charge but with the expiration of martial law was allowed bond. Deputy Sheriff "Red" Burton returned him to Borger from New Mexico Friday on another liquor charge and upon arrival here lodged the murder complaint.

Hodges was arrested at his home here. Holmes, who was district attorney at the time of his assassination, once prosecuted Hodges on a theft charge. Officers investigating the case were very close mouthed about the latest developments, but indicated that they felt they were nearing a solution which they expected would have "wide ramifications."

State rangers early in the investigation said they had affidavits which would show that a conspiracy existed between some county and city officials and the criminal element. Later Gov. Moody and his representatives here insisted that the old county and city administrations resign as the price for restoration of civil law. Jones was one of those forced out of office.

So confident was District Attorney Clem Calhoun that the investigators were on the right track he predicted that a jury would punish Holmes' assassins before the new year.

Beyond Hodges' denial of guilt or knowledge of the crime no word came from the prisoners.

Courtney Avoids Hurts As His Plane Cracks Up

New York, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British airman, who was forced down in mid-ocean on his attempted transatlantic flight, demolished the undercarriage and lower wing of a bird biplane today at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, when the motor quit at an altitude of 300 feet leaving him small choice of a landing place. The flier escaped injury.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

WHATEVER may be said about the coolness of Hoover's reception at Louisville, the President certainly went out of his way to avoid the kind of trouble that Charles E. Hughes acquired in California in 1916. The White House made it very clear, before Mr. Hoover left Washington, that his visit to Kentucky was not to be capitalized by either the adherents of Senator Sackett or those determined to retire the senator to private life next year.

Politics is usually bitter in Kentucky. It has been some 40 years since any senator from that State was able to serve more than one term. It is said that Ollie James could have been reelected had he lived, but even this is doubtful. So it is not surprising that Senator Sackett should be faced with a lot of trouble, especially as he is a Republican in a normally Democratic State.

But this year the bitterness so far is in the Republican camp, and Sackett at the moment is much more concerned about his prospects in getting renominated than over anything the Democrats may do. Friends of Senator Sackett are inclined to put at least some of the blame for the senator's difficulties on President Hoover's shoulders, and at the moment, especially since what happened at Louisville, there is no love lost between Kentucky's Republican senator and the White House.

• • • •

ALL of which tends to explain certain antiadministration tendencies on the part of Mr. Sackett at the moment, just as the attitude of Senator Pine, of Oklahoma, dates back to the removal of one of his friends from the Department of Justice as a result of the Burke prosecution, and the insurgency of Senator Schall dates at least partly to his belief that the White House has been moving through Walter Newton to defeat him next year.

Kentucky went for Hoover by 178,000, a staggering majority considering the size of the State, but Sackett's troubles have been brewing ever since. Kentucky failed to get a place in the Cabinet, though Mrs. Hert was actively urged even by Dr. Work, then chairman of the Republican National Committee. It seemed as though Kentucky Republicans were not to be recognized at all, as the factions warred and failed to agree on anyone for anything. Then James Francis Burke stepped into the picture, and it became known that Robert H. Lucas, collector of revenue at Louisville, would be named commissioner of internal revenue if the factions could agree on him.

• • • •

THIS is where the picture becomes amazing. Lucas was a Sackett man. Presumably if he should be promoted he would owe a debt of gratitude to Sackett. But Sackett's rivals, Representative Robsion and Gov. Sampson, refused to agree to Lucas' being given the bigger job unless they were permitted to name his successor. Sackett agreed to this, and J. S. Helburn was named.

Whereupon every one concerned turned on Sackett and held him responsible for all their troubles. Even Lucas, due to the long period of pulling and hauling, turned on Sackett, and today is counted upon those more likely to side against Sackett in his fight for renomination.

Robsion, chief opponent at the moment for Sackett's seat, is strong up in the mountain country, where most of the Republican votes are. So Sackett is opposed to having a primary. It will probably be decided in convention.

• • • •

CONSERVATIVE Republican leaders, timid at the thought of losing a seat in the Senate, are conferring now as to the advisability of eliminating Sackett, Robsion and Gov. Sampson all from consideration; and going into the battle against the Democrats with some proved vote-getting figure such as former Gov. Ed Morrow, one of the strongest figures in the State, or Mayor William B. Harrison, of Louisville.

Sackett, it is said, has alienated too many factions to be a strong candidate even if he can defeat the Robsion-Sampson group in the convention. For example, it is pointed out that Senator Ernst has never forgiven him for failing to support his candidate for national committeeman, Sackett having flopped to Matt Chilton. Yet he did not win the friendship of Chilton, who thinks he only came over because he had to do so. And so it goes.

• • • •

WHEN President Hoover's steamboat was approaching the wharf at Louisville Senator Sackett was standing by, but when George A. Akerson invited the board of trade welcoming committee to come on the steamer Sackett could not be found. He took the advance warning seriously. Gov. Sampson was in the audience at the hall that night when Hoover spoke, but did not go on the platform. He also took it seriously.

So the President emerged unentangled with any of the factions, which may explain why there was no group interested in whooping up his reception. Meanwhile Louisville is getting a reputation as not being enthusiastic about visiting celebrities, the story still being told that when Gov. Smith went there in the campaign on a very hot night some one turned the steam on in the hall in which he was to speak.

Woman Slashes Wrist With Blade of Razor

Mrs. Eula Cook, 31 years old, of Seventeenth street near Q street northwest, yesterday was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts to her right wrist which police of the Third Precinct reported were self-inflicted with a razor blade and with the intent to take her life.

Mrs. Cook is said to have told Dr. J. E. Lewis, who treated her at the hospital, that her act was prompted by despondency over domestic troubles and her inability to effect a reconciliation with her husband, Thomas Cook, with whom she recently had quarreled. Dr. Lewis stated that the woman's condition was not serious and she later returned to her home.

Negro Found Dead in Bed.

Sydney Randolph, colored, 28 years old, of 31 Logan place northwest, was found dead in his bed yesterday morning by Alfred Taylor, of the same address. Dr. Thomas Mattingly, of Emergency Hospital, was summoned and pronounced Randolph dead. Police of the Second Precinct reported that there was nothing suspicious.

DR. RUFFIN DENIES PUBLICITY CHARGE

Fall's Refusal to Submit to Examination Not Given Out by Him, He Says.

LETTER SENT MRS. FALL

In a letter to Mrs. Albert B. Fall, Dr. Sterling Ruffin denied responsibility for the publicity given the refusal of the former Secretary of Interior to be examined by Dr Ruffin prior to Fall's recent trial. The physician also stated that he was not present when Fall, as a member of a senatorial committee visiting President Wilson, is charged with having pulled bed clothing off the Chief Executive.

The letter follows:

October 28, 1929.

Dear Mrs. Fall:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt on October 23 of your letter dated October 16.

The wide publicity given Mr. Fall's refusal of examination by me to determine his fitness or lack of fitness to stand trial did not originate with me. I have not given out any statement as to his reason for refusing to be examined by me. Many newspapers have assumed a reason which was erroneous at least in part. As a matter of fact, I was not at the White House when the senatorial committee, of which Senator Fall was a member, visited the President. To one paper (possibly the Baltimore Sun) whose representative called me on the telephone and asked if I was present at the time of the committee's visit, I replied specifically that I was not. Whether the statement was published or not I do not know. I also told you over the telephone that I was not present.

Please find returned herewith the memorandum of December 5, 1919, descriptive of the visit by the senatorial committee to President Wilson.

I hope you will make such use of this letter as you wish. In case it is offered to the press please let it be published in full.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) STERLING RUFFIN.

sponsible for the pamphlet, which he defended.

The circular itself, which contained pictures of Oscar De Priest, negro representative, and his wife and excerpts from De Priest speeches, also asserted that Anderson, Brown and the Republican platform stood for poll tax repeal as a prerequisite to voting, an assertion that Anderson branded as "absolutely false." In denying responsibility for the circular, Democratic officials said the charge was not true, but claimed the poll tax repeal proposal was a part of the Republican platform when Anderson ran for governor in 1921. Dr. Pollard charged that "political expediency" kept the measure out of this year's platform.

Anderson followed up Trotman's claim of responsibility for the circular by reiterating in an address last night that Democratic officials were distributing the pamphlet.

"Good Government" Held Issue.

Democrats hold "good government" the principal issue of the campaign, and maintain that this would be assured by continuation of Democratic control. Their nominee has indorsed the "program of progress" of the Byrd administration, and the campaign slogan has been "Vote for Pollard and Progress."

The coalition also has held "good government" an issue and asserted that "popular government can only be restored by an adjournment of machine politics." Dr. Brown has vigorously attacked Virginia's election laws and what he termed "machine rule."

"Raskobism," a term of Bishop Cannon, who said the principal issue was "Raskobism versus Southern Democracy" in criticizing John J. Raskob as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, also has been heard from coalition ranks, while individual Democrats have replied with the word "Cannonism." Bishop Cannon also held prohibition an issue, and called for repudiation of all State leaders who supported Alfred E. Smith last year.

Both Candidates Dry.

Both candidates for governor are dry, however, and have received the official approval of the Virginia Anti-saloon League.

Two other candidates for governor appear on the ballot—J. J. Kafka, Socialist, and W. A. Rowe, independent—but neither has conducted a State-wide campaign. James H. Price, for lieutenant governor, and John R. Saunders, for attorney general, are running mates of Dr. Pollard, while Callom B. Jones, for lieutenant governor, and C. C. Berkeley, for attorney general are the candidates for the coalition.

Alleged Drunken Man Jailed After Smash-Up

Thomas Evans, colored, 26 years old, of R street, near Fourtenth street norwest, was arrested on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving early last night when the automobile he was operating collided at Sixteenth street and Florida avenue northwest with a car opearted by Manning Norford, 4 4years old, of 237 Delaware avenue southwest.

Eighth Precinct Policeman C. A. Dodson, who arrested Evans and jailed him at the precinct station, reported damage of about $150 to Norford's machine.

Five Seek Office In Police Society

Presidency of District Association to Be Well Contested.

Five policemen will seek nomination as president of the District Policeman's Association when the general board meets tomorrow night at the Odd Fellows Temple, 419 Seventh street northwest. The election is scheduled for the first Tuesday in December.

They are Sergt. Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau; Capt. F. W. S. Burke, of the First Precinct; Sergt. F. A. Varney, of headquarters; Private W. P. McDuffie, of Eleventh Precinct, and Private C. E. Strobel, of Fourth Precinct.

The positions of financial and recording secretaries and treasurer have no opposition. W. J. Kearns has served fifteen years as recording secretary, and W. J. Adock has been treasurer more than twenty years. W. T. Hendricks is serving his first term as financial secretary.

The carefully planned arrangement of news matter in The Washington Post makes it most convenient and enjoyable to read and also allows greater visibility for the announcements of its advertisers.

INSANE MAN KILLS TWO IN INSTITUTION

Board Torn From Window Is Instrument Wielded by Baltimore Patient.

JOKE IS SEEN AS MOTIVE

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Wrenching a board from the window of his room, Samuel McNeil, 59, a patient in the Mount Hope Retreat for the Insane, early this morning clubbed to death two patients who, he believed, had made him the butt of a joke.

The victims of the attack, Howard Pemberton, 57, and Charles Schrauder, 70, died without regaining consciousness. All three were inmates of St. George's Hall, a section of the asylum where patients classified as harmless are quartered.

An attendant, Charles Davis, was aroused from his sleep by inchoherent mutterings in the corridor passing by his room. He found McNeil pacing back and forth in the narrow hall.

Other guards were awakened and McNeil was locked in his room and a tour of the hall started. The two victims were found in their beds. Schrauder was believed to have been attacked first. He had apparently wakened as McNeil came into the room. Both of his hands were bruised and torn by the nails in the board as if he raised hands to protect his head when the blows were struck.

Schrauder died at 5 o'clock and Pemberton suocumbed about an hour later.

McNeil was admitted to the institution from the central Islip State Hospital, New York, in 1928. Pemberton and Schrauder were both Baltimoreans.

McNeil is technically under arrest. He will be held at the institution until after the inquest.

ARLINGTON'S BITTER CAMPAIGN NEAR END

Both Sides Claiming Victory on Tuesday, Democrats by Big Majority.

AUXILIARY PLANS DINNER

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the State election now but a matter of hours, one of the bitterest of political campaigns in Arlington County is drawing to a close with both Republican and Democratic leaders claiming victory.

State Republican leaders, who have just made a tour of the Eighth congressional district, claim that with the vote predicted in Arlington County, the county will go Republican by not less than 800. It is predicted that MacMahon, member of the House of Delegates, will defeat his Democratic opponent, Hugh Reid. Democratic chiefs, however, claim victory by 25,000 majority.

While the county has in most cases gone Republican in presidential elections, the Democratic party until this campaign has always been confident of a heavy majority for State officers.

Dr. John Garland Pollard, standard bearer of the Democratic party, has made two visits to the county with his running mates, James H. Price, for lieutenant governor, and Col. John R. Saunders, for attorney general.

The polls will open at 6:39 a. m. and close at 5:04 p. m. All banks in the county will be closed, election day being a legal holiday.

Despite that Tuesday is election day, the Arlington County Civic Federation will hold its monthly meeting, as usual, in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. President William C. Hull will preside. A vote will be taken on proposed amendments to the constitution.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church has announced a chicken dinner, to be served tomorrow night at the church from 5 to 8 o'clock.

The county health department has announced the November preschool dental clinics for Cherrydale and Potomac health centers. The clinic in the Clarendon health center is withheld, owing to absence of a heating system. The dates follow: Potomac health center, Wednesday, November 6, and Cherrydale, Thursday, November 7. The hours will be from 9 to 12 a. m. and 1 to 4 p. m.

S. P. Vanderalice, principal of the Washington-Lee High School, will represent the Arlington County Teachers Association at the annual meeting of the Virginia Educational Association, which meets in Richmond November 28 to 30. Miss Elizabeth Beale, of the Ballston School, will represent the county elementary schools.

The November meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Matthew Fontaine Maury School of Clarendon, will be held in the schoolhouse Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

The Blessed Virgin Sodality of St. James Catholic Church, of West Falls Church, will meet Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Harold Kennedy.

The Holy Name Societies of St. James Catholic Church and West Falls Church will hold a rally Thursday night in St. James Hall. J. O. Martin is general chairman in charge of arrangements.

The Ministerial Association of Falls Church will hold a meeting tomorrow morning, with the president, the Rev. U. S. Knox, presiding. It will be determined whether or not to observe the interdenominational week of prayer in January.

Ballston and Clarendon councils, Order of Fraternal Americans, will hold a joint class initiation Wednesday night in the Junior Hall at Ballston.

Announcement has been made that the Clarendon Rebekah Lodge will hold a luncheon Tuesday in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon from 12 to 2 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Thomas Nelson Page School of Ballston in the schoolhouse tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Virginia Highlands Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the Jefferson District Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock.

The card party announced to be given Wednesday night in the Lyon Park Community House by the Lyon Park Woman's Club has been postponed indefinitely, according to an announcement by the president, Mrs. Arthur Orr.

DORAN SAYS PUBLIC DRINKING REDUCED

Commissioner Tells College Group Prohibition Act Is Bearing Fruit.

RETICENT AS TO BUYER

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—"There is less public drinking today than before the prohibition law was enacted," Dr. James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, today told delegates from eighteen colleges in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia at the closing session of a two-day prohibition conference at Johns Hopkins University.

After declaring "rum row has been abolished, foreign bases either destroyed or well on the way to destruction and international rum smuggling almost driven from the high seas and with forces now concentrated on land borders," Dr. Doran said:

"I believe if we examine the ten years' record of enforcement we will conclude we are not dealing with the fall of man, but will feel cause for optimism."

Referring to the bill proposed by Senator Sheppard, making the purchaser equally guilty with the seller, the commissioner said he had "no fixed opinion."

"Of course, the purchaser is ethically as guilty as the seller, but whether it is wise to add a special crime to the calendar is open to grave question. The real question to be settled is whether it is necessary in the administration of the law."

Dr. Doran characterized the present status of enforcement of the Volstead law with the statement "more talk than whisky."

ALEXANDRIA DRILL SCHEDULE FRAMED

Regular Assembly Night of Company I Changed From Nov. 11 to Nov. 12.

FIRE TRUCK TEST NEAR

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Capt. W. Cameron Roberts, of the Alexandria Light Infantry, officially known as Company I, 183rd Infantry, Virginia National Guard, has announced the following schedule of drills for November:

Tonight—7:30 to 8, use of the bayonet; 8 to 8:30, extended order; 8:30 to 9, close order drill.

November 12—Riot duty, 7:30 to 8; combat principals, 8 to 8:30; close order drill, 8:30 to 9.

November 18—Use of bayonet, 7:30 to 8; riot duty, 8 to 8:30; close order drill, 8:30 to 9.

November 25—7:30 to 9, marksmanship.

The automatic rifle detail will continue to report to Sergt. Seablom each drill night until further notice. Attention is also called to the charge of regular drill night from November 11, Armistice Day, to the next night.

Capt. Roberts hopes to be in receipt of the pay checks for the quarter ending September 30 to distribute tonight.

The 75-foot aerial truck purchased by the city at a cost of $15,000 and exhibited at the firemen's convention in Birmingham, Ala., recently, is now being assembled under the supervision of E. M. Woodsworth, of Washington, representing the builders, the American La France Engine Co., and is housed in the Relief Truck and Engine Co. house. It is expected to give it a test on Wednesday.

The banks of the city will be closed tomorrow, election day, according to the law.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will observe the week of prayer beginning today with meeting of one hour duration at 3 o'clock each afternoon.

The annual birthday party of the Greenaway Bible Class will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. An interesting program is being ararnged by the group captains of the past year.

A meeting of the Covenanter Bible Class of the Second Presbyterian Church will be held this evening with Mrs. Stephen H. Field, 303 South Washington street, to complete plans for an oyster supper to be given on Thursday evening, from 5 to 8 o'clock, in the Westminster Building.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Daughters will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the Lyceum, and members are asked to bring their gifts for the hope chest.

MISSING NAVY FLIERS ARE RESCUED AT SEA

the absence of reports from the coast, members of the family said that so far as they knew the only charge that could be lodged against Northcutt was one of desertion.

Northcutt was last seen on Tuesday, October 22, when he left his home at 248 Court street, Portsmouth, Va., to go to a nearby school to teach an extension class of the University of Virginia. He did not take his topcoat, but told his wife he might drop in at a movie before returning home. When he did not return at 3 o'clock in the morning, she notified police and Navy officials.

A search was instituted and the next day Northcutt's automobile was found in the business district of Richmond, Va. His cards and other papers were scattered in the rear of the machine, and a theory of violence was advanced because it was learned that Northcutt had collected $250 in tuition fees from students in his extension class.

Later investigation revealed letters indicating that he had disappeared with the woman from Canada or had gone to meet her, agents said. These letters, it was stated, showed that the lieutenant had been urged by the woman to leave his wife and family and marry her.

It was also learned that relatives of this woman had been informed that she had started South to be married, but last word from her indicated she was in Vancouver.

Northcutt is 28 years old. He stood third in his class at the United States Naval Academy.

Asked last night if he knew any reason for Northcutt's action, H. E. C. Bryant, father of Mrs. Northcutt, said: "Nothing ever surprised me and my family more. We know of no reason for such a step. Lieut. Northcutt did not drink, was devoted to his wife and little boy, and did not owe any debt he could not have paid. Mrs. Northcutt never had the slightest intimation that he was preparing to leave. His record in the Navy is fine and his superior officers liked him. Although the evidence looks very bad and damaging to him, I can not believe that he deliberately quit his family, his parents and the Navy, voluntarily.

"Facts in the hands of the Department of Justice show that a woman whom he had met in New York, when he was taking a course at the Brooklyn Navy Yard about eighteen months ago, left her home near Ottawa, Canada, early last August, for the purpose of getting Lieut. Northcutt at any cost. Letters held by Government agents plainly indicate that for more than a year she boldly asserted her aims.

"We are sorry for the young man, and hope that he can explain his strange action."

Northcutt's Surrender Is Made at Vancouver

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Lieut. Harold W. Northcutt, who was turned over to the Navy Department at Bremerton, Wash., today, gave himself up to authorities at Vancouver, British Columbia, Capt. Zeno T. Briggs, of the navy yard at Bremerton, reported. Northcutt was brought to the navy yard by representatives of the Department of Justice.

Capt. Briggs said Northcutt was being held awaiting instructions from Washington, but further than that he knew nothing about the case.

Lieut. Northcutt was in the naval construction corps.

STIMSON PREPARES TO MEET JAPANESE ships at the Washington arms conference.

The question is expected to be discussed fully by President Hoover, Secretary Stimson and Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Robinson, of Arkansas, the senatorial members of the delegation already chosen by President Hoover, and the former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Ryo Takarabe, Japanese minister of marine, the two Japanese delegates.

Full support of President Hoover's policy of naval reduction in place of mere limitation is expected from the Japanese. A strong sentiment for reduction was expressed by the Japanese government in its reply to the British invitation to the parley.

The Japanese delegation is expected to be composed of some 70 persons, including a large staff of technical advisers.

While the Japanese will sail for the conference at approximately the same time as the American delegation, some doubts were expressed by American officials tonight that both delegations would sail on the same transatlantic liner. It was pointed out that it is not a customary practice for two delegations to a conferrence so large and important as the forthcoming naval parley to arrive together.

So far there has been no decision regarding the ship on which the American party, which is expected to include about 30 persons, will sail for London.

Button Survives Blast.

Wellsville, N. Y., Nov. 2.—A button from his jacket is all that could be found of Charles Mansfield, 40, and his auto after a load of nitroglycerin exploded. A hole 15 feet deep in the Portville-Port Allegany State road was mute evidence of the force of the explosion.

MAN, WOMAN HELD IN TWO RUM RAIDS

Prince Georges Pair Arrested and 60 Quarts of Alleged Liquor Seized.

BOTH POST $1,000 BONDS

Prince Georges County officers seized more than 60 quarts of alleged liquor and arrested Fred Michey and Anna Berry in two raids late Saturday night.

In the foray on Michey's place at Pumpkintown, near District Heights, Md., the police got 24 quarts of alleged liquor, a case of empty jars and 25 pint and half-pint bottles. Michey was taken before Justice of Peace J. C. Griffith and formally charged with illegal possession and sale of liquor. He was released on a $1,000 bond to appear in the police court at Hyattsville Wednesday.

Anna Berry, colored, was also charged with possession and sale of liquor when the police found 40 quarts of alleged liquor on her premises at Siarmont Heights. She was taken before Justice of the Peace Gore at Upper Marlboro, and released on a $1,000 bond to appear in the police court at Upper Marlboro Friday.

The raiding officers were Lieut. A. W. Hepburn and Frank Prince, of the Prince Georges police force, and Deputy Sheriff Harley Robinson.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MANY men have sought words to describe that "extra something" in Chesterfield.

It is there, undoubtedly... a "sparkle" of spicier aroma, an extra touch of flavor, a certain added "character," unmistakably Chesterfield's own.

No one word describes it—but only the most inexperienced smoker could fail to mark it. Between other cigarettes and Chesterfield, there is the clear-cut difference between just something to smoke and the cigarette that puts—

YORKTOWN REBUILDS OLD CUSTOMS HOUSE

Reopening of Duplicate of Ancient Structure Set for January 14.

MANY GIFTS RECEIVED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—Present plans of Comte de Grasse Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Yorktown call for the re-opening of the completely restored toms house in Yorktown on Jan- 14, the 142d anniversary of the th of the famous French admiral ose work made possible the York- wn victory of George Washington, the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce announced today.

When the customs house is opened next year it will be an entirely rebuilt structure, restored to its ancient appearance of more than 200 years ago through the generosity of Mrs. Arthur Kelly Evans, of Hot Springs, Va. The structure is the oldest customs house in America and at one time served not only the present Virginia ports, but New York as well. It was built in 1706, and the architects in rebuilding the ancient structure have been careful to make it as nearly as possible like it appeared when it was built originally.

Many Gifts Received.

Mrs. George Durbin Chanowith, regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution chapter to which it belongs, already is receiving many gifts to place in the building. One of these, which has just arrived, is a painting of the Comte De Grasse by Mrs. Eugene DeLand Saugstad, copied from a portrait of the admiral which hangs on the walls of the French Embassy in Washington.

Still another interesting relic is a plate, one of 300, used at a banquet given the Marquis de Lafayette on his visit to the United States in 1825. It is white, with blue, red and yellow trimmings of a most unusual design.

Still a third gift is an application for a pension to the French government, signed by Duportail, chief engineer for the earthworks surrounding Yorktown, and one of the two signatures of the Frenchman now in America. The second is attached to a similar document which is in the museum at Valley Forge. Both were presented by Mrs. William Sherman Walker, organization secretary general of the Memorial Continental Hall in Washington.

Third Building Restored.

None of the gifts are to be exhibited until the opening ceremonies to take place at Yorktown in January.

The customs house is the third building in Yorktown to be restored. The first was the work of the late Mrs. George Blow, who owned the Nelson House, and the second that of John D. Rockefeller, jr., who bought the Moore House, where Cornwallis actually signed the articles of surrender. The fate of the Nelson House is now a question much discussed in Yorktown, where it is hoped that the beautiful and very valuable and historic property will eventually become the property of the State.

Sugar and Jars Put Trio in Jail

No Liquor Found by Agents in Auto, but Occupants Are Under Arrest.

As a result of their curiosity concerning a car parked on the Brown Station road near Largo, Md., early yesterday, Emmet R. Warren, John B. Olger and Donald Harvey were lodged in the Upper Marlboro jail and are expected to be taken to Baltimore today to face Federal charges, the exact nature of which could not be ascertained last night.

The men were said to have been driving toward Upper Marlboro from Washington, when they passed the parked car. Apparently curious about the car's occupants, they turned around, drove alongside the car and flashed a light into it. The occupants proved to be three prohibition agents, who immediately searched the car of the investigating trio, and upon finding that it was loaded with sacks of sugar and empty jars, arrested the men and subsequently locked them in the Upper Marlboro jail.

What charges will be entered against the men was a matter of conjecture at Upper Marlboro, since it was stated that no liquor was found in the car. Prince Georges County officers declared the prohibition agents made no statements concerning the possible charges, but explained that agents often placed men in jail there without stating why they were being held.

District Autoists Sought in Mishap

Washington Car Is Said to Have Fled After Hitting Man in Fredericksburg.

An automobile bearing a District of Columbia license and occupied by a party of Negroes was sought by Washington police as the hit-and-run machine which knocked down and injured E. W. Stephens, of Fredericksburg, in that city yesterday afternoon. Guards were posted at the Highway Bridge and other entrances to Washington to watch for the car.

After striking the man, the car came to a stop a short distance away and its occupants alighted. According to the report, they quickly hopped into the machine and drove away in the direction of Washington. Stephens received cuts and bruises, according to attendants at the Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg, who reported his condition as not serious.

Petersburg Tobacco Market Is Stronger

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 3.—The Petersburg tobacco market was stronger last week than it has been at any time this season. The total sales of leaf were 316,000 pounds, of good quality, which brought an average price of 21 cents a pound. Tobacco men were encouraged by the increase in the quantity of better grades and they maintain that the outlook for one of the best markets ever experienced is very good.

Growers also are well pleased with the prices that are being paid on the Petersburg market and it is expected that many who have never brought their crop to the local market before will come here to sell their leaf.

It would cost you more than $1,500 to send a letter to each person who buys The Washington Post every day. To reach them with a large sized ad in this newspaper would cost you a fraction of a cent per person.

Wounded Student Recovering Fast

Man Charged With Shooting at College Party to Be Given Hearings.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 3.—Gus B. Wiltshire, jr., 22 years old, of Martinsburg, W. Va., second-year student at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, is recovering rapidly from bullet and assault wounds he received a week ago in a fight that started at Pleasant Valley filling station, several miles from Lynchburg. He is expected to leave the hospital during the week.

Garland W. Falwell, who is charged with shooting Wiltshire in Campbell County and shooting at him in the city, will be given preliminary trial in the municipal court here Thursday on the city charges and before Trial Justice Blankenship at Rustburg Friday on the State charges.

The car in which Wiltshire, another Washington and Lee student, and three girls from Randolph-Macon Woman's College escaped from the filling station is being held at police headquarters here. It is riddled in the rear, and seven shots, apparently from a revolver or a rifle, were stopped by the nonbreakable windshield.

LECTURER TO TELL OF CHEMISTS' WORK

Contributions of Science to Mankind Will Be Shown at University.

DR. NEGUS IS SPEAKER

University, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Dr. Sidney S. Negus, head of the chemistry department at the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, will be the guest lecturer to deliver the 1929 Alpha Chi Sigma lecture at the University of Virginia, under auspices of the Professional Chemical Fraternity. The lecture, open to the public, is designed to acquaint the average person with some of the many products upon which existence depends for which chemistry has been largely or wholly responsible.

Included in the program for this exposition of the contributions of modern chemistry to mankind will be the showing of models wearing chemical products, motion pictures of surgery, imitation wool, straw, horse hair, horn, ivory, leather, synthetic perfumes and extracts, skim milk products, photoelectric cell demonstrations and other developments of the research laboratories of electric companies; rubber-plating, catalysts used in the production of ammonia, synthetic alcohol, solid fats and sulphuric acid, some of the latest products of chemistry used in medicine and some of the frauds masquerading as products of chemists.

Dr. Negus, who has been chosen to present this annual feature for the first time at the university, is well known in scientific and educational circles. He is a graduate of Clark, Harvard and Johns Hopkins Universities, with scientific training in Germany. In 1927 he was chairman of the Virginia section of the American Chemical Society. The lecture is to be given the evening of November 6 at the University.

Election Is Held By Sunday Schools

Jefferson County Meeting Names New Officers at Charles Town.

Charles Town, W. Va., Nov. 3.—The Jefferson County Sunday school convention, held at Bakerton the past week elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, J. R. Ware, Summit Point; vice president, Dr. Henry T. McDonald, Harpers Ferry; secretary-treasurer, A. D. Kenamond, of Shepherdstown.

The following were elected superintendents of the children's division: Mary C. Engle, Charles Town; Mrs. H. F. Brenneman, Charles Town; Mrs. Adrian Folk, R. F. D., Martinsburg.

Miss Florence Shaw, Shepherdstown, was named superintendent of the young people's division; superintendent adult division, J. C. Newcomer, Harpers Ferry; superintendent administrative division, H. L. Snyder, Shephendstown; superintendent leadership training, the Rev. John W. W. Field, Charles Town.

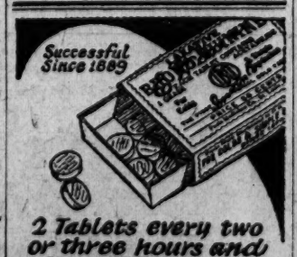

Engineer Ends Run With Leg Broken

West Virginia Man Refuses to Relinquish Throttle to Another.

Welch, W. Va., Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Engineer W. W. Cash, of the Virginian Railway yesterday piloted his electrical locomotive from Princeton, W. Va., to Elmore despite a broken leg received at Princeton, when he fell from the cab.

Although suffering excruciating pain, Cash refused to turn his engine over to another man. He said it was his duty to take his long train of coal cars to the Elmore yards because of his familiarity with the work. The distance is 35 miles.

Cash arrived in Elmore at 10 p. m., about an hour after pulling out of Princeton. He was taken immediately to the office of Dr. B. W. Szele, who set the leg.

SIX YOUNG FARMERS NAMED TO MEETING

Two Delegates and Judging Team Picked for National Conclave November 16.

RICH PRIZES OFFERED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Two delegates and a judging team of four will represent the Future Farmers of Virginia at the annual conclave of Future Farmers of America at Kansas City, November 16-22. Three of the live stock judging team members are from Giles County.

R. B. Storey, jr., of Courtland, and T. F. Kidd, jr., of Rural Retreat, will represent the Virginia Future Farmers as delegates, while the judging team will be composed of Eugene Bane, White Gate, Giles County; Ross Reynolds and Ernest Reynolds, of Newport, Giles County, and Howard Wright, of Liberty Hall High School, Washington County.

Storey and Kidd, along with Edward Burford, of Amherst County, have been recommended by their State organization for the American Farmer, or fourth degree. This is the highest honor that the national organization can confer on any member and is limited to one degree per 1,000 members in each State. All three have received the third, or State, degree and are eligible for the Kansas City Star $1,000 scholarship offered to the outstanding applicant for the American degree.

Members of the judging team were selected from among 275 contestants in livestock judging in Virginia. They will be accompanied by W. L. Hargis, instructor in agriculture for Giles County.

The chapters at Holland, in Nansemond County, and at Amherst, in Amherst County, have been selected to compete in the national contest for best chapter in the United States, with $1,000 in prizes offered by the Farm Journal of Philadelphia, Pa. More than 30 States are to be represented at the conclave.

Prof. Henry C. Groseclose, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, who is national executive secretary of the Future Farmers of America, will accompany the Old Dominion group to Kansas City.

Boy Kills Doctor In Rooming House

Bachelor, 45, Is Shot Dead at Charlotte, N.C.; Youth Claims Self-Defense.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Dr. L. V. Cloninger, 45, well-known physician of Statesville, was shot and killed by Frank W. Reid, 20, here last night in an upstairs room of a boarding house, shortly after the two had gone to the room from supper.

Police said that the youth fired three shots at close range into the physician. Dr. Cloninger died at a hospital.

"I've shot Doc," said the youth, as he closed the door of the room and handed the revolver to H. P. Lanier, proprietor of the boarding house. "He cursed me and I had to shoot in self-defense."

Reid was held without bond on a charge of murder. He refused to make a statement to police.

Dr. Cloninger, a bachelor, had been practicing medicine in Statesville for the past 20 years. He had been rooming here for the last two or three weeks, and Reid is said to have lived with him most of the time.

Reid is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burley Reid, of Stoney Point, but formerly of Statesville.

Mrs. Della Barnes Dies At Berkeley Springs

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Della M. Barnes, 47, wife of Tilden Barnes, died at her home here after a year's illness. She was a graduate of the high school here, a member of the Degree of Pocohontas, and past worthy matron of Berkeley Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star.

Surviving in addition to the husband are her mother, Mrs. Louis Dittmar, residing here; two sisters and one brother.

Former Dry Agent Fined For Driving While Drunk

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 3.—E. M. Rinker, private detective and former deputy Federal prohibition agent in this section, paid a fine of $102.60 when found guilty in Police Court here of driving his car while intoxicated.

He was arrested after his machine had collided with a parked car in the city suburbs.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

A. H. Woods presents "Passions of Jealousy," by Eugene Walter (based on the French of Louis Verneuil), staged by Guthrie McClintic.

THE CAST.

Maurice.....Melvin Douglas
Valerie.....Fay Bainter

Only two persons—and a telephone—are in the cast of this play, "Passions of Jealousy," at the Belasco. All three are worked hard, naturally; but with that the drama is more than mere novelty.

A studio in Paris is the scene and setting for the play—and with this and its title only a little imagination is needed to know that the story is another one of those sinister, sad, sordid, not to say sadistic stories of violent love.

Fay Bainter, the fair, bears the brunt of the burden; shifted every now and then to the broad shoulders of Melvyn Douglas. If any one thinks they have an easy time of it in the theater, one visit to the Belasco this week will dispel that mistaken idea. Miss Bainter and Mr. Douglas earn whatever salaries they draw. Further, there are times when the audience, too, should be cut in on the profits of the play—no child's play, by the bye. Tension does come over the footlights.

A duet of this kind, where pangs of jealousy are eating out the heart of a man and where supreme love actuates a woman to lies, and more lies, and intrigue, and what not, could ordinarily become very tiresome. The splendid suspense sinks once in awhile, but only at intervals—and then not for long. Miss Bainter and Mr. Douglas see to that.

The story has to do with an artist who weds a girl he knows has had other loves, and the return visions of these pastimes; one notably with an elder man palmed off as her guardian—an old man who meets a violent death—so they say.

For three acts, then, Miss Bainter and Mr. Douglas take this tragedy over the jumps—and the marvel of it all is how well they do it. Certainly it is all interesting if only from the standpoint of play construction, acting, stagecraft and direction. With an admirable blend of these there is, further, a sound story, but minus one note of comedy relief. Naturally, that is not the order of the play. One laugh and "Passions of Jealousy" would go up in smoke.

POLI'S

After some two seasons away from the Nation's Capital, the Four Marx Brothers, in their musical concoction, "Animal Crackers," descended en masse upon the city last night, taking charge of the premises known as Poli's—where they will remain—amidst gales of laughtere, for one solid week. In the very nature of things theatrical this is an event. The brothers come well armed with shell shocks for the rdisibilities.

By this time the Marx Brothers are established as classic in their own line—buffoonery. That is their business, to make people laugh. They are successful, beyond measure; so that it becomes a pleasant duty to report a strict adherence to the original formula of the brothers. They are the same old quartet, with not too much new stuff, and not too much of the old, but with a happy commingling of sure-fire comedy and some that wanes just a trifle.

As for "Animal Crackers" itself, it is not one of those contributions to the stage that depends entirely upon continuity—so that a running story must be told. In fact, whatever plot there happened to be at the outset was peremptorily lost along about the middle of the first act, if not sooner, and with this out of the way, the brothers got into action. There is an attempt to paint a society scene, with an atmosphere of hoyty-toyty Long Island, at its hoyty-toytiest. Some old beldame, with a lot of money, and a daughtre, is entertaining at her million-dollar manse—but what happens is that the Marx brothers really do the entertaining, and because of this all comes off happily. As atmosphere, the dowager and her daughter are great—and they are played, respectively, by Margaret Dumont—with the Marx brothers these many seasons—and Marjory May Martyn. Then, too, there are the usual assemblages of people, including a couple of newspaper reporters, and a financier from overseas; but all merely to furnish working material for the Marx boys.

Groucho Marx this time appears as an African lion hunter. Zeppo Marx is a captain's secretary, thereby introducing another note of comedy. Chico Marx is Emanual Ravelli and Harpo is the professor; which means just about that much when set down in type. The boys, being what they are, demand an audience, a piano for Chico, who does handsomely with "Watching the Clouds Roll By," and a harp for Harpo, who manages to wrench a tear or two by his rendition of "Mighty Lak a Rose." Gifted fellows these four Marx boys, and they prove it by the loose-jointed material and the manner of men and women who surround them. Essentially "Animal Crackers" is marked with the name of Marx, or, as they say at the race track, 'The Four Marx all the way." Why not? It's their show, and those who like comedy with a touch of slap-stick can never get enough of these fellows' antics.

Of course, there had to be a butler on that Long Island estate, and Julian Winter plays the part with finesse. Elinor Hunt is one of the featured beauties, and there are some sixteen Markert-Peterson girls who take care of the ensemble dances, going through their paces with prescribed precision.

A host of hands had to do with the making of "Animal Crackers," but only the Marx Brothers are responsible for its success.

Church Dedication Is Postponed.

A scheduled dedication of the Haven Methodist Episcopal Church, a new colored unit, at Fourteenth and B streets southeast, was postponed yesterday afternoon by Bishop William F. McDowell, resident bishop, because of the bad weather and incomplete plans. The service will probably be held in February.

GAYETY

Burlesque fans here have heard much about the talent possessed by Minnie Fitzgerald, but not until yesterday, when she led her "Social Maids" to the Gayety have they had the opportunity of seeing her in action. Miss Fitzgerald, billed as "Miss Personality," truly deserves this title.

The company supporting this little dancing star bristles with names of well-known burlesque performers, among whom are Arthur Rampe, that droll eccentric comedian; Ethel Spears, a little soubrette with a good voice; Ben Pierce, straight man, and Dot Fuller, a girl who has won a name for her clever work over the circuit.

Miss Fitzgerald rendered several vocal hits yesterday.

A lassie stepped out from the chorus and led the other fifteen girls through a drill, which was one of the bright spots of this show.

The musical numbers, staged by Lawrence Deas, were above the average.

The producers of this show have given the Mutual circuit a production among the leaders.

New Quiz Starts In Gastonia Death

Judge to Seek Solution of Woman Slaying After Grand Jury Fails.

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Judge Pender A. McElroy, of the North Carolina Supreme Court, will begin an investigation here tomorrow, sitting as a committing magistrate, of the mob slaying on September 14 of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, National Textile Workers Union member.

Forty witnesses, most of whom have been heard by a grand jury which refused to return indictments against any one in connection with the slaying, have been summoned to appear before Judge McElroy.

The woman was the victim of a mob which attacked a group of union members on their way from Bessemer City to a union meeting here. Several shots were fired by the mob, one of them striking Mrs. Wiggins and killing her instantly.

A coroner's jury held nine men for grand jury action in connection with the shooting, but the grand jury failed to return true bills against them.

The task of conducting a new investigation was assumed by Judge McElroy at the request of Gov. Gardner, made upon the grand jury's failure to return indictments.

THEY CAN NOT UNDERSTAND.

The fact that the United States and transatlantic nations are worlds apart in their conceptions of the way to peace is a discouraging obstacle to such moves as the proposed naval conference at London. The two hemispheres not only do not think alike, but are moving inevitably toward a clash of policies; and the pity of it is that well-meant efforts on both sides to force a peace agreement help to precipitate the collision.

Americans do not blame European nations for trying to make out of the League of Nations a means for preserving world peace. What Americans object to is the persistent attempt, by open and covert methods, to draw the United States under the authority of the league. European statesmen and legislators can not shake off the conviction that somehow the United States will be subjected to the will of the league.

Commander Kenworthy, member of Parliament, is regarded as fair-minded and well informed in his ideas concerning the adjustment of relations between Europe and America. Yet, in a recent letter to the London Times, he reveals the same inability to understand the American structure of government and American policy as is revealed throughout Europe. He confidently assumes that the United States will abandon its determination to maintain the security of its neutral commerce against aggression during foreign wars, and accept the dictation of the league whenever that organization decides that a nation is an aggressor and must be blockaded and boycotted. This complete surrender on the part of the United States is not regarded by Commander Kenworthy as a distant and uncertain step, but rather as an immediate event, to occur within the next few months.

"Certain decisions must be taken in the near future arising out of the prime minister's visit to America," remarks Commander Kenworthy, who thereupon proceeds to discuss what to him appears to be the logical consequence of the signing of the Kellogg treaty. Wars hereafter are to be "private" and "public." A "private" war is one begun by a nation in violation of its undertaking to renounce war as an instrument of policy. He cites as an example "a war caused by Turkey, seeking as part of her national policy to use war as an instrument to recover Syria." Such a "private" war would precipitate a "public" war, waged by the League of Nations against the aggressor. Commander Kenworthy assumes that the United States will soon make an engagement whereby, in such a situation, this country "would prevent her nationals from trading with the Turks."

It is the chronic belief of Europeans that peace is to be maintained by all nations combining to crush any movement that disturbs the status quo. Americans do not look upon peace as a lovely thing when it perpetuates oppression, smothers peoples entitled to their freedom, and compels all nations to wage war to maintain an unjust status quo. Who knows, if Turkey and France should come to blows, that Turkey will have "caused the war," and that the war will have been caused to recover Syria? Commander Kenworthy assumes that the League of Nations will know these things; that Turkey will be easily singled out as an aggressor; that "the states members of the league would be bound to stop supplies of all kinds to Turkey;" and that the United States is about to agree to accept the decision of the league as to the aggressor and to permit the league's naval forces to capture neutral commerce.

"The next step," writes Commander Kenworthy, "which can precede or follow an agreement for the limitation of naval armaments, would be a contract by the American Government not to munition an aggressor in an illegal war, which would also be a private war in the sense used prior to the signature of the pact. It would not be necessary, though desirable, for a simultaneous declaration to be made by the principal naval powers that they did not propose to exercise belligerent rights at sea except 'for the enforcement of international covenants.'"

The next step, in short, is for the United States to accept the order of a foreign authority directing it when and against whom to make war!

The abysmal and incorrigible ignorance that prevades Europe in regard to America gives rise to such crazy dreams as these as the foundation of a new order of world peace.

Is it any wonder that Americans are skeptical as to the outcome of international negotiations, when they perceive that the central and instinctive purpose of foreign negotiators is to induce the United States to surrender its independence? Americans know that attempts of this kind frustrate understandings and tend to bring about a collision between foreign nations and the United States.

BETTER FARM CONDITIONS.

As the harvest progresses considerable improvement in agricultural conditions is apparent. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that most farm products are in relatively stronger statistical positions than they occupied last year. Prices of nearly all groups of farm commodities, with the exception of meat, have increased. An index of 30 crops shows that prices received this harvest are 141 per cent of similar prices for the five-year period preceding outbreak of the World War. The bureau estimates that prices paid by farmers for commodities they use are 154 per cent of what they were from 1909 to 1914, giving farm products a purchasing power of 92 at present as compared with 100 for the prewar period.

Lower production and higher prices are the two reasons assigned for this improvement. It would be interesting to know to what extent activities of the Federal Farm Board are reflected in these gains. The board did not begin functioning until the farming season was well under way, and it appears that most of the gains made up to September must be ascribed to weather conditions which prevented surplus production. However, there can be no doubt that the position of the farmer has been strengthened by the financial support and the psychological stimulus furnished by the board.

Another year will be necessary to make the effect of the Farm Board's program on agriculture clearly distinguishable. There was no decrease in the acreage harvested this year, but the total output of principal food and feed crops was considerably less than in 1928. What will happen if the same, or a larger acreage, is planted next year and the yield is bounteous? The Farm Board's reaction to all sorts of conditions must be taken into consideration before its ultimate worth to the country can be satisfactorily estimated.

It is encouraging to find agriculture gradually improving its situation through internal efforts. Whatever credit is finally accorded, the Farm Board must take into consideration the steady but slow progress that was being made without its assistance. With the aid of the Farm Board this recovery should be hastened. There is every indication that agriculture will regain its former place in the economic system, if excessive production can be curtailed and the farmers are not led into an economic trap by politicians who pretend to be their friends.

THE COMMUNITY CHEST.

The current report of the Community Chest testifies to the efficiency with which that organization has handled the charitable contributions of the city. Subscriptions for the year totaled $1,487,000, of which, to date, $1,311,000, or 88 per cent, has been collected. Chest officials confidently expect to collect all of the balance before the close of the year. Thus far, the chest's operating expenses have totaled $85,000, or 5.7 per cent of the total passing through its hands. This figure may be compared with the average cost of between 15 and 20 per cent under the old hit-and-miss method of solicitation.

With such a record behind it, the Community Chest for 1930 will get under way to a flying start. The solicitation campaign for funds will be held from January 27 to February 5, and the organization is confident that the returns will at least equal, and probably exceed those of last year. Washington is well pleased with the chest system. The District is fully converted to the business-like collection and management of charity funds. The forthcoming campaign will be liberally supported.

CONCILIATION COURTS.

In New York City an experiment is being tried of importance in connection with the growing congestion of court dockets and the steadily mounting cost of litigation. Justice Edgar Lauer, of the municipal court, has been assigned to sit for 30 days in a conciliation court, the function of which is to adjust commercial disputes before they have been brought to trial. The first day of the new court found 25 cases on the docket. When called, four answered that settlement had been reached out of court, four were settled quickly by the justice, and the balance were marked down for trial at a later date. The amount of payment made in the four cases that were settled was little more than the amount it would have cost to settle one if carried through the regular legal procedure. In addition, the calling of four juries was avoided and the time of two justices for two days was saved.

Conciliation represents the civilized method of adjusting disputes. There are times, of course, when resort to processes of law can not be avoided, but it is generally realized that far too many cases are carried into court, where they drag along for months and years, and where settlement invariably is followed by animosity. The conciliation court idea represents an official attempt to bring disputants together for the amicable adjustment of their difficulties. No compulsion is brought to bear, and no harm is done in case a mutually satisfactory settlement is not reached.

The functioning of the conciliation court will bear watching. If it is successful in New York, it should be successful elsewhere, not only in connection with matters involving commercial misunderstandings, but also in connection with all civil disputes.

FOR CHEAPER RADIUM.

A large percentage of the world's radium supply was produced in the United States until 1924. The industry was ruined by reports that a vast deposit of radium-bearing ores had been discovered in the Belgian Congo. It was feared that these ores would bring the price down to a point where production in this country would be no longer profitable. But the medical profession is still paying approximately $70,000 per gram for radium. Apparently the American producers were frightened out of the business by a false alarm.

Representative Kelly, of Pennsylvania, believes that radium can be manufactured here for $35,000 per gram. He has prepared a bill asking Congress to authorize the Bureau of Mines to manufacture one gram of this precious curative to demonstrate to private interests that its production can be made profitable. The bill calls for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of equipment, ores and material. The radium thus manufactured would be turned over to the Veterans' Bureau for use in its hospitals.

A supply of carnotite ore, believed to be inexhaustible, is available in Utah for radium manufacture. It requires 600 tons of this ore and 600 tons of chemicals to produce a thimbleful of radium. Hope that resumption of the industry in this country will materially reduce the price of radium is based to some extent on utilization of by-products. If the Bureau of Mines demonstrates how these by-products can be handled, it seems probable that the industry would take root again here.

Enactment of the Kelly bill would not put the Government in the radium business; nor would it set a precedent. If Congress finds that there is in this measure a possibility of aiding the fight against cancer, it will no doubt act favorably on the bill.

ANOTHER NICARAGUAN INVASION

By OLIVER McKEE, JR.
In the Boston Transcript.

The Army Engineer Corps has just taken over one of the most responsible peace-time assignments ever placed upon that organization. A carefully selected group of officers and men has gone to Nicaragua to make a survey of the proposed Nicaragua Canal, the construction of which may prove to be one of the major achievements of the Hoover Administration. Several years will be required for the survey, and upon the report of the Army engineers may largely depend the final decision of the American Government.

A special battalion of engineers is due to begin its work this month in Nicaragua. All the officers and men have been selected for their special fitness for the work contemplated. The engineer battalion will receive special equipment putting into application the lessons learned from surveys in Panama and elsewhere. The Army Medical Corps will take care of the health of the men, Maj. Paul R. Hawley having been designated as surgeon for the expedition. The health problem is one of the most serious to be overcome, for the surveyors will work in a tropical region, far from the comforts and conveniences of civilization. Camps will be made at various points in a tropical wilderness, full of insects, and the medical officers will have a chance to apply all the scientific knowledge of tropical medicine that has been accumulated since the days of Gorgas.

The resolution passed by Congress and approved by the President, directs the making of a survey to obtain additional information respecting the most practicable route for an interoceanic canal across the republic of Nicaragua, estimates as to the cost of construction and its maintenance, and the cost of acquiring all private rights, properties, privileges and franchises affected by the canal route. A survey of this route was made about 30 years ago, but canal costs have increased since then, and there have been many changes in engineering methods. A new survey to bring the data up to date, is imperatively needed.

The Army engineers will not go to Nicaragua as pioneers. Four centuries ago, in 1529, Capt. Diego Machuca explored the eastern outlet of Lake Nicaragua, to which he gave the name Nicaro, in honor of the Indian chief. The city of Granada was established by order of King Charles V, and up until 1637 a thriving trade was carried on between this settlement and Spain, Cuba and South America. After 1637, however, commerce dwindled and died. The rapids placed too heavy an obstacle in the way of traders, and they found the Desaguadero River, now the San Juan, too shallow.

In 1779, the King of Spain dispatched another expedition to investigate the possibilities of interoceanic transportation. Manuel Galestreo, who headed the expedition, rendered a discouraging report to his king. Among other things, he pointed out that the lake was 134 feet higher than the Pacific. The party contained, however, an English civilian, and the Englishman stoutly argued that the link with the Pacific was practicable. War between Spain and England broke out about this time, causing the project for the time being to be forgotten. The British under Admiral Horatio Nelson captured Granada, and a British garrison remained to hold the city. The climate exacted its toll of death, and the British later abandoned their Central American Gibraltar. The same climatic obstacles face the Army engineers today, but they have one big advantage their predecessors did not enjoy—preventive medicine.

ROAD-MINDED CONGO.

An American manufacturer of automobiles cables the news that wonderful highways are being built in the Congo in the center of Africa, states the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Native chiefs have been presented with handsome new automobiles. They found themselves equipped to travel and no way to go. Their subjects were set to work to building roads. Then competition started. Each chief wanted to be the speed king of the district and the roads in each region had to be made fit for speeding. The result is that a motorist can travel for miles on ultra-modern highways in darkest Africa and his only danger is in traffic problems with speeding chiefs at the wheel.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Autumn tinted them gold and red
Ere the north wind came,
And now they are fluttering overhead
Like matches in flame.

The richest of trees soon poor will be
As it drops asleep;
The fortune the eye has danced to see
Was not given to keep.

The leaves of silver and burning gold
And the robin's song,
Like treasures man greedily tries to hold
To the earth belong.

How like the leaves of the maple tree
Do our fortunes fall,
Cometh the long, long sleep, and we Must scatter them all.

When the Colt Breaks the Guiding Reins, He Next Breaks His Neck.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"THE voice of the people," said the ancients, "is the voice of God."

That isn't true; but public opinion does serve as a conscience for the individual and encourages him to be decent.

The individualist is a survival of jungle days. There is no place in civilization for an Ishmaelite.

For many ages men have curbed their natural impulses to win the approval of mass opinion, and this long-continued practice has developed an instinct.

Now the ordinary individual adjusts himself to the standards of his environment without a struggle, and the habit of depending on public opinion for moral support has lessened man's ability to stand alone.

A building that is propped will fall when the prop is removed. Muscles grow soft in idleness. And a child that is obedient merely to escape punishment will refuse to obey the moment the threat of punishment is removed.

The same natural law governs the conduct of men. Having long depended on public opinion to keep them in paths of righteousness, they have lost the ability to go straight without guidance, and begin to wander afield the moment their fear of public opinion is overcome.

Observe, for example, what class it is that preserves the old standards of virtue and decency. The respectable class is the middle class.

This is true in all times and places, for the middle class alone needs the support of public opinion.

The lower class has lost hope and thumbs its nose at popular standards of righteousness because it has neither reputation nor place to lose.

The upper class scorns majority standards of virtue because its purse is full and it need not curry favor.

Those who "don't care what people think of them" have fallen so low or climbed so high that mass opinion can not harm them.

Only the middle class minds its p's and q's, happily kept decent by its need of popular approval.

The rich, beyond the reach of hurtful criticism, are left without a prop and usually are too weak to stand alone in righteousness.

Being too rich to dread critics, they feel above all law. They scorn statutes and customs. They have no regard for sex morality. They get drunk without shame. They even dodge their debts, so that tradesmen consider them the poorest pay in Christendom.

Not all rich are evil. That is absurd. But only the strong remain decent in spite of riches; and every individual lifted by wealth above the need of popular approval is to some extent scornful of laws and customs that govern ordinary people.

The rich man enters the kingdom with difficulty because he feels no need of popular approval.

THE ONCE OVER
By H. I. PHILLIPS

FOOTBALL LEXICON.

Stadium—A concrete inclosure entirely surrounded by empty bottles.

Bowl—Same as stadium except more of the fans bring analyzed stuff.

Portal—A point farthest away from the point at which you are standing when you look at your ticket.

Gridiron—The only part of a football plant where training rules are not broken.

Grid classic—Usually the dullest game of the season.

Coveted coupon—A football ticket you got from a speculator who gives some old grad everything he gets above $20 for it.

Cheer leader—A boy who wears white flannels in November.

Referee—An old-time football player who gets $300 per afternoon.

Umpire—Similar to a referee except that his knickers are baggier.

Linesmen—Two other fellows who get in for nothing.

Coach—A good fellow when he has it.

Assistant coaches—Fellows who know what's wrong with the team but can't say so except in confidence, you understand.

Goal posts—Quaint old-fashioned barriers, formerly of some significance, but now retained as keepsakes or something.

Fumble—Once a costly mistake but now a mere oversight considered all in good fun.

Gay grad—Any spectator with a feather in his cap and a flask on his hip.

Frenzied fans—Quite frequently a couple of fellows arguing over the rediscount rate during an 80-yard run.

Purple hills—Something the radio announcers and sports writers always see whether they exist or not.

Azure skies—Something that always figures in Graham McNamee's opening remarks.

Glorious setting—Vast acres of drab country surrounding a football stadium. There is usually a soap works a little to the east and a shabbily kept cemetery, four filling stations and some tenement houses off to the west.

Souvenir program—A form of grand larceny that seems all right as long as the college gets the rake-off.

Official parking space—See above.

Moral victory—Home team, 0; opponents, 36.

Grueling contest—Any ordinary game.

Football epic—That's a good term, too.

Caravan—Ten or twelve automobiles stalled in traffic.

Touchdown—The only interesting thing left in football by the rules committee.

Touchback—Oh, never mind asking so many questions.

Safety—We've heard it explained, but can't remember.

All-American material—Any youth with a name like Ludlowicz, Rosenblatz or Owanabuzzek.

Eel, snake, rabbit, bullet—Nicknames given to any back who can handle his feet well.

IMA DODO LUCKY FOR ONCE.

Brokers' loans dropped more than a billion dollars last week. "Gee!" said Ima Dodo today, "I'm glad I didn't buy any of those."

The rediscount rate is down, too. It now looks like a good purchase.

TRAFFIC PLANS, MISLEADING SIGNS, &C.

"It is obvious to anybody who has ever motored to a football game that there must be some reason for all the bad handling of traffic. Without a vast expenditure of effort no such confusion would be possible. It would be impossible to locate parking spaces so far from the stadium and assign such roundabout routes without a deliberate effort. It is my conclusion that in 82 university towns the police are bribed to create chaos, in 34 the confusion is due to drunken sign painters and in 12 other towns nobody seems to care."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Good Citizenship Ought to Bring About a Settlement of the Army-Navy Football Squabble—"Get Together!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That the Mule and the Goat, proverbially stubborn and pugnacious, should symbolize and stimulate student bodies of the military and naval academies in physical conflict on the football field is properly picturesque and inspiring.

But for the pedagogic heads of those academies to emulate the goat and the mule in reference to what rules should govern the actual football conflict is a horse, or, that is to say, a goat and a mule of another color.

Necessarily officers of the military establishment may within limits be more arbitrary than those of the civil establishment. But the former as well as the latter fall short of their proper functions in relation to the body politic when they fail to entertain the spirit of compromise.

Which brings us to the conclusion that in their mule-and-goat, no-compromise attitude the Naval Academy and Military Academy heads are setting a bad example to the student body. Citizenship—good citizenship—should surely be fundamental in the curriculum of our military service schools. And good citizenship often calls for judicious compromise in the straightening out of conflicting interests between groups of men as well as between man and man and between governments.

In view of which it is to be hoped that not only in fairness to the football fans of their country but in order to set the boys an effective example of American citizenship in a tolerant mood, the proper authorities will join in a solution of the Army-Navy athletics problem within at least a season or so. WM. TIPTON TALBOTT.

British Correspondent Urges United States to Maintain a Great Navy As Assurance of Peace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For both sentimental and logical reasons, I value the security of your great and free republic second only to that of Great Britain.

The United States of America is, at this date, the only naval power in the world that could afford to build a large number of battleships. Competitive building by other countries would be impossible, for lack of the necessary funds. America would thus possess an invincible Navy, an impregnable defense against any possible combination of hostile attacking fleets.

This opportunity should not be allowed to pass.

The United States Navy, pledged and consecrated to defense alone, should be bound by no limits.

A day may come when a disarmed and unshielded America will be compelled to comply with the demands of an alliance of hostile powers, whose combined fleets will overwhelmingly outnumber and outclass her reduced and limited Navy.

The millennium has not arrived. The European situation is volcanic. A few shots fired in the streets—a government overthrown—and war might come in a day, or an hour.

Reporters Should Have Raised Question Whether Purchase of Liquor Is Prohibited.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The three reporters on the Washington Times who were sentenced to 45 days' imprisonment for contempt of court for refusal to tell the grand jury the names and addresses of the bootleggers from whom they purchased liquor missed a trick. They could have pleaded that their testimony would have tended to incriminate them for a violation of that part of title 2, section 6, of the Volstead act which reads: "No one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit." Penalties are provided in the omnibus clause in section 29.

Since recent court decisions it is a moot question whether the Volstead act makes purchasing liquor a criminal act. But the above quoted language of the Volstead act seems about as clear as it is possible to make English.

At all events, if these reporters had made this plea and the court had been of the opinion that to purchase liquor is illegal under the Volstead act, they would not have been required to testify, and consequently could not have been in contempt for refusal to testify. It may not be too late to reopen this question. Moreover, it provides a way to settle a point which is important for the Nation in other respects.

Why Not Put Canadian Mounted Police on the Washington Force?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent articles in The Sunday Post anent the Canadian Mounties and their success in running down criminals are fine. They are certainly wonderful fellows. Could you not suggest through the columns of The Post that this city import a few Mounties to aid in striking terror to would-be evil doers? They would probably succeed better than the city and Government detectives have done in tracing criminals so far. Each inspector or detective who may happen to come upon a bit of evidence is told either "to forget it" by his superior or else to look out for his life. These Canadian Mounties have not been afflicted with such superiors and would, therefore, probably "get their man," even in Washington. A READER.

Millions Made During Decline in Stocks by Those Who Sold.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whenever there is a decline in the stock market the newspapers make a great to-do about the millions of dollars lost by those who had bought stocks. Why do they not comment on those who were wise enough to have sold stocks and thereby have reaped the benefit of the decline by covering their short sales at immense profit? While it is true that during a decline millions of dollars are lost by those who buy stocks, it is also true that millions of dollars are made by those who sell short and cover during the decline.

Panama Envoy And Wife Hold Reception-Fete

Independence of Republic Observed at Function in Legation.

THE social season has indeed begun, and following close on the large and brilliant reception given by the Turkish Ambassador came the equally brilliant reception given yesterday afternoon by the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, in celebration of the anniversary of the independence of the Republic of Panama.

The Minister and Senora de Alfaro, always charming hosts, received in one of the drawing rooms of the legation, which was decorated with a profusion of autumn leaves and chrysanthemums. The hostess wore an afternoon gown of pale beige lace over peach-colored chiffon, fashioned on long, draped lines.

In the other drawing rooms, which were decorated with chrysanthemums and roses, one found congenial groups of diplomats, officials and a few from the residential circle. The number of the unofficial folk was limited to rather intimate friends of the Minister and Senora de Alfaro to prevent the possibility of overcrowding, a problem faced by hostesses at all such entertainments in Washington.

In the dining room where others chatted over their teacups, a number of ladies presided in turn at the tea table and helped welcome the guests. These were Senora de Davila, wife of the Chilean Ambassador; Mme. Prochnik, wife of the Minister of Austria; Mme. Radeff, wife of the Bulgarian Minister, and Senora de Diez de Medina, wife of the Minister of Bolivia, from the Diplomatic Corps; Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor; Mrs. Wilbur Carr, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State; Mme. Chevalier, Legation; Mme. Piza, wife of the First Legation; Mme. Piza, wife of the first Secretary of the Costa Rican Legation; Mrs. Chase Kennedy, wife of Brig. Gen. Kennedy; Mrs. Peter Drury, Mrs. Burt New, Mrs. John Hamilton, Mrs. Roy Hebert, Mrs. Edward Conger and Mrs. J. A. Arias.

Distinguished Guests Attend Reception.

Dr. and Mrs. Victor Alfaro, son and daughter-in-law of Minister and Senora de Alfaro, while not in the receiving line, were nearby throughout the afternoon. Mrs. Alfaro wore a charming frock of deep dahlia crepe with a close fitting hat to match.

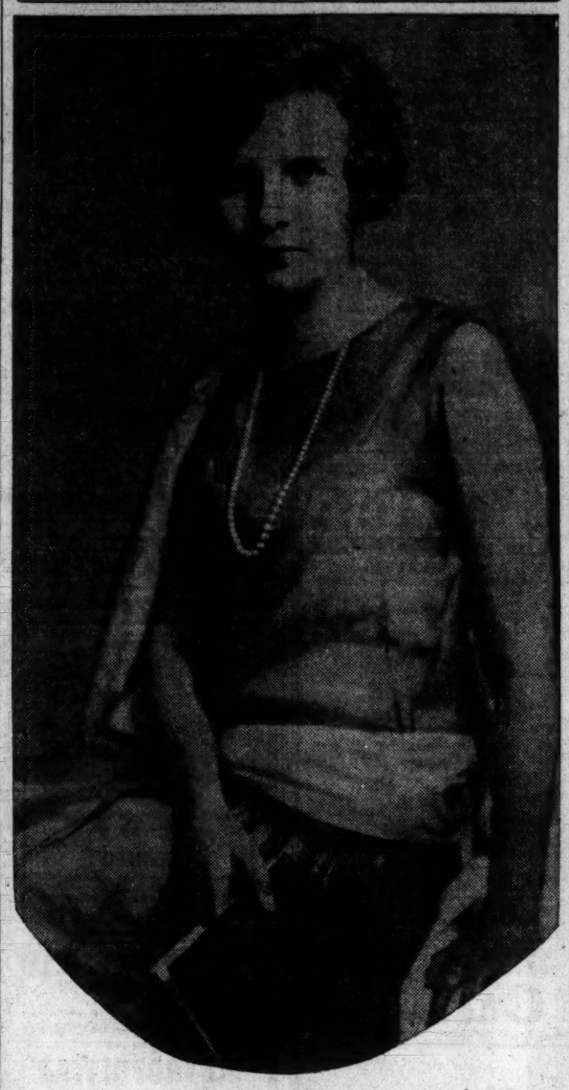

Others seen at the reception were the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Tellez; the Brazilian Ambassador, Senor S. Gurgel do Amaral, who greeted many for the first time this season; the Chilean Ambassador, Senor Don Carlos Davila, chatted to one and another, while Senora de Davila, in a smart gown of black and scarlet, with a turban to match, poured tea.

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi were holding a little reception on the steps of the legation, finding it hard to make their way through the many persons gathered just inside the entrance. Maj. Casajus, Military Attache of the Spanish Embassy, represented his embassy at the gathering. The Turkish Ambassador and the Persian Minister were seen in one of the drawing rooms, apparently in an animated discussion. The Minister of Uruguay and Mrs. Varela, recently returned from Europe, were also among the many diplomats and officials.

Others seen during the afternoon were Dr. L. S. Rowe, Commissioner

Rare Felines And Dogs Are Show Entries

Princess de Ligne Signs Up Mac for Contest at L'Aiglon.

The Princess de Ligne, wife of the Ambassador of Belgium, has entered her Scottish terrior, Mac, in the combined dog and cat show to be given Monday and Tuesday, November 18 and 19, at L'Aiglon, under auspices of the Washington Cat Club. Mac has been sent to Silver Spring, Md., to be conditioned for the show.

Mrs. J. W. Ridenour has entered her Cuban Pomeranian cat, an unusually rare and beautiful animal, in the show, and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell has entered Alexander, a short-haired gray tabby of unusual size and winner of many ribbons. Miss Helen Thompson has entered a Siamese cat and Mrs. Charles Haywood Cecil has entered a short-haired cat in the feline department of the show.

Approximately 200 dogs and as many or more cats are expected to be entered before the entries close next Friday night. This will be Washington's first experience with a combined cat and dog show and the combination is attracting considerable attention.

Mrs. William P. MacCracken, wife of the former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation, has returned to the Wardman Park Hotel from an extended Southern trip.

Mrs. Blaise de Sibour will preside at the tea table this afternoon when Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson entertains for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reed. The tea will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, at 1331 Eighteenth street. Mr. Reed, until recently First Secretary of the United States Embassy in Brussels, is now on his way to Cuba, having been transferred to the embassy at Havanna. Mrs. Reed was formerly Miss Caroline Story. Mrs. Davidson was one of her bridesmaids when the former Miss Betty Hanna was married to Mr. Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. Snow Will Entertain Kin.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Snow, jr., will have as their guest for a week or more the latter's sister, Mrs. Edward Garrett Riddick, of Memphis, Tenn., who will arrive today.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mann have moved into the house of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac T. Mann, who have placed it at the disposal of the former for the winter. Mrs. Isaac Mann will go to Denver next month to visit her daughter, Mrs. Churchill Owen, and Mr. Mann will go to Florida. Later in the season Mrs. Mann will go abroad.

The League of Republican Women will hold its monthly meeting at the Washington Club this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harriman, president, will preside. The speaker will be Representative Frank Crother, of New York. Mrs. Wilbur Turner will be the hostess for the tea following the meeting. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Tasker Oddie, wife of the senator from Nebraska, and Mrs. George Pritchard.

DELMAN SWAYS THE MODE

SLIPPERS by Delman

For Brilliant Formal Occasions

Blithesomely tripping in and out of luxurious limousines, across bright theater lobbies, along gleaming dance floors—wherever slender, aristocratic Delman Slippers go—admiring eyes are sure to follow.

New Delman successes, accented by the high-heel silhouette, are presented in glowing Du Barry brocades, silky crepes interwoven with threads of silver or gold, jewel-like Beauvais, regal moires and bright formal leathers.

And, of course, every tiny detail of every lovely Delman slipper is moulded and stitched by hand.

Mrs. Taft Concels Her At-Home Reception.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the Chief Justic, will not observe her usual Monday at-home this afternoon.

The Turkish Ambassador, Ahmed Mouhtar Bey, will be the ranking guest at the dinner Commander and Mrs. Norman Murray Smith will give this evening at the Willard. There will be fourteen guests. Later the party will go to the theater.

Mrs. Lehlbach, wife of Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach, has gone to her home in New Jersey. She will return to Washington November 15.

Representative and Mrs. William R. Eaton have as their guest at the Wardman Park Hotel the latter's niece, Mrs. Vivienne Barkalow Breckenridge.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis Lehr, who are spending several weeks at White Sulphur Springs, on their return to Washington will occupy the apartment they have taken at the corner of Sixteenth and H streets, having sold their house on Thirtieth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Denegre are at the Ambassador, in New York, for a few weeks.

Members of the debutante committee of the Victory Ball to be held on Thursday at the Astor in New York motored to Fort Hamilton to extend to Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, a special invitation to attend the ball. The party left in several gayly decorated cars, accompanied by a motor police escort.

Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Division, had arranged for the reception of the debutantes at the division headquarters. The invitation was presented to Gen. Summerall on behalf of the ball committee by Miss Lillian Hillyard Neilson. Gen. Drum also received an invitation to act as one of the reviewing officers for the military ceremonies at the ball.

The committee remained to watch the reproduction of the Battle of Exermont, in the Meuse-Argonne, which was staged by the First Division for its veterans at their annual reunion at the fort.

Mrs. Stanley Carr is at the Weylin Hotel in New York for a few days, visiting her mother, Mrs. Stuart Hanna.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks 3d are at the Barclay in New York.

Mrs. J. Harry Covington has joined Mrs. Adam A. Ross, of Ardmore, Pa., at that hotel for a few days.

Pen Women to Give Diplomatic Tea Today.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson will head the receiving line at the diplomatic tea to be given this afternoon at the Chevy Chase Club by the Chevy Chase branch of the League of American Pen Women. In addition to the branch officers she will be assisted by the national president, Mrs. Clarence M. Busch, and the Maryland vice president, Mrs. Edward J. Croker. Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, organizer of the Chevy Chase Branch Junior Pen Women, will receive with the junior president, Miss Dorothy M. Nicholson.

A musical program will be presented by local artists, including Fannie Shreve Heartsill, soprano, who will give a song cycle, with Christine Chindblom, wife of Representative Chindblom, of Illinois, as accompanist. Sophocles T. Papas will offer works of Schubert and some of his own compositions on the Spanish guitar. Evelyn Monico Papas will play the piano.

Additional guests who have accepted are the Mexican Ambassador and Mme. Teliez, the Charge d'Affaires of Paraguay, M. Tadio Ynsfran; the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Kiep, Miss Jessie Dell, Col. and Mrs. Alexander Powell and Miss Powell, the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. John Tolar Stockwell, of Houston, Tex.; Maj. A benefit card party will be given by Our Flag Chapter, D. A. R., at the Carlton Monday afternoon, November 18, at 2 o'clock. Among the patronesses are Mrs. David D. Caldwell, State regent.

Mrs. Frank A. Biberstein, jr., president of the Immaculata Seminary Alumnae Association, will entertain the Washington Chapter of the alumnae at bridge following their business meeting this evening in her home on Seaton place.

Miss Janet Richards at her first talk on public questions this morning will dwell on "The Outstanding Developments in the World's Work in the Past Eight Months" with especial mention of the ups and downs of the Hoover administration and the social side of MacDonald's visit to Washington. This talk will be given at the Masonic Temple at Thirteenth street and New York avenue northwest at 10:30 o'clock.

IT IS UP-ON-LEGS
...just one of its fourteen superiorities

It's nice when you clean your refrigerator to be able to clean all around and under it. With the cabinet up-on-legs, a mop will glide under and keep your linoleum perfectly sanitary, spotless . . . with least effort on your part.

More than 350,000 homes are enjoying the economy and health-guarding service of General Electric Refrigerators . . . and not one owner has spent a dollar for repairs or service.

Fourteen Big Advantages

—an hermetically sealed, dust-proof mechanism
—an easily accessible freezing regulator
—a mechanism that requires no oiling
—all troublesome machinery eliminated
—a new standard of quiet operation
—mounted on legs with broom-room underneath
—no installation problem whatever
—a sanitary, porcelain chilling chamber
—the entire mechanism mounted on top —maximum food storage space in the cabinet
—absolutely no radio interference
—an appreciably lower cost of operation
—a radically improved all-steel cabinet
—an unqualified two-year service guarantee

Tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening from 9 to 10, Eastern Standard Time, over the NBC network of 42 stations.

Another disturbance has moved inland from the north Pacific over southeastern Alaska, Cordova, 29.80 inches, and pressure is falling quite rapidly southeastward over British Columbia and Alberta. An area of high pressure of great magnitude is spreading eastward and southeastward, with center over Wyoming, Cheyenne, 30.62 inches, and pressure remains high in the vicinity of Bermuda, Hamilton, 30.22 inches. This pressure distribution has been attended by rains within the last 24 hours in the Atlantic and east gulf States, and by local rains or snows in Colorado, Wyoming, the northern plains States, and the Lake Superior region. The rainfall was heavy in portions of North Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, Montgomery reporting a 12-hour rainfall of 2.58 inches. The temperature has fallen in the Atlantic States, the Appalachian region, and from the Rocky Mountain region eastward to the upper Mississippi Valley, while it has risen in southern Texas and along the Pacific Coast.

Rain will likely continue Monday in portions of the Atlantic States and the lower lake region. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will be lower Monday and Monday night quite generally in the Washington forecast district.

Princess in Russ Romance Is Dead

Her Marriage to Grand Duke Paul Shook Imperial Society in 1902.

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Olga Princess Paley, whose morganatic marriage to the late Grand Duke Paul of Russia, the youngest uncle of the last czar, was a romance which shook imperial society in 1902, died here today at the age of 63 years.

The princess divorced her first husband, a Russian engineer, to marry the grand duke, and he on his part gave up his army rank and went into temporary exile for defying the wishes of the czar. He was pardoned and permitted to bring his bride to St. Petersburg and was reinstated to his rank in the army.

The princess never was allowed to sit at the "high table" at the state dinners of the empire, but was recognized as a member of the Romanoff family and lived at the winter palace. She fled with her two daughters from Russia in 1919, but the grand duke remained and was executed by the Soviet government on January 28, 1919.

Short Skirts Prove Boon To Hosiery Manufacturers

$43,000,000 Increase in Value of Mills' Output Noted From 1925 to 1927; Most of Product Now Is Made of Silk.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—When fashion decreed short skirts for the well-dressed woman it paved the way for an annual average increase of more than $43,000,000 in the value of full-fashioned hosiery production in this country, according to a survey made under the direction of the industrial research department of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania.

The survey, made public today, reveals that from 1925 to 1928 production of full-fashioned hosiery for women in the United States increased from approximately 12,300,000 dozen pairs to more than 22,250,000 dozen pairs, and that the value of the output increased from about $140,600,000 in 1925 to about $227,400,000 in 1927, the last year in which statistics on the value of the product were obtained.

In 1919 there were 92 mills manufacturing women's full-fashioned hosiery in this country and the year's production was 6,823,934 dozen pairs. In 1928, there were 235 mills listed with an estimated output for the year of 22,254,520 dozen pairs.

In 1919, of all the women's full-fashioned hosiery manufactured 46.5 per cent was made entirely of cotton, while only 14.8 per cent was all natural silk. In 1928 the survey showed that 94.9 per cent was of "all silk" and of "all silk with lisle or cotton," while only .56 per cent was all cotton.

England-Canada Air Line Planned

Negotiations Under Way for Passenger Service Over Atlantic.

London, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Negotiations for establishment of regular air service between the British Isles and Canada, utilizing flying boats which would make the trip from London with stop-overs in Scotland, Ireland and Greenland are being conducted between the Canadian Transport Co. and Imperial Airways, it was stated here today at Croydon Airport.

Both the British and Canadian governments are said to be interested in the project. Designs and tenders for construction of a number of flying boats to be used in the service have already been submitted to the British Air Ministry. These craft are each to be driven by six Rolls-Royce engines, developing a total of 3,000 horsepower and capable of carrying 50 passengers on nonstop flights of a thousand miles.

Passenger Liner Runs Into Tanker

No One Is Injured in Crash in Delaware River; One Ship Is Beached.

Chester, Pa., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Ericsson Line passenger steamship John Cadwalader and the British molasses tanker Athelfoam were in collision in the Delaware River here today in a dense fog. Both were damaged, but no one was injured.

The Cadwalader, a 1,500-ton ship which plies between Baltimore and Philadelphia, had stopped here on the northbound voyage to discharge and take on passengers and freight. Nosing slowly out into the blanket of fog the vessel crashed broadside into the Athelfoam, staving in the tanker's plates and opening a gaping hole through which the water poured.

So rapidly did the Athelfoam fill that Capt. R. C. Church headed full speed for Chester Island, where he beached the tanker and sent out a call for tugs.

If you play bridge, and who doesn't? you can vastly improve your game by following the daily article on this fascinating pastime written by Milton C. Work, its foremost exponent.

Your real boss ...whose name is X

X, symbolic of the powerful external forces that control modern business, can make or break your own career!

When X commands, "Do this"—you must do it or pay the penalty!

There's no appeal! What X decrees is final—for X, that ruthless giant composed of the external forces that dominate your business, is a superboss with no one to overrule him!

Even as you read this, the X forces are at work. They are building up new markets and tearing down old ones. They are writing new rules of credit and canceling old limitations. They are establishing new production methods and scrapping millions of dollars worth of obsolete machinery. They are creating important executive jobs for alert men—"retiring" men with closed minds!

They are a dangerous foe to the man who ignores them—but a guide to fortune for the man who understands them!

To cope with the X forces of business today keen vigilance is needed . . . and broad information . . . and intelligent co-operation.

Business is meeting these needs with group effort and interchange of information. To this end the United States Chamber of Commerce—largest business organization in the world—publishes Nation's Business.

And to give alert, intelligent business men a keen understanding of the X forces with which they must deal is the purpose of Nation's Business. Every month it brings you an interpretation of political, financial, and economic happenings that bear on your everyday problems. Not a mere record of events—not mere opinions—but shrewd, keen analysis by men who know the facts—and how to convey their meaning in such form that the competent executive can use them.

On News Stands Today!

Five representative articles in the November Nation's Business interpret Six Powerful X Forces:—

Have you considered what X might do to your job? Read James H. Collins' "Your Job—after the Merger."

"A Disaster in Management" gives the first complete account of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' ventures in business involving millions.

"The World's Worst Waste—Oil," by Mark L. Requa, will open your eyes.

William McFee, in "You Can't Run Your Ships on Sentiment," takes you into the American Merchant Marine.

The radio and legislation—two vital X forces—are discussed in "Ruling the Radio Waves," by Louis G. Caldwell.

Pick up the November Nation's Business at any news stand, or mail your subscription to Washington. 25 cents a copy; $7.50 for three years.

Radio Plans Made for Dedication

Opera Will Be Broadcast From New Theater in Chicago Over WRC; West Point Football Coach to Be Speaker.

A nation of radio listeners is invited by Station WRC and associated members of the National Broadcasting Co. to be present at the dedication of the new $20,000,000 theater of the Chicago Civic Opera Company at 11:15 o'clock tonight. Two excerpts from Verdi's "Aida" will be heard. A part of the third act, which contains several of the noted arias of the work, will be picked up directly from the stage of the theater. Rosa Raisa sings the title role, with Charles Marshall supporting her as Rhadames, the victorious commander. Cesare Formichi will be heard as Amonasro, the King of Ethiopia and father of Aida.

Beginning next Saturday evening the broadcasts by the Chicago Civic Opera Company will be a regular weekly feature from WJZ, but it is not likely WRC will be in the weekly line-up.

In addition to a number of his own marches, John Philip Sousa has chosen the following numbers for the band concert to be broadcast through WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight: "Ballet Egyptian," Luigini; "Chinese Melodies," Weber; "Dance of the Hours," Ponchielli; "Molly on the Shore," Grainger; "Pasquinade," Gottschalk; "Old Roses," Strauss, and the Serenade from "Mignon," as xylophone solo.

"Back of the News in Washington" will be included in the early evening features from WRC, with William Hard facing the microphone. A contralto and a tenor will aid Harry Horlick's A & P Gypsies in their broadcast at 8:30 o'clock. Floyd Gibbons will have his usual place in the program.

Joe Mitchell Chappie, editor, author and lecturer, and Edwin Marshall Hadley, author and lecturer, will be among the speakers to be heard when the proceedings of the second Government Club meeting of the season are broadcast by WRC from New York City at 2 o'clock.

"Biff" Jones, West Point's football coach, will be the speaker in a program from WMAL at 10 o'clock. He will discuss the Army team and its campaign of the year, as well as football as a sport in general. Duke Ellington and his orchestra will furnish the musical portion of the program.

Harriet Lee, contralto, will be the soloist with the CeCo Couriers at 8:30 o'clock, while Henry Burbig has prepared another of his specialty recitations for presentation.

Two dance orchestras will be heard between 11 o'clock and midnight, prepared by the "Story in a Song" program.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HOOK WORM GETTING THE HOOK.

HOOKWORM infestation seems to be on the toboggan in the Carolinas. Figures supplied from the laboratories of North Carolina and South Carolina to Dr. W. G. Gamble point that way. The disorder prevails especially in the coast section of these States and the reports relate particularly to that region. The indications are that hookworm disease is only about one-fourth as prevalent as it was in the five-year period beginning with 1900.

This is a very gratifying improvement. If the physicians, the health departments, the schools and the people will keep on the job for another 20-year period there will not be much hookworm disease in these two States. The building of proper toilet facilities must continue, there must be some improvement in standards of sanitation and in habits, and the examination for hookworm and the giving of hookworm medicine must be continued all along the lines which have proved so successful in the last 20 years.

It has been proved that people can stand a moderate number of worms without being materially harmed. It is only when the number of worms per person passes a certain high level that symptoms develop. In this study some rosy-cheeked, healthy looking people were found to be hookworm carriers. It has been found that hookworm infestation ended itself spontaneously.

"Once a hookworm subject, always a hookworm subject," once thought to be the rule, is not accepted now. Hookworms are constantly being thrown off, not only the eggs, but the worms themselves. Unless there is a reasonably abundant addition to the stock on hand the worm population in the digestive tract tends to diminish and finally disappears.

Another discovery, of the same hope inspiring type is that the worms do not succeed in establishing themselves in all types of soil. In prairie soils, dense clays and in limestone soils they never succeed in making themselves at home. They do in sandy soils and in some loams.

In these North Carolina studies other intestinal parasites were not found to be of much importance. The parasite which ranks second in frequency was the ordinary round worm. However, though the study was made in a farming region few round worms were found. Next in importance was the thread worm. There are some cases of tapeworm but they were few in number. Some cases of amebic dysentery were found but they were surprisingly few. In fact, in more recent years the ameba infections in the Northern States exceed those from the Southern.

THERE IS NO DANGER.

J. E. P. writes: Is there any authentic information on danger of food poisoning from the use of cooking utensils of aluminum?

REPLY.

No.

BETTER HAVE THEM FILLED.

Mrs. R. H. Y. writes: One dentist tells me to have the cavities in my 5-year-old boy's teeth filled, otherwise he will not have a second set of teeth. Is the dentist right?

REPLY.

It is better to have cavities filled. This refers to the first as well as the second set.

However, the harm done by neglecting these cavities is not quite as great as you understood the dentist to say.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., were not talking in stage money when he let slip the fact in the melee at the Radio Commission that the Damrosch school concerts in wire tolls and all, were costing the NBC $250,000, it may serve to enlighten listeners as to what other hours are costing.

If the Damrosch school hour on small time in the morning costs a quarter of a million dollars, then the General Electric Damrosch coast-to-coast hook-up on big time Saturday evening must cost $500,000 or more. That is, if the G. E., which is one of the holding companies of the NBC, has to pay the regular rate.

It also developed that considerable feeling still exists at the commission because the National Broadcasting Co. froze out Columbia and broadcast Ramsay MacDonald's speech exclusively.

Aylesworth said it cost the NBC, in time and wire tolls, about $70,000 to do this little stunt.

IF they are spending money like that, this might be a good time again to ask whether they can not make an appropriation to replace the WRC haywire transmitter. We can not think of a better way for the National Broadcasting Co. to impress the Radio Commission, Congress, high officials and the people generally than to erect a broadcasting station here in keeping with the importance of the Capital of the United States.

What has become of the plan to build a plant half-way between Washington and Baltimore to serve both cities?

The Rev. Francis Duffy, noted New York wartime chaplain, will discuss his World War experiences over station WOR, Newark, Wednesday evening. Father Duffy will be heard during the Kellogg Hour. The tentative time set is 7:30 p. m., but it might be well for those desiring to tune in to check by looking at the WOR table that morning.

HOW long will the average new radio set operate without requiring repair work or the replacement of tubes? An indication to the answer is offered by L. T. Brock, vice president of the Kolster Radio Corporation, who reports that 2,000 hours of continuous radio reception is the record made so far in a life test being given two receivers picked at random from the normal production of the plant. At the average rate of about two hours of reception in a home each evening, these sets have so far operated for the equivalent of three years of ordinary daily use.

"A medium and low priced set were taken from the factory on August 3 and placed in operation," Brock said. "Each day official tests and readings on delicate instruments are made by our engineers while programs are coming in. These sets have never been turned off, and no repairs of any kind have been made. Not even a tube has been changed. As they passed the 2,000-hour mark they were still in perfect order and going strong."

APPARENTLY gentlemen not on the program put something over in the way of personal advertising in connection with the broadcasting of the dinner to George Jessel in New York, at which Eddie Cantor was toastmaster and Mayor Jimmie Walker a guest.

"The radio reception of the speeches and the show afterward were all but spoiled by mike hogs at the control box behind the dais," Variety reports. "One professional is charged with making himself such a pest that any number of listeners-in shut off their radios.

"When the show went on there were several waits, but the manner in which the time was filled in brought sharp criticism from those at home. There is no doubt that many voices were heard over the air that the assemblage at the dinner did not hear."

Judging from the following from Japan, it is apparently no joke to be an announcer at Station JOAK in Tokio:

"The directors of JOAK decided at a conference recently what punishment should be imposed for officials and employes of the station's staff responsible for mistakenly announcing the birth of an imperial prince instead of an imperial princess last Sunday morning. Mr. Nakayama, managing director, and Mr. Kunisue, head of the news dapertment, will be severely reprimanded.

Mr. Yabe, head of the broadcasting department, will undergo a reduction in salary, while Mr. Yegi, an announcer, and Mr. Sakurai, another employe, will be warned. The directors are said to have acted with the approval of the communications ministry."

"THERE may be luck in leisure," declared Charles Piez, of Chicago, president-elect of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, broadcasting from Akron, Ohio, "but success comes from action."

First Ham—How did Paul Revere resemble the radio?

Second Ham—I didn't know there was any radio in those days.

First Ham—Sure—he broadcast with one plug.

"'My Hungarian Rose' is always 'hungary'" wailed Two-Gun Ginsberg over Station WJZ, "she can take a noodle and make it yodel."

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:10 a. m. from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1:50 p. m., and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:15 p. m.

"Self-help" is the only aid which may be anticipated for this date. The planetary aspects do not favor speculative adventures. Friends, associates and relatives will turn their backs upon requests for either moral or material assistance.

The child born on this November 4 will be universally popular. It will be bright, witty and jovial, and the strength that underlies its character will be in the foreground especially in times of stress, when it will show both brains and courage.

If you are a November 4 person, you do not allow yourself to become shackled by the chains of tradition, custom or habit. You only revere those things which have genuine beauty, worth or usefulness. Your mind is receptive to those things which are new or different. You are not in the least prejudiced, and are always willing to listen to reason and to be convinced by proof. In most respects you are a "utility" type person, and you lean toward the practical unadorned side of life. Your eyes are not dimmed by the scales of snobbery or hypocrisy, which blind so many people to the real charm and worth of people or things.

You cling fast to the fundamental things—love, honesty, courage and tolerance—the elemental factors of life besides which nothing else really matters. You mean what you say, and say what you mean. Your frankness is at times almost brutal, but your sincerity is never doubted. There are few more loyal friends, and you are never guilty of expressing "covered love."

In your work you are careful, painstaking and exacting, and are very able in the handling of details. You are looked up to as trustworthy and reliable, and enjoy the confidence and esteem of all your associates. You are both patient and diligent.

Successful people born November 4: Thomas Johnson, first Governor of Maryland.

Stephen J. Field, justice of United States Supreme Court.

Ernest H. Crosby, lawyer, reformer and author.

Edward S. Abeles, actor.

George F. Shaver, inventor of duplex telephone.

James Douglas, Arizona mining engineer.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Fashionably flared coat of fancy chestnut and white wool, trimmed in flat fur. (Courtesy of Phillepe et Gaston, Paris.)

NOVEL ideas galore feature the winter collection of the Maison Jenny. If we went into detail it would take us a month to tell you about them, so we shall just list in telegraphic form a few of the high lights.

Sweaters buttoning on hips to give modish snug effect . . . Astrakhan used lavishly as coat trimming . . . Tweed coats straight and simple, but show great variety of tricky little collar and cuff ideas . . . Brown, black bottle green favored colors for season.

• • • •

Assorted furs frequently used on same ensemble . . . White woolen coat has skunk cuffs at elbows and on panels which drop at sides, and high ermine collar . . . Brown duvetyne coat has skunk collar, skunk cuffs at elbows and band of skunk around hem. Above skunk on hem is band summer ermine . . . Black cloth coat with skunk collar and cuffs has ends of collar in ermine, which tie and hang almost to hem. Touch of ermine placed at cuffs.

• • • •

Several waists for wear with suits are made entirely of tiny beads, looking like crocheted work . . . Black crepe de chine gown has bolero, sleeves entirely made of fine white beads . . . Some of little black gowns have dashing overskirts which hang in point at one side to ankle. One such in black crepe has point bordered in black astrakhan, with ermine at neck and cuffs . . . These black dresses are pleated, open-worked, braided, have no belts and fit loosely at waist . . . One evening gown has front decolletage to waist . . . Black satin princess model, is slit on side to waist, showing white underslip.

• • • •

Sofa pillows—carefully planned to present a colorful and harmonizing note in the living room or den! Aren't you just about in the mood for a new "pillow ensemble" for one or several of your homey rooms? For that mood of yours, we have assembled an illustrated leaflet with an enticing variety of ideas. Just send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post for the leaflet.

Astrakhan cloth is widely used on coats and dresses for trimming. A novel feature on both dresses and coats is the continuation of the yoke to form a kind of scarf, which sometimes forms a sort of double collar in connection with a smaller turnover collar. Or it may gracefully tie itself into a bow knot at the neck.

Christmas Suggestion.

Know what little hankies were made for, especially? For Christmas gifts to those "fond-of" friends to whom you do want to send something more personal than a card. And nothing quite fills this need, if it is for women! Because, you see, no dainty woman ever really has enough handkerchiefs. I know I never have had and I believe I have about five dozen at this moment, and could use five dozen more. Remember, a handkerchief can cost just as little or just as much as you want it to cost. Some of the beautiful Parisian handkerchiefs, edged with real lace, for instance, cost as much as $75. . .oh!

• • • •

Do note the new silhouette expressed in the fancy brown and white woolen coat we illustrated for you today. Phillipe et Gaston have always been leaders, and they were one of the first couturiers to enthusiastically sponsor the new silhouette. And, sh-h-h-h, we've decided we like it ourselves!

• • • •

Au Revoir!

Lame Adopts the Silhouette

A Vionnet model which successfully combines the formality of Lame with the soft grace of the new lines—With set-in front flares, and a draped neckline, this metal cloth afternoon frock has a blue background with softly blended color tones—It presents an autumnal richness reminiscent of delicate old oriental brocades.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Shielding the Man.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I read your articles and am sure your advice to our girls is helpful.

However, in a recent article you say a certain unhappy girl had not learned to play the game of life. You do not touch on the real cause of her misery—the unscrupulous man, void of all honor, who disregards the marriage vow, and lightly tosses aside his responsibility to his family.

Why ask, who is to blame? The one to blame is the husband of another woman, the father of several children to whom marriage means nothing.

To be sure, any girl of common intelligence, reared in good family, should certainly know better than to accept the attentions of a married man. His love, if you can call it that, can be for no good. It is not love. If it were he would not bring upon the object of his love misery and disgrace. But this dastardly coward is, no doubt, much older than the girl whose life he has wrecked. Such is usually the case. Yet, you say we are to blame and our schools to blame. The irresponsible conceited, deserter of wife and children is to blame. So, why not place the blame where it belongs?

I am the mother of a daughter whose father died when she was seven years old. She is now a pure, clean-minded university student, enjoying her young life with friends that are worth while and of her kind.

She was reared, not with closed eyes, but eyes wide open to the pitfalls and thus enabled to escape the traps of evil designers.

But why can not more be done to remove these pitfalls from the paths of our girls? Even you, seem to shield these obnoxious creatures.

A MOTHER.

Dear Mother: It is not a question of "shielding" unscrupulous men, but of training girls to recognize them and catalogue them. This column could denounce such men six days a week without lessening their number. So, being of a constructive turn of mind, we perfer to spend our effort on the girl who is really interested in making the most of her life rather than in idle denunciations of villians.

You know we secretly believe that woman is not the weak and feeble being she is painted. We believe she can think, reason and decide; that she has will, judgment and a bit of horse sense, so we can not blame the villian when the girl succumbs. He is what he is, and much as we loathe him we refuse to subscribe to the theory that he is entirely to blame when a girl wrecks her future for him. If she is mentally deficient—yes. If she is of sound mind and over 12 years of age—no.

We are all sympathy for her plight, deplore the wreck of her youth, but hold her blameless? Never! She did what she did because she believed she would achieve happiness by doing it. No other reason. She risked her all and lost. Now, instead of moaning over her, or scowling darkly upon her, we want her thoroughly educated so that she will know how uncomfortable it is to be in the wrong.

Girls all know the moral side of the situation. They frankly state they knew it was "wrong." All right. They know and do not care. Then we must teach them that back of the right and wrong of life is he reason of it—the personal welfare of the individual. You do this and you pay. That is the side of the picture we would stress.

As to the men. They pay, too, never fear. But this column is not for them, and that's why we seem to "shield" them when all we are really doing is refusing to flatter them by agreeing to any theory that holds them responsible for all womankind's deeds, as if they alone were equipped with brain power. Girls have brains and we would like to see them taught how to use them!

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

NOVEMBER 4.

THE popular author, Mary Stanbury Watts, was born this day, 1568, on a farm near Delaware, Ohio. Her short stories and novels deal mostly with American life. Her novels include "The Mark," "The House of Rimmon," "The Tenants," "Nathan Burke," "The Legacy," "Van Cleve," "The Rise of Jennie Cushing," "From Father to Son" and "Luther Nichols." She also has published three plays.

Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, who had charge of all the nurses of the United States Army during the Spanish-American War, was born this day, 1864.

Sarah Hall Judson, noted missionary and translator, was born this day, 1803. She translated many tracts and part of the Bible into Burmese and wrote a hymn book in that language.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction Bridge novice.)

THERE are two Bridge terms that a beginner will hear often and in many cases will fail to understand. These terms are "stopped suit" and "normal support."

"Stopped suit" is a term used when the contract is No Trump. A suit is stopped when Declarer holds such cards in it as to make it practically sure that he will take a trick in it if that suit be opened by the initial leader. In other words, if the adversaries can pen and try to "run" that suit, the Declarer can stop them.

A stopped suit and a sure trick are two different things. Ace or King-Queen would be a sure trick; but while King with any other card will stop a suit led by the hand on Declarer's left, it might fail to do so if the suit were led from any other hand.

The following are classed as stopped suits:

Ace with or without others.
King with one or more others.
Queen and three or more others.
Queen-Jack with one or more others.
Jack-Ten with two or more others.

A players has "normal support" in the suit that his partner has bid when he holds in it at least the average strength under the circumstances. The following are considered normal support:

Any three cards of partner's suit (no matter how small); or Ace-X, King-X or Queen Jack of it. The following may help to clarify:

Less Than Normal. x-x
Ace
King
Jack-x
Normal.
Ace
King-x
Queen-Jack
More Than Normal.
x-x-x-x
Ace-Queen
King-x-x
Queen-x-x

When a player holds less than normal support he should notify his partner of his deficiency by taking out with some other declaration provided he is strong enough to do so. If dealer (South) bid one Spade, West passed and North held:

He would have very remarkable assistance for his partner, but should not pass; he should bid two Hearts, which would deny normal support in Spades.

Institute Upholds Rigid Pupil Tests

Character EducationGroup Indorses Plan to Deny Diplomas.

Apropos of the proposal of Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith, School Board member, that a rule requiring good character and cleanliness of person and dress be enforced in the District junior and senior high and normal schools or the diplomas of the offenders be withheld, the Character Education Institute of the United States, with headquarters in Washington, yesterday announced its support of such a rule.

"The proposal that character development be recognized as equal in importance with scholarship in establishing the right of graduation from high school is supported by the leading educators of the Nation," Milton Fairchild, chairman of the schools committee of the institute, said.

A list of "basic civilization virtues" recommended by the Character Institute were cited by Fairchild. They are honesty, cooperation, kindness, will power, skill, executive ability, inventive thinking, purpose, justice, interest, vitality, industry, ambition and public and family spirit.

Capital Zionists To Hold Election

Plans Made for Campaign to Augment Jewish Homeland Fund.

Election of officers of the District Zionist Organization will take place tomorrow night at the Jewish Community Center. Charles J. Stein, the incumbent president, who has held office for two terms, will not be a candidate.

The local Zionist district is making plans for participation in the National Zionist roll call. An effort will be made to enroll all Washington Jews behind the Jewish Homeland movement. The campaign will get under way November 19, with Louis E. Spiegler as chairman.

A conference of the seaboard region Zionist executive committee will be held at the Jewish Center November 10. Reports will be heard on the Palestine emergency relief drives. Louis Lipsky, president of the American Zionist Organization, will address the conference.

High School Writers To Meet in Baltimore

The recently organized High School Press Association will hold its next meeting in Baltimore in December. The organization, composed of editors and writers of high school publications, numbers in its membership student editors of Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and the District.

Officers of the association are Griffith Johnson, Central High School, Washington, president; Dorothy Wooton, Montgomery High School, Rockville, Md., vice president; Mrs. Fern D. Schneider, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Schneider is a teacher in Montgomery High School. The association is sponsored by the Columbia Press Association.

Post Home Inspected By Many, Despite Rain

A dreary, rainy Sunday will not dull the enthusiasm of home hunters and those who enjoy seeing a beautiful house, it was demonstrated yesterday by the hundreds of visitors to The Washington Post model home, furnished by Dulin & Martin, at 4331 Garfield street in Wesley Heights, the W. C. & A. N. Miller development.

This house is open for inspection daily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening. It is reached by driving out Massachusetts avenue; crossing Wisconsin avenue, turning left in Cathedral avenue to Forty-fourth street and then south to Garfield street.

Dawes Will Stop Here On Return to England

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Gen. Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, will leave Chicago for a two-day visit with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson at Washington. He will sail from New York for London Friday.

Grant to Address Citizens.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks of the District, will make a brief talk and award certificates for the best kept lawns in the community at a meeting of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the Columbia Heights Christian Church.

Advertisers to Hear Banker.

Wilmer J. Waller, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, will be the principal speaker at a luncheon-meeting tomorrow noon of the Advertising Club, of Washington in the National Press Club.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A FEW weeks ago, Madame Curie crossed the Atlantic in order to receive a present from friends in the United States. Some of the friends had never seen her, but all knew about her fine work in science. She is honored, in company with her husband, for having first taken radium from ore.

Radium Workers Are Protected by Lead Plates.

The present which Madame Curie came to receive was very small in size — a bit of radium weighing one gram. A gram is only one twenty-eighth of an ounce—about the weight of a collar button. That seems a very tiny gift, doesn't it? Yet its value was many thousands of dollars.

Within recent years, an ounce of radium has been valued at $2,000,000.

Radium gives forth rays all the time. How long will the rays keep coming forth? It has been estimated that a gram of radium will remain "alive" for 20,000 years. Then it is believed that there will be left only a tiny piece of lead.

Men who work with radium must be very careful, else they will be burned. Radium burns are very hard to heal, and may even prove fatal. The radium worker commonly uses a plate of lead to protect his chest, when he is seated in front of a table where radium is exposed. Most of the time, radium is kept in containers with lead walls from three to six inches thick.

If radium is so costly, you may wonder how we have the "radiolite" watches and clocks which have hands and figures which glow in the dark. To make the paint for the dials, a very small amount of radium is mixed with a large amount of other substance. On a watch dial, there is much less than a millionth of an ounce of radium.

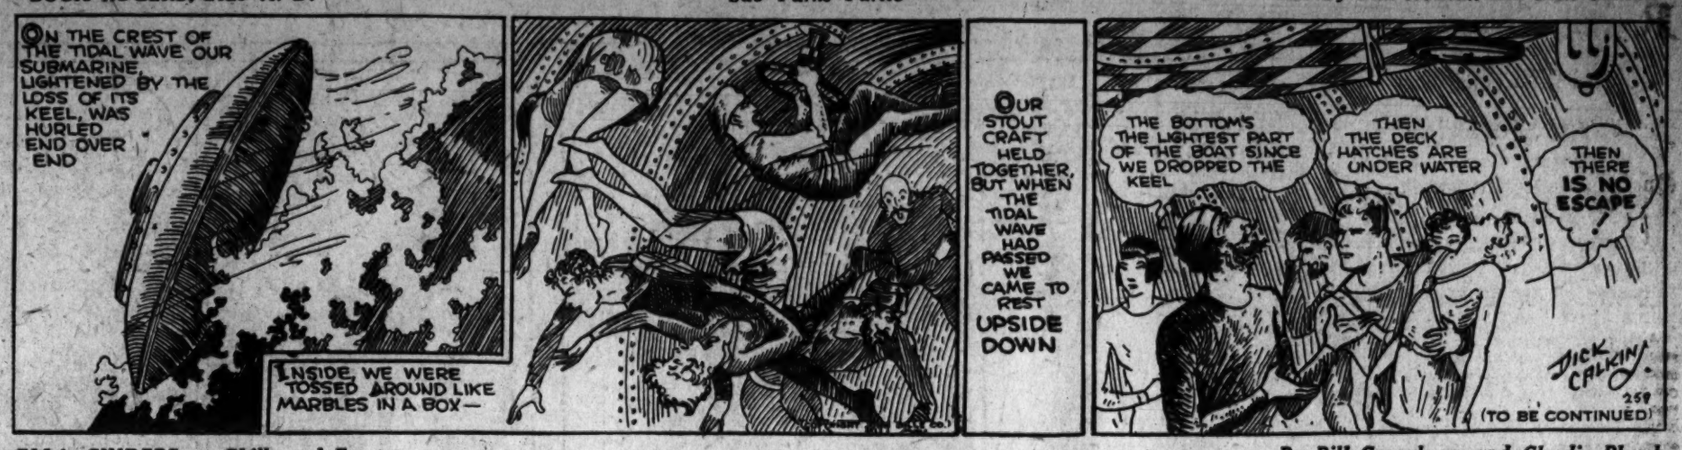

Radium paint is now used for many purposes besides painting watch dials. House numbers are painted in some cases so that visitors can see them in the dark. Keyholes have been surrounded by a rim of radium paint. Fishermen have placed bits of the paint on bait used in deep water to attract fish by the glow.

MEN WHO ARE REAL
SALES MANAGERS

Would $80 to $150 weekly interest you—especially if the work is enjoyable and highly interesting? If so, you are one of five men we need who can quickly qualify for important executive positions where you will engage, train and direct a strong sales organization.

Special consideration will be given to sales executives and to salesmen with successful records—unusual opening for competent sales organizers.

Almost every one a prospect and men average two sales in each five calls; interviews by system of personal introductions that insures warm welcome—no house-to-house work. Very little competition or sales resistance.

Our field is not real estate, books, brushes, hosiery or securities; no samples to carry and nothing to demonstrate. It is a new and totally different field ready for development on scale of greatest magnitude. Sales closed with amazing ease.

This is the work you have always dreamed of yet scarcely hoped to find. Only energetic, experienced men wanted who have initiative, self-confidence and real determination; must be men of strong character, clean record and good personality.

If this appeals to you and you want to build up a permanent connection for yourself here in Washington; if you are straight-thinking, "red-blooded" and willing to do intense work for big money and almost unlimited advancement; call for interview between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. only on Monday.

NATIONAL GRIDIRON RACE NARROWS TO SIX TEAMS

GRID MAKES BOOTH FINE SALESMAN

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Among the correspondence which Albie Booth received in the week after he had personally beaten the Army Football Team, there were several offers of genteel and effortless employment as the representative of various bond houses based at New York. Now it is a more or less facetious tradition in this neighborhood that Yale athletes make fine bond salesmen in after life and that, the better a man has played football for Yale, the greater his success will be in this field of finance. But one need not necessarily infer that these New York firms had any ulterior motive in offering to employ Albie as a bond agent in his off-time, scant as it is, as the star of the 'Varsity squad and a sophomore student of science.

Perhaps they were quite sincere and there is nothing but coincidence to account for their abrupt eagerness to hire him just after he had suddenly become one of the most famous young athletes in the United States. But it would be interesting to hear how eagerly these concerns follow him up this week, now that the Dartmouth Team and a few adverse breaks of luck stopped him short of their goal in almost three hours of struggle in his next time out.

Albie seemed not much interested in these propositions, but at that the young man probably will not adopt a supercilious attitude toward sound, opportune chances to make money. He has always worked at the most practical and unglamorous jobs and if one of the major league baseball firms should wish to bespeak his services for future delivery, paying perhaps $5,000 for a three-year option, the lad might consider himself to be unjusty stopped from accepting this legitimate windfall by a fastidious rule of amateurism.

It would be ethical, amateur, and all right to take a mock job as bond salesman in which his athletic distinction certainly would be no handicap, if not the whole sum of his worth, but it would be inappropriate to accept a down-payment on his theoretical future as a professional, in which transaction he could deliver a full dollar's worth for every dollar received. Baseball firms consider $5,000 to be a reasonable price to gamble in an option on the future work of a shortstop of Albie's promise and they often place college amateurs under secret obligations far in advance of their graduation from school. This much money would relieve him of drudgery the rest of his time at Yale.

If, upon graduation, Albie should receive a trial in league baseball and prove to be not much good, any baseball firm would still consider the investment to have been justified by the probabilities. They have often paid $25,000 or $50,000 to buy minor league players for future delivery, who could not make good when tried.

In the conservative Republican New England football region, there was no poise or moderation regarding Albie Booth after the Army game. He was, among other superlatives, the greatest player of his kind since Eckersall, and there was very little thought of what might happen to him in his future games with equally smart young men of almost equal agility patrolling the field against him, all of them especially coached to stop him.

Consequently, there must be some wonder in New England at this time, for when the Dartmouth line, after a clumsy start, began to blast its way through and crack up his interference, Albie was no more conspicuous than Chris Cagle of the Army had been, operating behind a porous line the week before. In fact, there came one startling play, in the second half, when Albie got free but was pulled down from behind by one of the Dartmouth subs who simply outran him.

As the game developed, Albie played his game in the first half and Al Marsters saved his marvels for the second half, but Booth's two greatest runs were spoiled by his own colleagues whereas, when Marsters went frantic, the whole Dartmouth team rolled with him and Dartmouth got two earned touchdowns on a total of seven offensive plays. Both of Yale's touchdowns were conversion of Dartmouth errors, one from a fumble, the other from a pass intercepted in the gloom toward the end of the game. It was like winning a ball game on a couple of bad hops past the opposing shortstop rather than through legitimate weight at bat.

It was my impression that Booth at no time in the game played as well as did Marsters in the few wild minutes when he was firing the ball in beautiful passes to McCall and Booma or crashing through behind his raging matraders to the touchdowns.

School Title Is at Stake Tomorrow

Tech Practically Assured of Crown by Win Over Western.

Prep School Elevens to Be Kept Busy This Week.

Scholastic Program

TUESDAY.
Tech vs. Western, Central Stadium.
WEDNESDAY.
Emerson vs. George Washington Frosh.
FRIDAY.
Eastern vs. Business, Central Stadium.
Emerson vs. St. John's.
Devitt vs. Mount St. Mary's.
Gonzaga vs. Georgetown Frosh.
Woodward vs. Charlotte Hall.

WHETHER the championship of the high schools is to be decided this week or postponed until later in the season undoubtedly will be told in the feature game of the week—the Tech-Western fray slated to be played at the Central Stadium tomorrow. The game will open a week of seven games for local high and prep teams and is no doubt the feature attraction of the week.

For scholastic fans, it seems to be the last chance to stop Tech from clinching the title, as not even the most skeptical can foresee the Woodworth-coached Business High Eleven winning over the Maroon and Gray. It therefore is up to Western to defeat Tech if it would once more open the race, permitting three other teams to once more possess a chance for the title.

Should Western, with its added strength which it is expected to gain by tomorrow, upset the Manual Trainers, there would be four schools with only one setback, with all four having an equal chance at the title. Central and Eastern have lost only to Tech, while Western has lost to Eastern.

Western Victory Would Net Series Tie.

A Western win, therefore, would send it into a tie for the lead and the awarding of the championship would rest heavily on the outcome of the coming Western-Central and Eastern-Central games.

Although not an inter-high clash, the Emerson-George Washington frosh game on Wednesday promises to offer considerable in the way of attractive features. The prepmen are boasting a strong team this year, while the strength of the Colonial yearlings has already been proven in its wins over the Georgetown freshmen and the Maryland yearlings.

Another inter-high clash is set for Friday, when Eastern and Business come together at Central, and although the Stenogs will receive several additional players as the first advisory period is ended, they do not figure to upset one of the strongest teams in the series. However, Eastern will take no chances, especially if Western trims Tech, which would give it a chance for a title tie.

Six Prep Teams See Action On Friday.

Six prep school teams are also slated to play on Friday with Emerson, St. John's, Devitt, Gonzaga, G. U. Preps and Woodward all down on the books to see action. In two of the games, local teams will clash, with Emerson playing its second game of the week against Pauly Byrne's St. John's Cadets, and Gonzaga entertaining the Georgetown prepmen on its new field.

Friedman Is Sensation As N. Y. Giants Score

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Bennie Friedman and his New York Giants gave the Chicago Bears a lesson in football in their pro game today, and kept their slate clean with a 26-to-14 victory.

Although he did not score, Friedman's play was sensational. Sparkling runs of 38, 36, 33 and 28 yards and his perfect passes placed the ball in scoring position, from where Tony Plansky went over twice and Flaherty and Snyder counted once each. A fumble by Friedman in the first period gave the Bears a chance to score first, Red Grange taking the ball over.

CHESTER PRO TEAM BOWS TO HAWKS

Dewey Stars in 25-0 Rout of Pennsylvania Eleven.

"ADMIRAL" Dewey, the Mohawks' fast half back, is considerable man, but if he was a race horse his past performances would be designated by an "x" inclosed in a circle, indicating that he is a superior mudder. Dewey showed a keen liking for the heavy going yesterday at Griffith Stadium while the Mohawks were trouncing the Chester (Pa.) Professionals by a 25-to-0 score.

In the third period, Dewey gave a neat exhibition of running and dodging to take the ball 45 yards to a touchdown and he topped that performance in the fourth quarter by running 55 yards to another score. He was given good interference on both occasions but it was his superior speed which carried him the full distance.

The Chester Team, according to its manager, is much better than it showed yesterday. He said the club played a gruelling scoreless tie at Clifton, Del., on Saturday and hardly expected to beat the Mohawks. He also said that Chester has won four games and tied two, being unscored on until yesterday's clash with the Hawks.

Chester Team Weakens Near End.

The play of the Chester Eleven seemed to verify the fact that it had played the day before. The Pennsylvanians gave the Hawks some real opposition for a half, but it was evident that they were weakening fast as the game neared a close.

Likens, wearing Red Grange's old "77" on his back, did the only notable ball-carrying for the invaders. He ripped off a couple of 15-yard runs in the first half but could not get going after that.

For the most part the Mohawks employed straight football. Possibly it was because the Apaches, who had called off their game, were in the stands. However, as the battle turned out, straight football was all that was needed.

Jim Birthwright and Knocky Thonfas did most of the ball-carrying that produced the first Mohawk touchdown in the first period. Birthwright did the the long work, knocking off several good gains with Thomas doing the short work. It was Birthwright who went over for the touchdown.

Pass, Colliere to Dufour, Nets Counter.

Sandwiched between Dewey's two long runs for scores, the Mohawks drove to another touchdown with a forward pass from Colliere to Dufour supplying the final punch.

Oklahoma, Nebraska Unbeaten in "Big Six"

Kansas City, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Big Six football fans are expecting anything to happen after yesterday's results in the conference.

Standing out in the day's surprises was the Kansas Aggies', 7 to 6 defeat of Missouri, but that game had to share attention with Kansas' great losing fight against Nebraska, which the Cornhuskers won, 12 to 6, and Iowa State's touchdown lead of Oklahoma at half time which proved the weakened Cyclones have not entirely lost their power although they eventually yielded to the Sooners, 21 to 7. Oklahoma and Nebraska now are the only teams undefeated in conference play although Nebraska's record is marred by a tie with Missouri.

Handley High Routs Bath District, 78-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Handley High School's Football Eleven, of Winchester, Va., defeated Bath District High here, 78 to 0, in a Cumberland Valley Athletic League contest. The Virginians crossed the local's goal line an even dozen times and added six points after touchdowns. Both teams used the passing game generously.

Braithwaite was outstanding for the losers. Touchdowns for Winchester were made by Sirbough (6), Lucas (2), Duvall (2), Fries and Garber.

Berlin Jockey Killed In Spill at Hurdle

Berlin, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A promising young jockey named Trumpfheller broke his neck and back today in a fall from his horse while jumping a hurdle in front of the grand stand at the Strausberg race track. Thousands of persons gasped with horror as the horse rolled over the jockey.

D. C. Colleges Face Hard Contests

G. U. Tackles Middies; Yale Next Foe of Maryland.

C. U. Plays Unbeaten Duquesne Eleven in Local Feature.

WITH Georgetown at Annapolis and Maryland at New Haven for their respective important clashes with Navy and Yale, Catholic University will hold the center of the football stage here Saturday when Jack McAuliffe's Cardinals entertain the strong Duquesne Dukes of Pittsburgh in Catholic's annual Homecoming Day game in Brookland Stadium.

Only one other game is scheduled locally. George Washington will play host to St. Joseph's, of Philadelphia, probably at Central Stadium.

The Duquesne scrap looms as one of Catholic's hardest of the campaign and Coach McAuliffe has maped out a tremendous practice program for his players preceding the combat. The Cardinals fortunately will be able to throw their full strength into this contest, Capt. Jack Malevich having recovered from an injured ankle which kept him on the shelf from October 5 until last Saturday, when he played about ten minutes against Manhattan College.

Duquesne, undefeated thus far this year, is highly regarded in its own section of the country. It is coached by Elmer Layden, former member of the Notre Dame Four Horsemen, and is equipped with fine material, and a diversified attack. A 6 to 6 tie with West Virginia University is the most notable thing the Pittsburgh outfit has accomplished.

Georgetown-Navy To Draw Capacity.

The Georgetown-Navy battle doubtless will draw thousands of Capital fans, probably more than the seating capacity of Farragut Field can stand. Twenty-two thousand is the limit. The Georgetown athletic office still has some tickets for the game but the supply is expected to be exhausted within two or three days.

Georgetown, jubilant over its stirring victory at New York last Saturday, must now plunge into another week of intensive drill. Coach Lou Little believes the Naval Academy Eleven will prove as tough a nut to crack as New York University, this in spite of Navy's defeats by Penn and Notre Dame and a 13-13 deadlock with Princeton.

Little expects to find the Middies in an unpleasant mood, ready to do their utmost to regain lost prestige at Georgetown's expense. Reports have it that the Tars will place their strongest lineup on the field now that Johnny Gannon, their best back, is once more in good physical condition.

Little Faces Hard Task at Hilltop.

The Hilltop mentor will have no easy task on his hands in trying to key his players up to the high pitch they attained for N. Y. U. A football team generally suffers a spiritual let-down after such a gratifying triumph as the Hilltopper scored two days ago. The violet battle was the first major test for Georgetown and it had been the game the Blue and Gray was pointing for from the start of the training season.

Besides the decision, the game developed other cheering things for Little, Charley Walsh demonstrating great all-around ability at right guard and Steve Barbas, the veteran full back, showing he may be counted on for the rest of the season. The latter has been hampered since the first of September with injuries and Saturday was his first appearance in a game. Substituting for Bordeau, who, incidentally, performed impressively, Barabas staged an exhibition of defensive football in the second half which excelled anything of its kind on the field. The sturdy Jersey City boy tackled with a force and sureness that nearly cracked the opposing ball carrier in two.

Walsh's Work on Line Surprises.

Walsh, who weighs but 170, was roundly praised for his sterling line play by the officials of the game as well as his cohorts. Referee E. C. Taggart expressed amazement at his effectiveness against much heavier foes. Gene Driscoll, whose position Walsh won just before this contest, also rendered valuable service as substitute. Coach Little was generous in his laudation of every Hilltopper who saw action.

Maryland once more goes to New Haven at a time when the Bulldog is in his best form, but as it has done

John E. Madden, Breeder Of 6 Derby Winners, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—John E. Madden, nationally known Kentucky horse breeder and breeder of six Kentucky Derby winners, died at the Pennsylvania Hotel today after an illnes of several days.

Mr. Madden, who was 73 years old, had been confined to his suite at the hotel for nearly two months, suffering from heart disease. A week ago his condition was reported much improved, but a relapse caused his death today.

The death of Madden was the third among the great leaders of the turf within the past month. Mars Cassidy and Samuel C. Hildreth, widely known turfmen, died within that period.

Earned $33,000 With First Horse Owned.

Born in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1856, Madden was said never to have known what poor health was until his fatal illness. In his youth he was noted as a foot racer, and also was a widely known figure in the prize ring.

With his winnings as a foot racer and his endeavors in the prize ring, he bought an old trotter named Robert McGregor. With that horse Madden won $33,000, and upon that foundation he built a stable of harness horses.

With a vision of greater opportunities in the running game and with comparatively small capital, Madden bought Hamburg Place, a 2,300-acre estate in Kentucky. Here he bred such great horses as Inchcape, Ethelbert, The Finn, Flora Fina, Fayette, Minute Man, Vanitie, White Hackle, Sir Martin and Old Rosebud.

For the last ten years Madden had lived in New York during the Northern racing season, living at the Hotel Pennsylvania. He retired two years ago, when he was rated as a millionaire and since that time he was reported to have made at least $2,000,000 in Wall street investments.

Two sons, Joseph and Edward Madden, survive him. None of the members of his family was with him when

G. U. STARTS CAGE WORK TODAY

Byrnes Only Loss From Squad of Last Season.

WITH Bill Dudack tentatively in charge until Director of Athletics Lou Little disposes of the matter of obtaining a successor to Elmer Ripley, now varsity court mentor at Yale, the Georgetown University basket ball candidates will inaugurate practice today for the 1929-1930 season in Ryan Gymnasium.

Eleven members of last year's squad are returning for the Blue and Gray basket ball campaign. Only one member of the squad, which won fourteen of eighteen games last year, is missing. He is Jack Byrnes, who never held down a regular berth.

Maurice McCarthy, the Hilltop's amateur golfing star and a basket tosser ranking among the best in the East, is captain of the Georgetown Quintet this year. He succeeds Freddy Mesmer, who held the distinction of being captain in his junior year.

The first team that performed in most of the 1928 games is composed of Don Dutton and Bill Shea, forwards; Paul Dillon, center, and Mesmer and McCarthy, guards. The other holdover veterans are Hal Meenan, who alternated with Shea last winter; Johnny Dunn, who saw much service as understudy of Dutton; Leary, Johnny Scalzi and Walter Morris, all forwards, and Koyne Maloney, guard.

Meenan, Leary, Scalzi Report When Grid Season Ends.

Until the close of the football season, the squad will not have the services of Meenan, Leary and Scalzi, all of whom are members of the gridiron squad. When the football season is over, however, each of this trio is expected to get into the thick of the fight for permanent positions.

Thus far, Little has not intimated who will be named as permanent successor to Ripley. He probably will await the end of the football season to make his selection.

Georgetown's court schedule includes games with most of the leading teams in the East. While the complete list has not been announced, it is believed that the schedule is the most difficult ever undertaken by a Georgetown quintet.

Northern Prep Eleven Trims Arlington, 13-0

The Northern Preps yesterday handed the Arlington Preps their first setback of the season, 13 to 0, on Arlington Field. After running up two touchdowns in the first half, the Northerns were unable to do further scoring. Kessler and Hargett accounted for the touchdowns and the latter rushed the ball for an additional point.

FLYWEIGHTS IN TOURNEY TONIGHT

Four Bouts in N. Y.; Mandell Battles McLarnin.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Despite the appearance in the Middle West of two world's champions, Jackie Fields and Sammy Mandell, the flistic spotlight this week will center on New York, where a flyweight tournament designed to bring about the crowning of a generally recognized champion will begin at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Eight 112-pounders, one of them from France, will participate in the tournament with the winners of the four 10-round bouts on tomorrow's card meeting in the semifinals. The two survivors of that round will clash over the 15-round route in the finals.

Chief attention has been directed toward Eugene Huat, of France, European titleholder, who meets Izzy Schwartz, of New York, in the windup. Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, battles Johnny McCoy, of Buffalo; Willie Davies, clever Charleroi, Pa., midget, takes on an old foe in Black Bill, of Cuba; and Ruby Bradley, Holyoke Negro, clashes with Ernie Peters, of England.

Huat and Davies Favored.

Huat and Davies are favored by most experts to reach the final round with the Frenchman expected to take the title, now lacking any generally recognized holder.

Out in Chicago tomorrow night, Mandell, the lightweight champion, meets Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles slugger, in a ten-round bout at 145 pounds. Mandell gave McLarnin a boxing lesson when Jimmy sought to relieve the champion of his laurels at New York last year, but he might find the Coast lad harded to beat at the heavier weight. Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight, meets Charlie

Each Section Has Definite Leaders

Yale, Pitt in East, California in Far West in Line.

Notre Dame, Purdue, Minnesota Top in Midwest.

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Three football reputations were damaged on Saturday in the whirl of gridiron strife which carried ecitement to a feverish pitch, those of Dartmouth, Illinois and Southern California, three of the promised leaders in their respective districts.

Yale, a team so badly kicked around a year ago, now heads the parade in the Near East, Pittsburgh in the Far East, Notre Dame, Purdue and Minnesota in the Middle West, and California in the Far West. In consequence of the latest developments, it is almost safe to hazard a prediction that these six will be the candidates for national honors when the final whistle blows and sanity returns. The South does not seem to have a candidate this year. Georgia did beat Yale, but Florida beat Georgia and Harvard cleanly and cleanly beat Florida. Then, too, Georgia Tech is far out of it following the slaughter by Notre Dame at 26 to 6.

While the reputations of the erstwhile three leaders were being damaged the reputations of several other teams were all but ruined on Saturday, when Pennsylvania beat the Navy, 7 to 2; when Georgetown, with a light, shifty eleven, put N. Y. U. completely out of the running; when Penn State shocked Syracuse by 6 to 4, and Pittsburgh made Ohio State look ordinary under a score of 18 to 2.

Cornell and Brown Help Cause.

Cornell and Brown helped their cause along, the former by beating Columbia, 12 to 6, in a game settled by 2 inches in the last play of the game, and the latter in defeating Holy Cross, 15 to 14. That puts Fordham, which beat Holy Cross 7 to 0, a shade better on paper.

It was not my privilege to see Yale and Dartmouth in action, but good judges tell me that the Yale forwards clearly outplayed the Green for the greater part of the game, and that on the run of the play victory was deserved even though the result hinged on an 80-yard run by Hoot Ellis, who intercepted a forward pass, wildly shot by Longnecker when he slipped to one knee.

It strikes me from a distance that it was unsound tactics to try a forward pass at that stage of the game and in that territory, when every effort should have been directed to protecting a hard-earned lead. Still the second guessers have all the advantage.

The magic of Albie Booth did not exactly prevail, but the marvelous midget played an important and leading part in Yale's triumph. In ground gained, in punting, in drop-kicking and in general effectiveness, to say nothing of inspirational uplifting, he seems to have outshone Al Marsters as he did Chris Cagle.

Marsters Must Be Great.

Marsters, a really great back, must have had a wonderful five minutes to score twice in such a short time, through and over Yale's powerful line, ever growing in strength and coordination under the able coaching of Adam Walsh, Notre Dame's one-time all-American center. His work was a masterpiece. This brilliant runner and passer can be covered and chained part of the time, but not all the time.

Dartmouth lost the game as all Green teams in the past have done. The full-blooded Indian mascot was not able to destroy the Indian sign which Yale has on the Hanover outfit. Dartmouth, however, did not lose any marked prestige. The team is soundly made and well-balanced. It now faces more tough going against Brown, Cornell and the Navy, but should win all three.

I watched Chicago, beaten the previous week by Purdue, overpower Princeton with feelings as to the strength of the Tigers constantly mixed and changing. The Orange

MISSTEP LOGICAL WINNER OF FEATURE AT PIMLICO

LeMar Star Can Carry Weight

Balko Likely to Furnish Contention at Six Furlongs.

Rain or Shine Picked in Opener; Mabla Well Placed.

By LEONARD W. COLLINS.

PIMLICO'S annual fall weight-for-age race, an event that has always attracted more or less attention, in that it affords 2-year-olds an opportunity of measuring speed and stamina with more matured campaigners, is the programmed feature, this afternoon, at the Hilltop course.

Eleven have been nominated for today's headliner, among which are two juveniles, namely, the Sage Stable's Mad Hattie and the Dixiana Stable's Mucker. These youngsters must be highly regarded for they will be called upon to meet such formidable stars as Misstep, Balko, Buddy Bauer, Pennant Lass and others.

The top weights of the field are Misstep, Balko and Buddy Bauer, which have been assigned 130 pounds. The weights graduate down to Mucker and Mad Hattie, which get in with 111 and 108, respectively.

Despite his crushing impost and the fact that he ran a disappointing race in the Washington Handicap, the Le Mar Stock Farm's Misstep will in all probability go postward the public choice, although Balko, Buddy Bauer, Pennant Lass and one or two others will not be without support.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 2-year-olds.

1 Jovial Friar 112	7 *Ima Queen ...104
2 *Fantad 115	8 Guthrie 109
3 Fair Dawn 106	9 *Companion 107
4 Gnome Boy 109	10 *Norma Jean ...106
5 *Chestie Ann....112	11 Bibble Babble..112
6 Spantaft 106	12 *Guilder 109
Also eligible—
13 Stephanite 118	16 Audax 112
14 Starb'd Light .109	17 The Kid 112
15 Rain or Shine.112	18 Nell W. 109

RAIN OR SHINE shapes up as a sound hazard in the opening number. The Pluvius colt has demonstrated an ability to negotiate the going when it is the thoughest, in addition to possessing a fine turn of speed. CHESTIE ANN will get the smart play. This trick was considered invincible until she met up with Sweep Pic and others. However, she is strictly the one to beat. STEPHANITE is another that has shown to advantage in mud and figures next best.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 *Corposant 121	7 *Bidable 110
2 Fire Opal 113	8 *Shas. Flapper.108
3 *Chattahoochee.107	9 *Star Fish 105
4 *Star Gold 116	10 *Isostasy 111
5 *Vole 116	11 *Estelle Marie.102
6 Main Sheet 107	12 *Danger Signal.113
Also eligible—
13 Highl'd Fling..107	16 *The Doctor....110
14 *Sunspec 102	17 *Homelike 105
15 Ring On 116	18 Paula L. 112

PAULA L raced well enough around New York to get the call in this number. The daughter of Pennant is not overly fond of Portland cement as a side dish, but then we know some people who would eat a rubber boot if it was merely a matter of table etiquette. VOLE'S two races in back of Pellegrino were good, either one of which if repeated today would find the Prince Pal horse the contender. CORPOSANT proved a bust the last time out. Improvement over that race would not occasion any undue amount of surprise.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; for 2-year-olds.

1 Pios 108	6 Particular 116
2 Moine 111	7 King Kelly 106
3 Brown Trap 106	8 Culloden 111
4 Mabla 105	9 Hacky H. 111
5 Fort. Youth 108

MABLA seems well placed in this event. A winner of six straight over fast strips, the On Watch filly found Jim Butler's duck lake more greasy than wet and pulled up well beaten by Red Rag and others. Unless Al Robertson uses smooth plates she may do better today. MOINE displayed his true worth the last couple of times out. For the show we recommend FORTUNATE YOUTH. Look this bird's mud form up, also the class of company he has been traveling with.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $4,000 added; the Pimlico Weight for All Ages; for all ages.

1 My Sis 124	7 Pennant Lass..124
2 †Stroll'g Player.130	8 Balko 130
3 Martinique 127	9 Misstep 130
4 †Mucker 111	10 Baron King 127
5 Mad Hattie 108	11 Clean Play 130
6 Buddy Bauer....130

†Salubria Stable-Dixiana entry.

MISSTEP is not a standout in the feature—not by a jugful—but the Le Mar Stock Farm entrant does shape up as the most logical winner. True, he is picking up 130 pounds and will probably collect 10 more before it is all over, yet the Upset colt has a two-point call over the field. BALKO will furnish the contention, if there is any contention to come out of the running. The logical choice for the small end of the purse, everything considered, should be BUDDY BAUER. But not for us. You can give us $2 worth of MAD HATTIE to be third.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 Remedy 112	7 Candy Pig 118
2 Danish Prince..108	8 Sun Meddler....116
3 Perkins 114	9 Too High 105
4 Stupendous 117	10 Bask 120
5 Lommern 112	11 *B. Khayyam ..106
6 *Port. Harlem ..113	12 Channing L. 110

George Odom is reported as having shipped from New York a half-brother to a Krag-Jorgensen in Perkins.

In his two appearances of the year with colors up the Westy Hogan colt displayed all of that speed which characterized his running as a 2-year-old. He will need it today if he is to head such oil burners as Stupendous and Bask. We often wonder just how good is this Stupendous. At 10 to 1 he is a whale of a horse. At 6 to 5, not so good. Bask will have Port Harlem to trim for the show.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 *Black Friar....111	7 *Merida 108
2 Hamcaw 107	8 *Krick 108
3 Speedy Prince..116	9 Foun. Stone....116
4 *Spurrier 105	10 Spear Rock 116
5 Resourceful 118	11 Conjuror 110
6 *Fair Gold 108	12 Elizabeth S. ...107
Also eligible—
13 *Humdinger 111	16 Rea 107
14 *Prairie Girl...107	17 Bond Slave 116
15 Nat Evens....116	18 *Potent 111

Spear Rock was the medium for one of those old-fashioned hog-killings on opening day, but some one must have run away with the hog. However, the son of Spearwort would have taken the measure of Reform in another jump. If he can repeat that effort today he looks like a standout. Resourceful must always be given consideration in a field of this kind. Krick raced creditably a couple of times at Laurel. A race to best form would find her in the money.

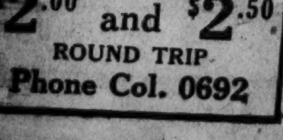

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1 Prin. Attention.118	4 Sanford 115
2 Play B. 114	5 Faux Pas 108
3 Fair Beth 110	6 Fair Class 118

*Apprentice allowance claimed.

Fair Beth should never leave the final number in doubt. The Fair Gain filly has been gradually moving up to brackets and right now is at the peak of form. She shapes up as the best hazard of the day. Princely Attention may be good enough to take down second portion of the spoils, while Sanford would not have to show anything startling to hold the others safe.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

WASH DAY.

Well here we are with the old lady hanging out the soiled linen already for another week of battle, but not without what appears on the surface as some spanking info.

The first melon to be cut is the consistent MINERVUS, which goes in the day's opener down at Latonia and which was the magnet of considerable overnight play. She possesses a bit of class and I know the stable is shooting. STAR FORWARD looms up as the contender but is named among the "also eligible" hence a doubtful starter. Any way you look at it, it is MINERVUS.

The Headley Stable seems to have the long end of the second at its mercy. This trick FIG LEAF is, I believe a trifle better than ordinarily rated. Is a grand good looker. FRISKY FLO will in all probability furnish the contention.

BIG BROTHER was an overnight "commissioner horse," so that dispels any doubt as to what the stable thinks of his chances. He goes in the third and BORIS is the contender. The latter has been knocking at the door for quite some time.

FANNIE J., in the fifth, looks like peaches and cream. Bound to show improvement over the last offer. I like her extra well.

Down at Pimlico I look for Danny Stewart to cop the long end of the third with CULLODEN. This is a real first class racer, and has a call of seven pounds. PARTICULAR, which will have Morris in the pilot house, also is well placed, especially if more rain falls. PIOUS has worked well enough to hold the others.

The grand little Westerner—MISSTEP, is slated to bear colors in the day's feature, a dash of 6 furlongs. Now I know all about his sprinting ability. Just shut your eyes. BALKO has his weight up and also BUDDY BAUER, which should divide the balance of the purse.

PERKINS, which is named in the fifth, is the clocker's XXX special. Lamp the gab they append: "Is back to the races fresh and good, and should tin can." Sounds like winning info to me. TOO HIGH, STUPENDOUS and BASK are well bunched.

FAIR BETH in the closing dash is another well fancied. You have the answer in your lily white duke. More anon.

Iroquois Gridmen Win Over Fort Myer, 42-0

The Battery A Eleven of Fort Myer furnished little opposition for the Alexandria Iroquois yesterday and took a 42 to 0 defeat. Led by Nugent and Hamilton, the Iroquois were in possession of the ball most of the way. Nugent counted six touchdowns, one after a 65-yard dash when he intercepted a Soldier pass.

The winners seek games with 135-pound teams. Call Franklin 8035.

Fort Myer Huskies Routed by Waverly

Scoring in every period yesterday the Waverly A. C. Eleven romped to a 32-to-0 victory over the Fort Myer Post Team. The Soldiers were completely outclassed, gaining but 2 first downs to 28 for the victors. Darby was the shining star in the winners' offense. Patrick and Eggleston performed well in the line. Barker and Donovan looked good for the losers.

ON THE SIDELINES

by BRIAN BELL

BILL ROPER, coach of the Princeton football team, in a radio talk on the game, suggested that the average spectator cheats himself every Saturday by watching the ball and its progress, or lack of it, to the exclusion of everything else on the field.

The Tiger leader suggested that the spectator might properly divide the game into four parts, the number of periods of a game. He would have the customers look at the ball throughout the first period just as a majority do now through the whole game.

At the beginning of the second period the spectators could with profit forget all about the ball and keep their eyes glued on the work of the offensive line, watching intently as the forwards charged against the opposition, cleaning up for the man with the ball following close behind.

After the intermission at the start of the third period the Roper recipe called for a sharp shift from offense to defense. Ignoring the offense, the customers could with profit, he said, spend the entire period observing the tactics of the defensive linemen in meeting the attack.

With a clear idea of the offensive and defensive strength and strategy the final period would be left for a putting together of the whole puzzle, with an analysis of the plans and perfection of the picture of the game as a whole.

Mr. Roper said frankly, in his address, that he was advising his hearers to do as he told them and not as he does at football games, for he sees little of the game from his seat on the Princeton bench. No coach does. A coach is too occupied watching the play of his own team to see much that is done by the opposition. At the start he "sizes up" the tactics of the opposing team for reference later, but his idea of the other team's play is hazy, to say the least.

THREE coaches once were asked about the ability of a player on a team played by all three. Two could remember nothing of his play and were unable even to give an idea of his appearance. The third said: "He must have been pretty good. They were making a lot of good tackles against us and I heard he was doing most of it."

One coach followed a practice of taking a stenographer with him to the bench when the game started. Every word the coach said, no matter how irrelevant it sounded at the moment, was noted. At skull practices following the games, the coach read his remarks made in the heat of battle. Some of the expressions could be read, but never could have been printed in a family newspaper.

At another university, an assistant coach sat in the stands far above the playing field, with glasses watching the moves on the field. At his side was a writing machine similar to the type used in banks by paying tellers to ask "Is this check good?" when a piece of paper is presented of which he may have his doubts. The assistant coach wrote steadily and possibly some of his observations were read with profit by the head coach on the bench.

Smart Fields Assured in Features

Additions to Lists Expected; Stars Eligible.

Endurance Handicap to Draw Leading 2-Year-Olds.

THE four stakes the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will stage at Prince Georges Park, Bowie, in the course of a meeting of twelve days that will begin November 18, have attracted 185 nominations, the Endurance Handicap, 61; the Thanksgiving, 46; the Southern Maryland, 45, and the Prince Georges, 33. There will be additions to the totals for each race when reports from the West are in, probably 10 to 15 in each. The impending renewals could do readily with what are in already, however.

Among the smart 2-year-olds named for the Endurance, a dash of one mile and a sixteenth, to be decided getaway day, that will have an added money value of $10,000; gross, about $15,000, and pay its winner about $12,000, are Gallant Knight, winner of the Breeders' Futurity; Peto, winner of the Wakefield and Albany handicaps; Flying Heels, winner of the Tia Juana Futurity, and the Nursery and Remsen handicaps; Sydney, winner of the Chicago Juvenile handicap; Gone Away, the only youngster, barring Which One, that licked Boojum before the running of the great Futurity, in which Which One, Hi Jack and Gallant Fox finished in front of him; also Crossbones, Stanton, Spinach, Enid, Berber, Banner Bright, Woodcraft, We Dun It, Yarn, High Signal, Jimmy Moran, Particular, Plucky Play, Politan, Mucker, Escutcheon, Ned O., Storm, Ping [illegible], Guide Right, Ojibway, King Kelly, Chestie Ann, Armageddon, Brown Admiral, Sistony, Misnot, Susie Jane, Etonardo, Maybe, Infinitus, Chio Boy, Hacky H., Dunsany, Khara, Zeal, Snappy, Snub, Captain Hook, Swimfield, Snowflakes, Waterfowl, Sun Craig, Sweet Sentiment, Martie, Culloden, Cymbal, Black Mammy, Light Touch, Prometheus, Skirl, Frumper, Chimney Sweep, Mad Kiss, Murky Cloud and Chalice.

Matured Campaigners In Thanksgiving.

Matured campaigners of renown in the Thanksgiving, a gallop of 1 mile and 1 furlong, to be run the day the title suggests, grossing about $15,000 and paying its winner about $12,000, are Sun Beau, Petee Wrack, Distraction, Diavolo, Misstep, Polydor, Easter Stocking, Genie, Hot Toddy, Buddy Bauer, Bateau, Display, Balko, Strolling Player, Gaffsman, Dowagiac, Sun Edwin, Princess Tina, Bobashela, Bewithus, William T., War Hawk, Clear Sky, Streamline, Le Bey, Canaan, Sour Mash, Mowlee, Martinique, Searcher and Low Gear. Three-year-old eligibles are Lativitch, Glenwild, Frisius, Priscilla Carter, Upset Lad, Bay Beauty, Carl Eitel, Sweet Verbena, Leucite, Grey Coat, Coin Collector, Dr. Freeland, Annapolis, Beacon Hill and Molasses Jane.

The Southern Maryland, which will be run Saturday, November 23, will be the second most generously endowed stake of the Maryland fall racing. There will be $30,000 in added money, the gross should be $50,000 or better, the winner's share of the purse upward of $40,000, possibly, as much as $45,000. The Pimlico Futurity alone will top this.

Open to horses of all ages, the Southern Maryland, a dash of 1 1-16 miles, has attracted the 2-year-olds Peto, Flying Heels, King Kelly, Susie Jane and Etonardo. The veterans in it are Sun Beau, Petee Wrack, Bateau, Misstep, Genie, Buddy Bauer, Hot Toddy, Polydor, Victorian, Distraction, Display, Strolling Player, Gaffsman, Dowagiac, Balko, Sun Edwin, Princess Tina, Easter Stocking, Bobashela, Bewithus, Clean Play, Streamline and Mowlee.

Lativich Is Among Eligibles.

ON VIRGINIA GRIDIRONS

(Associated Press.)

CAPT. BUTCH BLANTON was added to the list of Hampden-Sidney regulars who did not make the trip to Hamilton, N. Y., for the Colgate game. The Tiger chief was sent to a hospital with a badly infected foot and high temperature. He may be out of the game several weeks.

Hunter Faulconer, who is serving as quarter back of the Virginia eleven while Captain John Sloan is on the crippled list, had never called signals before he was suddenly called into service against V. M. I. Not even when he did prep school playing at Episcopal High did he act as field general.

Announcement comes from Charlottesville that Virginia will resume football competition with Kentucky after a lapse of 27 years. The Cavaliers and Colonels, as a matter of fact, have met on the gridiron but twice, in 1902 and 1903, Virginia winning both seasons.

Although the Maryland game was credited by V. M. I. coaches as being one of the toughest of the season, the Cadets came from the battle almost without injuries. Roy Dunn, the hard-driving full back, was the only casualty, and he is slated to be back in trim for the Clemson game at Norfolk November 9.

V. P. I. and Virginia will be playing football for the fourteenth time when they meet on Lambeth Field at the University November 9. The Cavaliers have won nine of the thirteen past games, but since the resumption of football relations in 1923, the series score stands even—3 to 3. The Gobblers and Cavaliers did not compete between 1905 and 1923.

Virginia fandom is treated to three Big Four football battles on three successive Saturdays and then must wait over a week-end for the V. M. I.-V. P. I. clash at Roanoke Thanksgiving. The Washington and Lee-V. P. I. game at Lynchburg last Saturday, is to be followed by the Virginia-V. P. I. game at Charlottesville November 9 and the Virginia-Washington and Lee game at Lexington November 16 on the joint Washington and Lee-V. M. I. home-coming day.

CANCEL GRID GAME.

The Arcadia Eleven canceled the game scheduled with the Powhatans yesterday because of bad weather. The Arcadians will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at 643 Kenyon street northwest.

2 CAROLINAS TO BATTLE SATURDAY

Tarheels, Gamecocks in 18th Game at Columbia.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Nov. 3.—The annual "Battle of the Carolinas," when North Carolina "Republicans" will renew their quarter-century grid feud with the South Carolina "Democrats," is carded for the Gamecocks' stadium, in Columbia, S. C., Saturday.

The Tar Heels displayed drive and flash against N. C. State yesterday, and with South Carolina showing great power against Citadel, conquerers of the Oglethorpe team that beat Georgia, prospects are for a hard, close battle.

The series history is a different story, for the Tar Heels hold a lopsided edge of 12 victories to two losses and three ties, one of which was last year's scoreless affair. The Tar Heels also hold a wide edge on points scored, having countered 236 points for the series to the Gamecocks' 46.

The two teams held their first meeting in 1903, and it took the Gamecocks 21 years to win a game, with just two tie scraps in between. The Tarheels won the first five games by margins of from three to five touchdowns, with South Carolina registering its first score in the 27-to-6 game of 1910.

Three Previous Games Have Been Tied.

The first of three tied battles came in 1912 when each team pushed over one touchdown, but the Tarheels won in 1913 and 1914, with the latter victory counting a 48-to-0 margin.

Since resumption of the rivalry after the World War, North Carolina has won five, lost two and tied two games. These figures show the series is waxing warmer. The close scores show the same thing. Even the famous 1922 Tarheels, undefeated South Atlantic champions, barely nosed out the Gamecocks, 10 to 7, in a game featured by Snipes' 67-yard run for South Carolina.

Bill Dodderer, fleet end and great Tarheel basket-ball star, recovered a blocked kick and ran 20 yards for a North Carolina touchdown and a 6-to-0 win in 1925. Tom Young, Tarheel half back, did the same thing to give North Carolina a victory the next year. The Tarheels last, 14 to 6, in Columbia in 1927, and last year's game, played on a mud-soaked Konan Stadium here, ended in a scoreless tie.

Conference Title Goal Of Hampden-Sidney

Special to The Washington Post.

Hampden-Sidney, Va., Nov. 3.—Having disposed of the last of its outside encounters, the Hampden-Sidney Football Team once more turns its eyes toward the State, setting out definitely in quest of the conference title.

While neither Coach Bernier nor the team expected to defeat opposition of the caliber met in Colgate, the veteran Tiger mentor was fairly well satisfied with the fine offensive strength displayed. The Tigers have already met V. M. I. and V. P. I. in the State and with the Colgate contest last Saturday have played two of the most potent teams in the East—Gil Dobie's rejuvenated Cornell Eleven being the other New York opponent.

"Beat Virginia," War Cry Of Virginia Poly Saturday

Rivals Meet at Charlottesville—Series Started in 1895—First 15 Battles Easy for Cavaliers, but Conditions Have Changed.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 3.—That old Tech war cry of the gridiron, "Beat Virginia!" will echo again and again across the V. P. I. campus this week. It's because Lambeth Field, at Charlottesville, is the next destination of Coach Andy Gustafson and his Gobbler eleven.

A wealth of tradition and interesting lore attend this battle. Like every tilt but one on the Tech schedule this fall, this game belongs to a series which dates back to the "gay nineties." When Virginia and V. P. I. played for the first time, but a handful of fair fans were numbered among the inaugural crowd, for few of the Charlottesville belles dared in those days to sit through such a rude and burly affair as a football game. The ladies came to the battleground at the university that 15th day of October, 1895, in long, flowing skirts, bulging sleeves, with, mayhap, a bustle or two, and carrying fringed parasols to ward off the rays of the autumn sun.

That was the first of fifteen battles between the Gobblers and the Cavaliers. For almost a decade the Gobbler was little more than a nice gridiron meal for the great teams at Thomas Jefferson's university.

In 1903 and '04, the famous Hunter Carpenter, one of the greatest half backs of all time, came out of Carolina to V. P. I. wedded to but one ambition, and that was to beat Virginia. Aided by "Sally" Miles, now graduate manager at the institute, Carpenter almost turned the trick in '03 and '04, the Techmen losing each year by a lone touchdown.

Carpenter just could not be stopped the following year in a game played within earshot of the famous rotunda at the university, and Tech snatched her first Cavalier scalp to the tune of 11 to 0. But here gridiron relations were severed for a period of 18 years and the teams did not meet again until 1923. Harry Sutton, V. P. I. captain, circled end in the final minutes for a 6-to-3 victory that day. This was the game for which V. P. I. alumni from Chicago to Schenectady gathered in their chapter rooms and received play-by-play accounts by leased wire direct from the sidelines on Lambeth Field.

Poly Team Was Victorious Last Season.

Virginia came back to blank the Gobblers, 6-0, in '24 and 10-0 in '25. Tech eked out a 6-to-0 home-coming win in '26; Virginia got sweet revenge at Charlottesville in '27 and Frank Peake, Tech ace, raced in true story book style to a 20-to-0 home-coming victory in Miles Stadium here a year ago.

Now it is the Cavaliers' time, but V. P. I. will concentrate every iota of her strength this week in search of another Cavalier scalp. Both are very much in the championship race, although conference hopes are shattered, and both will set the stage this week for what looms as a most dramatic chapter to a gridiron thriller.

Martinsburg Pitcher Goes to San Antonio

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 3.—George Malicky, one of the leading pitchers of the Martinsburg Club of the Blue Ridge League for the last season, has been drafted by the San Antonio Club of the Texas League, it has been announced. The draft price was $800. Malicky is the first player from the local club, which is owned by the Philadelphia Athletics, or from the league, to be taken by the draft so far this fall. He spent the entire season here and had a record for the year of eighteen games won and eleven lost. Malicky was sent here by the Athletics after spending the spring training season with that club in Florida. His home is in Nebraska.

LOUISIANA S. NEXT FOE OF DUKE

Tigers Boast Shiftiest, Fastest Backs in Conference.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 3.—The team that meets Duke here Saturday, Louisiana State University, probably has the fastest and shiftiest backs in the whole Southern Conference. In five early-season games the Tigers scored 228 points, giving the opposition little chance to carry the ball and holding the five opponents to 27 points.

One of the star backs of the Tigers is "Broncho" Brown, champion 100-yard and 220-yard sprinter of the Southern Conference. He weighs 165 pounds and carries the poundage faster than any running back in the South.

"Snake" Bowman is another track star, having been a member of the last Olympic team. He is rated the shiftiest back ever to enter the Tiger colors. He weighs 155 pounds.

In Johnny Hendricks the Tigers claim the best broken-field runner in the history of the school. He also is a track star. He weighs 155 pounds. Butler, Renfroe and Keller are some other fast men in the back field.

Reeves Ranks High Among "Triple Threat."

The weightier backs who do some line bucking are Holden and Smith, at 185 pounds, and Reeves, Stevens and Pebbles, at 175. Reeves passes, punts, bucks and blocks. He is one of the main cogs in the fast-scoring machine. Bowman and Smith also pass. There is not a third-year man in the back field. Stevens, Smith, Butler, Bowman and Keller are first-year men and the others are playing regular for the second season.

With every indication of facing a fast running style of attack, the Blue Devils will be given an extra course in defensive play to meet such a game.

W. VA. MEETS FORDHAM ELEVEN

Mountaineers Aim to Repeat 1928 Victory Tomorrow.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Over a sixteen-year period, West Virginia University football teams have met Cavanaugh-coached elevens three times on the gridiron and not once have the Mountaineers been turned back defeated. In 1916, a great West Virginia grid machine journeyed to Dartmouth, where Maj. Cavanaugh was coaching at that time, and played the Big Green to a 7-to-7 deadlock. I. E. Rodgers, present head coach of the Mountaineers, played full back and plowed through the center of the line for 13 yards and the tieing touchdown.

Just eleven years later, this same Rodgers, in his first year as head at West Virginia, piloted a powerful Mountaineer machine to a 20-to-0 victory over Boston College at Boston, where Maj. Cavanaugh was coaching in 1925. The Eagles had not been tied or scored upon until the Rodgers-coached eleven turned the trick on Braves Field early in November.

Mountaineers 1928 Victors By 18-0 Score.

Last November at the Yankee Stadium, New York, Rodgers' proteges again trounced a Cavanaugh eleven when Fordham was beaten, 18-0, in an Election Day battle. Rodgers and Cavanaugh are familiar with each other's systems, and both coaches are firm believers in that adage which holds that "a good offense is the best defense." The Mountaineers and the Rams go out on the gridiron with the intention of scoring a touchdown drive right off the reel and they unleash a slashing attack upon receiving the kickoff. Many elevens play along for the "breaks" and are content to punt and place the burden of the attack and accompanying fumble errors on the opposition, but neither Rodgers nor Cavanaugh are exponents of this system.

A fine running and passing attack has been built around Captain "Little Sleepy" Glenn, quarter back; Boxcar Bus Larue, a line-blasting half back; "Tarzan" Glenn, plunging full back; Eddie Stumpp, brilliant forward passer, and Ed Bartrug, lanky punter, who is rated the best kicker in eastern college circles.

The Mountaineer ends, Bill Behnke and Nelson Lang, are fine pass receivers; both are playing their third and final year of football and are climaxing brilliant grid careers with their best performances. The West Virginians, under the tutelage of Coach Rodgers, former All-American full back (1919), and Walter E. "Red" Mahan, All-American guard (1925), are planning to keep their record against Cavanaugh elevens immaculate next Tuesday at the Polo Grounds.

Webster defines "news" as fresh information concerning something that has recently taken place. Because so much of news interest occurs during the hours of the night a morning newspaper is the logical medium to read for "news when it is NEWS." The Washington Post is not only TIMELY but also accurate and complete in its coverage of events and happenings at home and throughout the world.

BROOKLAND ELEVEN DEFEATS ST. STEPHEN'S, 12-0

Senior Class Teams Tied For Lead

THE Brookland A. C. and Mohawk Prep Elevens stand all even at the top of the Capital City League senior football standings as the result of their respective victories yesterday.

Playing alert football from start to finish and taking advantage of every mistake of their foes, the Brookland Eleven scored the most impressive victory of the two in turning back the St. Stephen's A. C. outfit, 12 to 0. The latter was dropped into a tie with the Mercurys for third place.

Hawk Preps Forced To Show Best.

Forced to show their best, the Hawk Preps trimmed the Marions, 11 to 0. The defeated team filed a protest following the game, claiming that Referee Simpson interpreted the rules incorrectly.

As promised the Brookland-Saint clash was a gruelling battle from start to finish. Early in the second period the victors got a break and possession of the ball on St. Stephen's 25-yard mark. On three plays, with Holden and Leroy toting the oval, the first touchdown was scored. Leroy made the final plunge. The final Brookland score came in the final period when Johnny Holden intercepted a pass and dashed 35-yards to the end zone. It was the best piece of open field running of the game.

McPherson is Star For Winners.

For three periods the Marions waged a brutal battle to keep their goal line untrampled and the lone Hawk Prep touchdown came in the last period. Two safeties were registered by the Victories earlier in the game, however. Q. McPherson played a great game for the Victories. It was he that pulled Bell and Harper down behind their own goal line for safeties and also scored the single touchdown. Cornell also figured prominently for the Preps. Lanham rushed the ball for the extra point.

Too Many Banquets Send Mack to Bed

Philadelphia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Too many banquets have caused Connie Mack, 67-year-old manager of the world's champion Athletics, to take to his bed with the advice of his physician that he go slow on social functions for the present. His condition is not serious, it was said, and he expects to be up and about again in a few days.

Since winning the world series, Mack has attended many functions in his honor. He was to have been the guest at the Philopatrians' dinner Tuesday night, but in view of his illness it has been postponed.

he died. The body was removed to an undertaking establishment to await the arrival of relatives.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—John E. Madden, who died in New York today, was one of the outstanding horse breeders in America. Six Kentucky Derby winners were bred by Mr. Madden. These were: Flying Ebony, 1925; Zev, 1923; Paul Jones, 1920; Sir Barton, 1919; Old Rosebud, 1914, and Plaudit, 1898.

Mr. Madden was known in Kentucky as the "Master of Hamburg Place," his estate where he bred most of his racers. He wintered his yearlings at Churchill Downs and took them East in the spring. His Hamburg Place is one of the show places of Kentucky, and contains the horse cemetery which has caused national comment.

Several years ago Mr. Madden decided to sell his horses, and kept only Sir Martin. The famous trainer at one time took Sir Martin to the Epsom Derby in England, and the great horse fell while in the lead. He said he retained Sir Martin for sentimental reasons.

Incidentally, Sir Martin is the sire of Spinach, which William Ziegler, jr., recently purchased and which was beaten a nose by Flying Heels in the Pimlico Futurity, Friday.

Among famous horses Mr. Madden has owned was Imp. Starshoot, which led American sires for the amount of winnings gathered by his get for a number of years.

Cawthon, Florida U. Grid Captain, Married in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Rainey Cawthon, captain and full back of the University of Florida football team, today accomplished what he undoubtedly would describe as the longest run of his career. It consisted of six or seven steps up to the altar in the Little Church Around the Corner, where he married Miss Sarah Lovell Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Payne, of Nashville, Tenn.

The entire Florida football squad, which yesterday fulfilled an engagement with Harvard up in Cambridge, attended the wedding, together with John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former National Commissioner of Education. Coach Charles W. Bachman and Dale Van Sickle, Florida's all-American end of a year ago.

Some of the guests bore evidence of having been in a football game yesterday. The bridegroom himself had a bright, new bruise across the bridge of his nose, and so did the best man, Ben Clemons, of Tallahassee, center on the Florida team.

And back in the audience, his pockets bulging with rice obtained after a painstaking survey of whatever delicatessen stores were open Sunday morning, stood Carlos Proctor, one of the outstanding tackles of the South, with several inches of ahesive tape plastered over his countenance.

The Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, rector of the Little Church Around the Corner, performed the ceremony. Miss Virginia Payne, of Nashville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Dr. Thomas Alexander, of New York, a friend of both families, gave the bride in marriage.

Neither the bride's parents nor Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cawthon, of Tallahassee, parents of the bridegroom, were here for the wedding. It was planned rather suddenly, their friends explained, just before Capt. Cawthon and his team left for the North last week.

The bridegroom's father is State superintendent of public instruction in Florida.

Cawthon and his bride met last summer while she was teaching dramatics at the University of Florida summer school a few months ago. The bride is studying for her degree as doctor of philosophy at Columbia University this year.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.
Palace, 0; Columbias, 0.
Janney, 12; Wolverines, 2.
Mardfeldts, 6; Brentwood, 6.

COLUMBIA, A. C. halted the steady march of the champion Palace A. C. Eleven yesterday in the 133-pound class race of the Capital City League when the teams battled the limit in a scoreless deadlock. Janney A. C. jumped into a tie for the lead by trimming the Wolverines, 12 to 2, while the Brentwood Hawks and Mardfeldts finished hostilities on even terms, 6 to 6.

By their victory, the Columbias kept within striking distance of the leaders, just one point to the rear. It was the second tie game for the Columbias.

Loose handling of the wet ball hurt the chances of both teams, although the Palacians committed the most costly fumbles. Twice the ball was within 10 yards of the Columbias' goal line but on each occasion the ball was lost on fumbles. Most of the play was confined to midfield.

Janney Forced to Battle.

Janney A. C. had to battle all the way to turn back the Wolverines. Weber scored for the victors in the first period after a steady march from midfield and Harry blocked and recovered B. Campbell's punt for the second touchdown in the third round. The Wolverines carried the ball to the 6-inch mark once but could not score. B. Campbell broke through to tackle Fletcher behind his goal for the lone points of the Wolverines.

The Brentwood Hawks scored their first point of the season and the Mardfeldts figured in their third tie game of the season when they battled on even terms at Burroughs Field. Wood scored for the Mardfeldts in the second period and the Hawks knotted the count in the third when Hardstaet broke through for a touchdown. Neither try for the extra point was successful.

Navy Expecting Battle From G. U. on Saturday

Kohlhas, Only Penn Game Casual, to Be Ready for Hilltop Clash—40,000 Fans Scrambling for 22,000 Seats.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 3.—Navy emerged from the Pennsylvania game disappointed, of course, that victory was not theirs, but consoled to some extent that there are no casualties to cause any setback to preparations for remaining games of the schedule. The game ran true to forecasts of the Navy mentors, a hard battle, with the chances favoring the Middies, but as Commanedr Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics, explained, the Quakers were smart enough to turn one of their opportunities into a touchdown that proved sufficient to win, whereas the Naval lads fell down on their chances.

There will be no let up for the Middies this week, for the next foe to be encountered will be Georgetown on the coming Saturday, listed as the big home game of the season, and it is realized here that the Hilltoppers will bear close watching. They are noted for putting up their greatest battle when they visit Annapolis. Undoubtedly their 14 to 0 victory over New York University yesterday will inspire them to greater effort in the Navy clash.

Kohlhas Injured, But Will Face Georgetown.

The only Navy player injured to any extent against Penn was Kohlhas, whose elbow was slightly sprained during the short time that he substituted at quarter back, but it is stated he will be available for service against the Blue and Gray.

While the coaches will start tomorrow to do more special pointing, what is worrying the athletic authorities most just now is how they are going to handle the ticket situation, and indications are there will be thousands among the disappointed. With the permanent stand and portable bleachers that will be set up there will be seating accommodations for a little short of 22,000, Commander Frederick Greinicke, graduate manager of athletics, stated today, and he added that more than 40,000 requests have been received. The Naval School charges no admission, and this is the only game of the season which makes it a necessity to issue tickets, not alone to Farragut Field, but to the Naval rseervation as a whole on the day of the game.

A block of 6,000 tickets was sent to Georgetown officials, under the contract, which means that the Navy athletic officials will distribute 16,000. When Georgetown played here three years ago, there was such a jam of fans from Washington and Baltimore that it was with difficulty that watchmen at the gates, managed to enforce regulations.

City to Cooperate in Handling Crowd Expected.

Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis, has taken steps to cooperate with officials of the academy in handling automobile traffic. In addition to the regular force of 10 city policemen, and one State and one city motorcycle patrolman, the mayor will detail about a dozen special officers for this duty. Officials of the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis Electric Railways also will lend a hand in this regard. They have announced that the schedule of operating trolley cars through the city will be suspended from 2 o'clock until 6.

SIX TEAMS RATED IN NATIONAL RACE

and Black eleven is too spotty to be judged accurately.

As suggested a week ago, it was right to judge Harvard by the play of the first three periods against Dartmouth and not by that disorganized and devastating fourth quarter. The real strength of the Crimson asserted itself against Florida. The eleven has balance and uniformity and all it needs to be top class is the vitalizing spark of a superior star like a French, a Booth or a Marsters. It is only a shade behind Yale and Dartmouth.

California Shows Strength.

California must have high merit to stand a trip across the continent to beat Penn and then on returning to beat Southern California, which defeated Stanford. Nibs Price is gaining national recognition as a coach. Incidentally Roy Riegels and his merry men took some of the zip out of the Notre Dame-Southern California game later in the season.

Notre Dame continues to show that class which marks quality in a team. It now has safely and smoothly passed over such a strong array as Indiana, Navy, Wisconsin, Carnegie Tech and Georgia Tech. The new stable of horsemen is proving to be as effective as the famous four.

The Navy has not improved over the fine play exposed against Notre Dame. Rather has it slipped a bit. The Midshipmen are playing out of luck. The breaks are against them, not with them.

Pitt Outstanding Team In Eastern Grid Race

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The plunge of Dartmouth from the ranks of the undefeated in that breathtaking 16-to-12 game in the Yale Bowl yesterday leaves Pittsburgh all but alone in the vanguard of Eastern football teams. The Panthers ran their string to six straight victories by trouncing Ohio State by 18 to 2 in the Pittsburgh Stadium yesterday.

Little Western Maryland, coached by Dick Harlow, matched Pittsburgh's record, so far as mere figures are concerned, by turning back St. John's of Annapolis for its sixth successive victory, but Western Maryland will have nothing to dispute with Pittsburgh, even if both should finish undefeated and untied, which now seems likely.

Cornell Remains Unbeaten.

Cornell held on to its place a step back of Pittsburgh by rallying against Columbia to win by 12 to 6. That gave the Big Red team five straight triumphs with Dartmouth and Pennsylvania yet to be encountered.

Although dropped from the championship fight by Yale in the New Haven spectacle, Dartmouth retained the lead in team scoring, extending its mark to 268. Syracuse with 233 points, Colgate with 229 and Pittsburgh with 202 are the only other Eastern elevens in the double-century class. No team has an uncrossed goal line, and two elevens are above the 200-mark in opponents' scores. These are Vermont with 254 against and Hobart with 264 points.

Southern Methodists Out of S. W. Grid Race

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Except to remove Southern Methodist University fairly definitely from the list of outstanding contenders for the Southwest Conference title, Saturday's warfare did little toward clarifying the conference race.

Although the Mustangs managed to play a scoreless tie with the powerful Texas University Longhorns in the week's big skirmish, the Methodists showed nothing to brand them championship material. They were roundly outplayed. Their disappointing showing made it evident that the fight is a three-cornered one between Texas, Baylor and Texas Christian.

twice in late years, may spring an upset. That isn't as foolish as it sounds if one will remember that the Terrapins seem to have the habit of knocking off top-heavy favorites, which, in this meeting, the Elis certainly will be.

There is nobody like Snitz Snyder in the Maryland back field this year to plough through Yale's line, and Yale has the marvelous Albie Booth to turn loose when it pleases. Compared with pre-game conditions in 1928, Maryland's chances of winning are far poorer, but, even so, don't bet the house or the car that Coach Byrd's team won't leave New Haven victorious

American U. Ends Season at Chestertown.

American University swings back into its schedule in its fina game, that with Washington College at Chestertown, Md. The Eagles are hopeful of closing their season with a win. George Washington, however, seems to be going deeper into the depths of failure and hasn't even much hope of winning its next contest, isted with St. Joseph's.

Gallaudet, encouraged still more by its 6-0 defeat of Baltimore University, will try conclusions with Temple at Philadelphia and from present indications, the Blues will hold the Owls to a more respectable score than in 1928. A Gallaudet victory, despite the fact this year's team is the best Coach Hughes has turned out in several years, can hardly be expected, however.

ROCKVILLE'S SOCCERISTS SURPRISED

Bow to Silver Spring, 3-2—Marlboro Beats Irish.

SILVER SPRING'S fast-going soccer outfit gave the champion Rockville Club of the Capital City League, the surprise of the season yesterday when it won a closely contested 3-to-2 game on the Silver Spring field. Marlboro encountered unexpected difficulty in downing Gaelic-Americans, 3 to 1, in the only other league game played.

Both Fashion Shop and the referee assigned to officiate the match between that team and Gaithersburg failed to put in an appearance at Gaithersburg and, as a consequence, the Capital City League officials will have a tangle to untwist at the weekly meeting tonight in the playground office. They will have to decide whether or not the failure of the referee to put in an appearance affects the absence of the Fashion Shop squad.

The newly organized Washington Soccer Club proved a distinct disappointment to the fans who braved the wet underfooting and drizzling rain on the Monument grounds to view its match with British United. The latter club played rings around the chesty Scotchmen to get an 8-to-1 verdict in a non-league game.

John Gunn's Silver Spring squad played like old-timers in the first half, when it scored all of its three goals, but in the second 45 minutes of play it resorted too much to defensive tactics and, as a result, the Rockville soccerists came within a goal of equalizing in the closing minutes of the game. R. Collins was the Rockville star, while Versluis led the attack for the winners.

Gaelic-Americans played a stellar game to hold the fast Marlboro squad to a 3-to-1 score. Mann, Madden, Gallagly and Jack fought desperately to give the Irish a victory, but the superb work of the Wyville brothers and Bowie, of Marlboro, were too much for the new Gaelic squad to overcome.

Routis, Abad to Head St. Louis Fight Card

St. Louis, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—St. Louis will enter the list of big league boxing centers Tuesday night with a pretentious program marking the opening for fistic shows of the city's new $2,000,000 arena, seating 21,000 persons, which recently housed the national dairy show.

Heading the fight card will be a ten-round bout between Andre Routis, of France, former featherweight title holder, and Davey Abad, Panama title contender, who will meet at 130 pounds. In the supporting card Benny Bass, Philadelphia, also former title holder, meets Augie Pisano, New York City, in ten rounds, and Eddie Shea, Chicago, swaps blows with Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser, St. Louis, in ten rounds.

Style No. 7 of Bostonians' Seven Selected Styles for Fall

Here it is, gentlemen, the SPORT SHOE the style experts chose

WHAT'S correct in sport shoes this season? The "Gridiron." It's the shoe the Style Committee selected—and certainly they know what's smart and up to date.

Come see this husky Bostonian. One glance at its rich Scotch-Grain leather—at its handsome wing-tip and its distinctive pattern—and you're bound to agree it's a masterpiece of shoe design.

Then slip into a pair and your feet will confirm the judgment of your eyes. There's solid comfort and sturdiness in the "Gridiron"—qualities you'll appreciate on crisp days. You'll like its modest price too—only $10.00, though it looks and feels like double the money.

May we prove all this—on your feet?

TRUSTEES' SALE OF UNIMPROVED LOTS FRONTING ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF BENNING ROAD, BETWEEN 18TH AND 19TH STREETS NORTHEAST, AND ALSO TWO UNIMPROVED LOTS IMMEDIATELY IN THE REAR THEREOF.

By virtue of two decrees of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia passed in Equity Cause Nos. 43349 and 46685, we will sell at public auction in front of the premises on TUESDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1929, at FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M. the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia and being lots 20 and 21, in Walter Heiston's subdivision of lots in block 22 in a subdivision of "Isherwood," as per plat recorded in liber county 8, folio 33, of the records of the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Said lot 21 subject to right of way over the rear 3 feet of said lot to be used as an alley. Also part of lot 13, in block 22, in the subdivision of "Isherwood," as per plat recorded in liber Governor Shepherd, folio 13, of the records of the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, described as follows: Beginning for the same on the north line of a public alley said line being also the south line of said lot 13, at a point distant 12 feet east of the southwest corner of said lot; thence east along said line of said alley 24 feet; thence north at right angles to said alley 48 feet; thence west parallel with said line of said alley 24 feet; thence south 48 feet to the point of beginning. The above described land is designated on the records of the Assessor of the District of Columbia for taxation purposes as lots 20, 21, 807 and 808, in square 4513.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from the day of sale, and to be represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of six per centum per annum, payable semiannually, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. $300.00 deposit required upon acceptance of bid. All conveyancing, notary fees and recording at purchaser's cost. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Factions in Milk Row Near Truce

Two Main Points Agreed On in Kansas City Wrangle; Producers Score.

Kansas City, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A settlement of the controversy between the Milk Producers Association and the Kansas City Pasteurizers that for weeks disrupted normal distribution of milk in Greater Kansas City seems to be in sight. Conferences between the two organizations and Dr. Clyde L. King, Philadelphia economist, have resulted in agreement on the two main points at issue.

The points agreed upon are in favor of the producers, i. e.: That the producers have a right to organize and maintain a sales organization for collective bargaining with the pasteurizers, who are the distributors; and that the producers are entitled to have a representative in the distributors' plants to check weights and measures.

The question of a higher price for the producers was passed pending a complete analysis of the dairy problem here. The milk strike recently was called off after the chamber of commerce got the two sides together. It was agreed that normal distribution be resumed pending an economic survey of the situation.

Deer in Chicken Yard Is Lifted Over Fence

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 3 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Two policemen, equipped with lassos, today rescued a 250-pound deer that had bounded into a chicken run here and was unable to get away.

The run adjoins the chicken coops of Enrico D'Aprile, and is closed in by a 10-foot wire fence. The deer made the leap into the run successfully, but found itself too cramped to make the necessary take-off for an escape. So D'Aprile called police, and Policemen Hendricks and O'Neill, after a number of failures, succeeded in lassoing the frightened animal by the front and hind legs. A police truck then took it to a farm outside the city, where it will be treated for the bruises it gave itself against the wire fence and then turned loose.

Nationalist Army Reported Beaten

"People's" Forces Score Win as Opponents Desert, Japanese Learn.

Hankow, Nov. 4 (A.P.).—The Japanese Military Intelligence stated today that the Kuominchun, or "People's Army," had scored a decisive victory over the Nationalist troops along the northwest border of the Provinces of Hupeh and Honan, near Laohokow, Hupeh. Chengchow dispatches said 10,000 Nationalist forces deserted and began ravaging the countryside, while an equal number refused to fight.

Further reports told of wounded Nationalists flooding into Chengchow from the west. The majority were suffering from sword and bayonet wounds, indicating the Kuominchun were engaging in hand-to-hand combat to conserve ammunition. Officials of Laohokow were fleeing in confusion as the invaders neared the city.

The Japanese dispatch said the Kuominchun crushed the Nationalist forces, the victory resulting in great confusion. Laohokows are fleeing.

Business IS Sound

It is our belief and conviction that the general industrial and business condition of the country is fundamentally sound and is essentially unimpaired.

We see nothing in the present situation that should stop the steady, forward, deliberate progress of America.

American Business and Industry will go forward with assurance of full banking co-operation.

This is the considered judgment of our Directors, representing many phases of American Commerce: Manufacturing, Transportation, Merchandising and Finance.

FIRE ENGINE LACKS STATION IN FAIRFAX

Herndon Citizens Obtain Lot for Apparatus; Building Plans Drawn.

VOTERS HELD APATHETIC

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

The Fairfax Fire Department has an $8,000 fire engine and is looking for a home for it for the coming winter. The firemen keep it in a livery stable now, but a livery stable is held no place for a modern fire apparatus in winter. Even with the use of anti-freeze mixture, the water in the engine is likely to freeze and put the apparatus out of commission when it is needed.

The firemen deplore lack of cooperation by the citizens.

Herndon has had better luck. A lot has been obtained near the station of the Washington & Old Dominion Railway on which to build a modern firehouse. Plans for a two-story story building, 35 by 42 feet, have been completed. George Harrison has raised $1,500 toward payments on the new engine by pledges from the citizens of the surrounding country.

The new pumper purchased by the McLean and Vienna Fire Departments will be given a 12-hour underwriters' test at the fish wharf in Washington November 11. The public has been invited to see the test. The pumper thereafter will be stationed at McLean.

Apathy among the Republican voters of Fairfax County may send a Democrat to the House of Delegates again, supporters of the Republican candidate, L. L. Freeman, of Vienna, admit. At first, Democrats feared that a Republican would win this post for the first time in many sessions of the Legislature, but they are now gaining confidence, in spite of the whirlwind campaign being conducted by Freeman, who is speaking in almost every community in the county. The Democratic candidate, M. D. Hall, has made no public speeches.

New registrars and new registration books will mark tomorrow's election. The old lists, which were inaccurate, have been corrected and transferred into four new books.

The present registrars of the county, with whom every prospective voter must be registered, are as follows: Accotink Precinct, Mrs. William Anderson; Annandale, G. L. Seamon; Bayliss, Marshall Davis; Burke, Mrs. Edna Davis; Centerville, E. C. Utterback; Clifton, Morris Davis; Dranesville, J. L. Money; Fairfax, James Adams; Falls Church, C. M. Sale; Forestville A. C. Speight; Gum Springs, Mrs. E. L. Popkins; Herndon, Andrew G. Hutchison; Langley, Lorin Magarity; The Lick, Benjamin I. Klock; Moore's, Mrs. W. E. Broders; Pender, Ernest Gheen; Pleasant Valley, Mrs. R. A. Rector; Pullman, Mrs. Herbert Blunt; Swetnam, Mrs. M. I. Hall; Thompson, Jether Dove; Thornton, H. W. Trickett; Vienna, R. L. Ballard; Well's A. N. Taylor; West End, Mrs. Estelle Woltz; Woodyard, Lemuel Davis.

Lytten Gibson was elected president of the Junior Society of the Madison School in Fairfax at a reorganization meeting recently held under direction of Miss Nancy Gregory Edwards. Other officers are Alice Browning, vice president; Mary Alice Ankers, secretary; Anne Harrison, supervisor; Ellen Coward, reporter; Emily Van Doren and Lawrence Kenyon, critics. Miss Mary Byrd Buckston and Miss Ella Harper will be faculty advisers.

Province Henery will be the president of the Jefferson High School Literary Society; Pauline Palmer, vice president; Evelyn Via, secretary; John Taylor, supervisor; Jane Cline and George Thompson, critics, and Madeline Taylor, reporter. Faculty advisers will be Miss Anne Haris and Mrs. Ruby Douglas.

Clarence Fleming, assistant superintendent of the Centerville Southern Methodist Sunday school, was announced yesterday as the new president of the Centerville District Sunday School Association. The meeting was held in the Bull Run Church of the Brethren with an attendance of over 60 Sunday school workers of the county. F. M. Allder, of Pender Southern Methodist Church, is vice president, and Miss Catherine Doak, of Clifton Bresbyterian Church, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Clarence Fleming was elected superintendent of the primary department; Mrs. Paul Allder, young people's department; W. H. Richards, Clifton, adult department; Mrs. W. B. Doak, Clifton, home department, and the Rev. S. Y. Craig, pastor of the Fairfax and Clifton Baptist Churches, teacher training. Mrs. Howard Myers was chairman of the nominating committee, which comprised also Mrs. Ruth Powell, Miss Catharine Doak and A. Birch.

At a recent meeting of the Dranesville District Sunday School Association in the Baptist Church at Herndon the following officers were elected for the coming year: Albert Adrian, president; Frederick W. Robinson, vice president; Mrs. Holden Harrison, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. J. R. Wiehle, Sunset Hills, teacher training; Joseph Wheeler, Brown's Chapel, adult department; Miss Edith Rogers, Floris, home department; Mrs. Estelle Ricker, young people's department; Mrs. Harvey E. Haynes, primary department, and Mrs. Wilson McNair, Floris, cradle roll department.

A benefit concert will be given by the Accotink Lodge, I. O. O. F., tomorrow evening in the Woodlawn Community House. Entertainment will be furnished by the Shenandoah Ramblers, old-time fiddlers; Ethel West, Frances Williams, Chick Godfrey and Woodville Brown, hill-billy entertainers, and two black-faced comedians.

The Pioneer Grange of Masonville will meet tomorrow night in the town hall at Amandale. At the completion of the business meeting H. H. Ankers, of Merrifield, will speak. Mrs. W. Ellington and Mrs. Andrew Cornelius will furnish a musical program.

A luncheon will be served by the women of the Community Library Association of McLean at the polls tomorrow. Mrs. U. S. Walters and Mrs. A. M. Berthisume will be in charge.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Vienna Volunteer Fire Department will give an oyster supper at the Vienna schoolhouse from 12 to 8 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The board of deacons of the Columbia Baptist Church of Falls Church will hold a meeting tonight at the home of the Rev. U. S. Knox. Plans will be formulated for an evangelistic campaign to begin the following Sunday.

Tomorrow morning the Falls Church Ministerial Association will meet with Dr. Knox, president. It will decide whether to observe an interdenominational week of prayer in January.

Miss Anna Crimmins will preside at a meeting in St. James' Hall in West Falls Church tomorrow night of the young people of the St. James' Parish, to organize a Catholic mission crusade.

Plans to obtain a new school site will be one of the topics discussed tomorrow night at a meeting of the Ranconia School and Community League. Also the proposed extension of telephone and electric facilities will be considered. An entertainment will follow the business meeting.

The School and Community League of McLean will hold its annual meeting tonight in the Franklin Sherman High School. The entertainment committee appointed by President J. H. Beatty comprises John Payne, chairman; Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, Mrs. L. H. Crowder, Gordon E. Smith and J. C. Storm. Following the business meeting the pupils of the school will give an entertainment.

The first fox hunt of the Fairfax Hunt Club has been postponed from November 9 to November 13 so as not to conflict with a hunt planned by the Laudoun Hunt Club. Invitations have been extended to the hunt clubs of the surrounding country and Washington.

The local hunt will start from the home of A. Smith Bowman at Sunset Hills. Mr. Bowman will serve an early breakfast to the club members and their guests.

FIFTH DISTRICT VOTE STILL IS DOUBTFUL

Democrats and Coalition Claim Victory While Election Nears.

LOCAL CONTESTS WARM

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 3.—The outcome of Tuesday's election in the Fifth Virginia Congressional District is in considerable doubt, with Democratic leaders and coalition party chiefs making counterclaims. J. Murray Hooker, chairman of the party, whose home is in this district, believes it will record a majority of from 1,500 to 2,000 for the Democratic ticket. The Brown forces are claiming victory by even a larger figure. Halifax, Henry and Charlotte are regarded by the Democrats as "safe," less defection being reported there than in Pittsylvania, Carroll, Grayson, Patrick and Franklin Counties, where Republican organizations have been maintained for years.

Warm local fights are to be determined. Chief among these is the Commonwealth attorneyship in which John W. Carter, incumbent for fifteen years and primary nominee for the Democrats, is opposed by Meade Flynn, local Republican attorney.

Seven candidates are out for three seats in the State House of Delegates. Maitland Bustard, Letcher Bryant and Lovell Witcher are the Democratic nominees; James A. Conway, B. F. Carter and Hugh Robertson are the Brown candidates, with H. C. Ficklen, who represented Danville last year, running as an independent.

Six thousand persons are entitled to vote here. The belief is that the vote will be unusually heavy. The application for mail ballots has been larger than at any other time.

Former Dry Officer's Wife Alleges Beating

Mrs. Kate Fields Ruby, 30 years old, S street near Nineteenth northwest, received treatment at 9:30 o'clock last night at Emergency Hospital for painful bruises about the arms and body which she was quoted as telling Eighth Precinct police had been inflicted by her husband, Ralph Edward Ruby, 34 years old, of the same address, and a former Federal prohibition agent.

Policeman C. C. Williams reported that friends of Mrs. Ruby, hearing a commotion in the apartment, summoned the Third Precinct patrol and took her to the hospital, after Ruby was said to have disappeared.

1,000 HEAR BYRD HIT COALITIONISTS

Governor Is Speaker at Rally in Fauquier County; Cheered by Crowd.

SAUNDERS ALSO TALKS

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 3.—One thousand enthusiastic voters crowded the Warrenton Theater last night for the big Democratic rally held there The Citizens' Band of Alexandria, under leadership of Roger Sullivan, city treasurer, paraded the streets of the town and played from the stage. Harrison Nesbit, president of the Fauquier Democratic Club, presided. Miss Hebe Sturgis, of Marshall, soprano of St. Paul's Church, of Alexandria, sang.

Gov. Harry F. Byrd was introduced amid cheers. He said at the outset that Jennings C. Wise had been in his, the governor's, home city of Winchester, denouncing him, but he believed the people there knew him better than Wise did.

He described Dr. Brown as a mental gymnast, who had evaded the issue on how he voted on the short ballot, which the governor said was strictly a nonpartisan issue. He assailed both Brown and Anderson, Republican leader.

Gets Daily Statements.

Byrd told of daily statements to him, showing receipts and disbursements of the State government. He called upon the voters to cast their ballots on Tuesday for the Democratic nominees for "continued prosperity."

Maj. R. A. McIntyre, unopposed for the General Assembly from Fauquier County, gave a short address, praising the administration of Byrd. He introduced Col. John R. Saunders, attorney general of the State.

Col. Saunders spoke of the prosperity of the State and of the integrity and honesty of Pollard, whom he declared he had known since they were boys in King and Queen County; he called Pollard able, experienced and fearless, the best man to succeed Gov. Byrd. He ridiculed his own opponent, Capt. Charles C. Berkley.

Col. Saunders was in fine fettle, despite a speech at Alta Vista in the afternoon and a long ride to keep his appointment in Warrenton and kept his hearers in good humor with his wit throughout the 30 minutes in which he spoke.

Large Vote Is Urged.

In conclusion he urged the voters to bring their families and friends and roll up such a majority for Pollard that Brown could go back to some chair of psychology, not at Washington and Lee, as he said they did not want him back, but somewhere; and that Callom Jones might return to his Federal job and "Charlie" Berkley to his law practice at Newport News.

Cheering and enthusiasm marked the meeting. Time and again Gov. Byrd and Col. Saunders brought the crowd to its feet with some particular sharp shaft at their opponents. Both speakers returned to Richmond late Saturday night.

One-third of the audience was composed of women. Democratic leaders in Fauquier County are much encouraged by last night's rally and are predicting a majority of 800 to 1,000 for the Democratic ticket in the county.

Hit-Run Autoist Injures Boy of 10

Danville Lad in Critical Condition After Being Knocked Down.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 3.—Police today were hunting a hit-and-run driver whose car struck Sid Matthews, 10-year-old son of W. S. Matthews, yesterday evening while he was on a bicycle, causing him to fracture his skull. The boy's condition was regarded as precarious today.

Pedestrians said the touring car had its curtains up and it was impossible to say if it was driven by a white or colored person. The license number was not secured, as the driver, after pausing momentarily after the accident, put on speed.

Pearl Stephens, aged 12, daughter of W. W. Stephens, was also in serious condition today after being struck last night while playing, by a truck driven by H. W. Screarcew, who was arrested for reckless driving and bonded in the sum of $2,500.

Tobacco Men Swamp Market in Danville

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 3.—For the first time in many years the Danville tobacco warehouses were overfilled with tobacco last night with scores of farmers here for the week-end. A desire to secure early sales on Monday in order to be able to vote on Tuesday was largely responsible for this unusual heavy descent on the market.

Over a million pounds of leaf was here, and the tobacco section was teeming with growers on Sunday. More leaf will come in overnight, and overcrowded conditions will prevail tomorrow.

Motorcyclist Dies In Virginia Crash

Two Others Severely Hurt When Auto Sideswipes Their Machine.

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—One man was fatally injured and two others seriously hurt when a motorcycle, on which all three were coming from West Point, Va., to Richmond late today, on the Rappahannock highway, sideswiped an automobile and was ditched.

Richard Muse, 34, of West Point, died as he was being taken into Memorial Hospital after being rushed to Richmond in the automobile, the occupants of which escaped injury in the accident.

The other two men, James Kirby, 23, and James Henry Lee, 22, both also of West Point, were taken to Johnston-Willis Hospital, where they were reported tonight as being in a serious condition, though hope was held out for their recovery. Kirby suffered a fracture of the left leg in addition to being internally hurt. Lee also suffered internal injuries, the extent of which are yet to be determined. The doctors said both he and Kirby will be X-rayed to determine the character of their injuries.

Kirby, it developed tonight, has a sister who is critically ill at Memorial Hospital. News of the accident is being withheld from her.

Muse was driving the motorcycle while his two companions occupied seats in the sidecar.

The accident occurred near Christ Church in Hanover County. The sheriff of that county phoned to Richmond tonight that speed warrants were being sworn out in the case.

SEVEN HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS QUIT JOBS

Criticisms by Principal Are Blamed by Instructors at Madison.

NO COOPERATION, CLAIM

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 3.—Seven of the eight teachers in the Madison High School, at Madison, Va., have "walked out." The cause of their resignation, as stated in an open letter to the patrons of the school, is as follows:

"In a meeting with us we were told by Principal Fadely that we had not cooperated with him during the session and that the we had put a wet blanket over eveything he had tried to do. In his opinion, 'we are either very weak teachers, we do not know, or we do not try to fill our jobs efficiently.' In a very ungentlemanly manner, we were told that the people of the community had said that we were not interested in the school last year.

"Finally, Mr. Fadely told us that for the good of the school it was best either for him or for us to leave. As a result of this, we left the building and placed the matter in the hands of the school board."

Those who resigned were: Elva McAllister, assistant principal; Anna Goodall, Louise Bowling, Lyla Dickerson, Mrs. Yancey Yowell, Katherine Fray and Elizabeth Scarborough Miss French was the only teacher who did not walk out.

A dispatch from Madison states that the Madison School Board has decided that all the teachers should return to their places; that those not desiring to do so have the privilege of resigning, which they had already done. Fadely, it was said, has already returned to his duties as principal.

Sad Youth Inspires A Model Orphanage

Cleveland, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Wistful dreams of an unhappy youngster in a cheerless, jail-like orphanage 50 years ago were blueprints for the Protestant Orphan Asylum at Beech Book, near Cleveland.

The boy who yearned for a home was Ed J. Henry, who today is superintendent of the same orphanage, as nearly like a home as any such institution can be. There is no corporal punishment in the "home." Sometimes, when children misbehave, they are deprived of a treat of something good to eat.

U. OF V. HEADS DENY LATE DANCES PLEA

Petition of 17 Fraternities Fails to Win Removal of Recent Ban.

HARMLESS, YOUTHS SAY

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 3.—The president and administrative council of the University of Virginia have refused to grant the appeal of certain fraternities for revision of the rule forbidding late dances in fraternity houses. The resolution, passed at a recent meeting, forbidding such dances, was reaffirmed.

At the same meeting the council invited the student body to appoint a committee of not more than five members, preferably three, to represent the interests of the students, either by advice to the council or by attending its meetings on invitation.

17 Fraternities Sign Plea.

In the appeal to the council, signed by seventeen fraternities, the opinion was expressed that the late dances given by those organizations and individual fraternities at their houses, subsequent to the dance club dances, are not detrimental to the students and are in no sense harmful to the good name of the university.

"They are in effect," say the petitioners, "merely a short continuation of the regular dances and are a means of affording those students who desire to prolong their terpsichorean activities an opportunity to do so and to give further entertainment to their visiting guests.

"Not Public, But Harmless."

'They are, of course, of limited size and are not of a public nature. The reputation of the university and the welfare of the students is not endangered, we believe, by these dances.

'We can not, at this time, submit any concrete plan of cooperation, but it is hoped that the council will see fit to modify the rule so as to allow dances for the present at individual fraternities."

The fraternities signing the appeal were Delta Phi, Sigma Phi, Epsilon, Delta Psi, Delta Tau Delta, Chi Phi, Kappa Sigma, Theta Delta Chi, Beta Theta Phi, Phi Gamma Delta, Zeta Psi, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Chi Rho.

Man Is Shot Dead In Prince William

County Official Fired as Attacker Approached, Say Witnesses.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Nov. 3.—Willie Porter, 27 years old, colored, was shot dead about 7:15 o'clock tonight by R. M. Weir, 40 years old, commissioner of revenue of Prince William County, when he is said to have attacked the county official after the latter had put a stop to a fight between Porter and another Negro.

Weir, who was acting as special officer in the absence of another man, saw the men fighting behind the Southern Railway station. As he approached one of the fighters ran, but Porter is reported to have turned on Weir with a razor.

The front part of Weir's coat and vest was cut. The county officer fired once as Porter advanced, and the bullet entered just beneath the heart. The Negro died instantly.

Commonwealth Attorney Thomas H. Lion, in the absence of the coroner, set the inquest for tomorrow morning and ordered the body removed to an undertaker's. Weir was not held, as all witnesses declared he acted in self-defense.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

EARLE

"YOUNG NOWHERES." First National all-talking picture, starring Richard Barthelmess, supported by Marian Nixon. Adapted from a story by I. A. R. Wylie by Bradley King and directed by Frank Lloyd. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

One must revert to "The Enchanted Cottage" to find among the Barthelmess vehicles so delicately wrought a subject as this simple, unadorned and tremendously appealing study in love and loneliness. Devoid of dramatic and cinematographic claptrap, the picture utilizes a minimum of players and no resort whatever to bizarre or spectacular effects to achieve the end of impressive forcefulness. In the hands of F. W. Murnau it would have been another "Sunrise."

There is scant hope that "Young Nowheres" will take rank with "Tol'able David," "The Patent Leather Kid" or others of the more flamboyant of the Barthelmess productions as a box office attraction, but certainly it makes clear that in a certain field of plaintive, wistful drama its star is as much a person apart from the common herd upon the articulate screen as he was in silent drama. I can think of no one else who could match the perfection of his performance as Albert Whalen, night elevator operator in a fashionable apartment house, any more than I can summon to mind any one who could surpass in ingenuous charm the impersonation of the little slavey employed in the same establishment offered by Marian Nixon.

The story of the play is but the story of the love of these two. Orphans, poverty stricken, chained to the wheels of drudgery, they yearn for just a taste of the luxury they see about them—more than anything else the luxury of a moment's solitude. After vicissitudes, some of which are exquisitely pathetic, some quaintly humorous, they grasp a fleeting chance to make their pitiful little dreams come true by "borrowing" the apartment of a wealthy and none too scrupulous tenant who is supposedly out of the city. The innocent adventure culminates in idsaster and the police court and it is through the medium of their recital to the presiding judge that the developments of the drama are unfolded.

The only roles of importance other than those assumed by the star and his leading woman are portrayed with ample skill by Anders Randolf, as the opulent tenant, and Bert Roach, a bibulous young philosopher, who dubs his accommodating elevator boy "Young Nowheres" because he came from nowhere and seems to be going nowhere.

The supplementary features are well calculated to round out a notable bill. Chief interest will, of course, center in the Pathe all-talking short subject, "After the Show," in which Jack Pepper, former master of ceremonies at the Earle, is the principal performer. Jack is assisted by Paul Gamer and Jack Wolf, former Washingtonians, in a typical bit of high-pressure ballading and syncopation. Next in point of merit I should rank the "Kreisleriana" overture arranged for his admirable orchestra by Daniel Breeskin, during which Milton Schwartz and Jack Minowich contribute violin solos, and which is only marred by the transcription of one of Kreisler's most melodious compositions into an interval of "hot" jazz.

Ruth Etting, Ziegfeld songstress, assisted by Phil Ohman and Vic Arden on their accustomed two pianos, has a splendid double-exposure novelty in "Glorifying Popular Songs," and the Universal News is not without interest. The "Mickey Mouse" synchronized cartoon-comedy, "Mickey's Follies," on the other hand, is so replete with off-color and offensive "humor" that it might better have been omitted.

PALACE

"SO THIS IS COLLEGE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking-singing-dancing production, featuring Elliott Nugent, Robert Montgomery, Sally Starr and Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards. Directed by Sam Woods. Reviewed Saturday night.

Again the old college spirit is rampant. Finding its culmination in the most bitterly contested and most realistically filmed football game I have ever seen on a screen, the cumulative rah-rah of this ebullient comedy of young America getting a load of practically everything but education sweeps along through gales of laughter to a final wallop that leaves an audience limp—just like the hero who had his leg broken in the game!

There is no great story involved in this breezy bit of pastiming, but those with alert ears and recording memories can absorb enough "College Humor" wisecracks to last out the rest of the winter, not to mention a few snappy tunes and a dance step or two that might or might not look well at the next party. It seems there were two roommates who fell in love with the same girl—that's all you need of the plot.

These lads are impersonated with a constant flow of inspired chatter, keen rivalry and a little bitterness by Elliott Nugent and Robert Montgomery, who are virtually flawless in their parts until compelled to become all-American half backs, and then, after all, it is old Mother Nature who has done them dirt. Or maybe it was pernicious aenemia. Anyhow they win the game, after their feud has been dissolved by common knowledge that the girl was only playing them for a couple of saps anyway.

The girl in the case is Sally Starr, a miniature edition of Clara Bow with only a few of the specifications omitted. She plays the campus vamp with verve, sings with spirit and dances with all the fringe on her gown—if you know what I mean. Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards aids and abets in most of this, having had his face lifted to college age and been tossed into the early scenes of the picture for the benefit of the musical numbers, to which, incidentally, he adds no little.

There are a great many young fellows in the cast whom I do not know by name—and they are all clever—and also a large number of girls I have never met before, but there are also, from time to time, glimpses to be had of Max Davidson, Polly Moran, Phyllis Crane and even old Richard Carle himself, who has been given a bit as the professor of entomology. The photography and recording are excellent, but the action rushes along at such a rate that you probably will never notice it.

On the stage, Al Evans presents the Palace syncopators in a musical trial for the murder of "Sonny Boy" that is original and diverting while mastering such ceremonies as there are to be found in the "Shanghai Jesters" revue. The high spots of the frolic are easily occupied by the Williams Sisters, unique songstresses, and Seed and Austin, comedians, both of whom stop the show cold in its tracks. Others who do themselves credit are Electa Havel, mezzo soprano; Bemis and Brown, dancers, and Mme. Serova's "Chinese Rosebuds."

The bill is completed by orchestral prelude, Metrotone News and a special reel of Washington High School football teams that did not run second to anything in applause.

FOX

"BIG TIME." Fox all-talking and singing picture, featuring Lee Tracy, Mae Clarke, Josephine Dunn and Stepin Fetchit. Dialogue by William K. Wells and Sidney Lanfield. Directed by Kenneth Hawkes. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

Lee Tracy, recently seen in Washington as a featured member of the cast of "The Front Page," at the National, is "in" as a star of the talking screen. Although his initial vehicle is scarcely more than a carbon copy of "The Dance of Life," the camera version of the stage play, "Burlesque," his performance in the part of Eddie Burns, the small-time "hoofer" who makes the "big time" more on the capabilities of his wife than his own, and speedily slips back into rather worse than obscurity when she deserts him, is so natural, so glib and so expertly timed that he gives the impression of a veteran before the cameras.

Rather than intimate that this talented young actor dominates the show, however, I hasten to add that in Mae Clarke, cast as the wife, also a comparative newcomer, the audible screen has another potential star. Miss Clarke possesses those subtle qualities of personality that impress themselves vividly with a minimum of apparent effort.

In the face of a conviction that comparions are odious, I must say that I like Lee Tracy, as Eddie, better than I liked Hal Skelly as "Skid" and deem Miss Clarke, as Lily, an actress of deeper appeal than Nancy Carroll in the role of Bonnie. Since "Big Time" and "The Dance of Life" are identical in every essential dramatic element, it is inevitable that the comparison should be based upon these two superlative entertainments.

The variants in the two stories lie in the characters of secondary importance. In "Big Time" husband and wife are separated by a blessed event and kept so through the machinations of Eddie's substitute partner. The wife, in time, becomes a star of the movies in Hollywood and the husband a hash house waiter who has to panhandle his way to the Coast when he learns of his wife's whereabouts. They meet on the same set in Hollywood—she as star of the picture, he as a half-starved extra who faints at the sight of the prop food that is to be used in the scene. Their small son has grown into quite a "hoofer" on his own account.

Josephine Dunn, who played the same sort of part with Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool," is icily efficient in her present assignment and Stepin Fetchit and Daphne Pollard, the half-pint Australian comedienne, are amusing as custodians of a flock of trained seals routed on the same bills as Burns and Clark. Backstage atmosphere is well simulated, direction is clever and recording without conspicuous flaw.

Fanchon and Marco's "Bows and Beaus" introduces a long list of specialists in the stage portion of the program. Easily foremost among these are Coscia and Verdi, instrumentalists, who combine a vast amount of convulsing comedy with a high degree of delightful musicianship. Others who participate are Betty Wayne, an eccentric comedienne; Shapiro and O'Malley, comedians of unusual methods; the three California Warblers, male vocalists; the Gale Quadruplets, a quartet of singing and dancing girls, and a spirited and agile ensemble.

John Irving Fisher, master of ceremonies, scored the biggest hit of the bill in his pianologue featuring "Singing in the Rain" and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise," assisted by the orchestra.

The Fox Movietone News, natural color fashion reel and the best played and most tuneful overture of recent weeks, "Espana," familiar Spanish rhapsody by Charbrier, conducted by Leon Brusiloff, complete the bill.

METROPOLITAN

"THE GREENE MURDER CASE." Paramount talking picture from the story by S. S. Van Dine, starring William Powell. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Saturday night by C. Ransom.

Here, perhaps, is the most neatly contrived, the most subtle, the most suavely performed of the swarm of crime riddles so far propounded on the talking screen. But it follows the conventional pattern of artful concealment and misdirection of suspicion among a throng of possible offenders, so numerous that it is not easy to weigh their several chances. The public still loves this sort of mental testing, which is warranted to give the spectator either a headache or the profound complacency that comes from guessing right.

For some the demanded effort to be shrewd and alert, which is presumed to yield the chief joy of these occasions, becomes after a while a little tiresome. An impulse arises to organize a Society to Make Murder Mysteries Less Complicated. Why not confine the field of suspicion, just for once, to two or three characters with a more broadly human story woven around them?

But there is more than one way to get fun out of the prevailing style of mystery. In fact, the suggestion is hereby positively offered that the best way to appreciate this Greene affair is to know from the first who is guilty. This may be done either by going in at the end of the picture or by asking some one who is coming out. This cuts out a lot of confusion and permits you to follow the great detective's reasoning from point to point, also to laugh more complacently at the police sergeant's stupidity. Everything that goes on becomes crystal clear and really more interesting. But it will not do to go so far as to tell you here.

"Do you like this family?" says the sergeant to Philo Vance, speaking of the famous Greenes, and the audience chuckles. The paralyzed mother and the four grown children who hate each other cordially are certainly a cheerless lot. In their great house by the river, with half a dozen servants and a family doctor, any one of whom looks potentially murderous, they live in an atmosphere fit for a tale of romantic gloom and psychological fidgets. One by one the Greenes go to their doom, till only two of the five remain. In the end there is only one.

William Powell again plays Philo Vance, who thinks and thinks, and solves the riddle, as he did the well-known Canary case. This thinking and thinking really involves no great test of Mr. Powell's fine abilities, but he is consistently pleasing. Eugene Pallette, as the sergeant, is more humanly credible, and therefore funnier, than he has been in similar parts. Jean Arthur is charming as Ada, the only sympathetic member of the Grene family. Florence Eldridge is good as the flippant sister, and Ullrich Haupt gives a very capable portrait of the suave and suspicious-looking doctor.

There is an excellent newsreel, and there are also two short Vitaphone numbers, supposed to be funny, one entitled "Beach Babies," the other presenting Gans and Whalen. While organizing, let's start a League for the Suppression or Improvement of Screen Shorts.

RKO-KEITH

"STREET GIRL." RKO-Keith all-talking and musical production, starring Betty Compson, supported by Jack Oakie, Johnny Harron, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn. Adapted from "The Viennese Charmer" by W. Carey Wonderly and directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Rather more than a suspicion that all was not well with either the visual or the sound projection of the current bill at the RKO-Keith Theater at that first performance a week ago last Saturday, when the house was thrown open to the public for the first time after many months of darkness, has its full corroboration in the improved performance that is now being given.

It has come to my knowledge that in the rush of getting the doors open under new auspices many things happened that first day to mar the effect of a bill that has since proved itself capable of attracting a consistent capacity business. I found—a little to my consternation—that there were lockout crowds both yesterday afternoon and last night to see and hear Betty Compson in the finest role she has had since George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man," the picture that lifted her from obscurity to the heights, along with Lon Chaney, Thomas Meighan and numerous others. "Street Girl," properly thrown to the screen and expertly modulated, is a corking light musical entertainment.

The story is one of substance, although nothing of its humor is sacrificed to an unnecessary flaunting of its dramatic fiber. Jack Oakie, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn see to it that the fun of the piece never lags; Miss Compson and Johnny Harron look after the heart interest, aided by Ivan Lebedeff, and Gus Arnheim and his orchestra look to the melody. Doris Eaton, of the Washington Eatons, appears in one sumptuous night club scene and puts over "Broken Up Tune," one of the three song hits introduced during the development of the drama of four young musicians lifted out of the honky-tonks to the important money through the instrumentality of an outcast girl.

The auxiliary attractions have been slightly changed for the second week of the run. Richard Dix's speech of greeting and the synchronized puff for "The Broadway Limited" both have been eliminated, and in their place has been substituted an all-talking two-reel juvenile comedy, "Mickey's Mixup," that is a vast improvement. A new issue of the RKO News and Fred Clark and his R-K-Olians round out the entertainment.

COLUMBIA

"WHY BRING THAT UP?" Paramount all-talking, singing and dancing comedy-drama, starring Moran and Mack. Story by Octavus Roy Cohen; directed by George Abbot. Reviewed Saturday night by J. F. Brady.

Moran and Mack, blackface comedians, with stage, radio and phonograph record fame already made, add considerably to their laurels in their first all-talking, dancing and singing picture "Why Bring That Up?"

Their first venture on the screen does not come in a spectacular or gorgeously mounted musical revue or minstrel show, as one might gather from advance notices, but is a real human story built around the stage career of these two, probably based on the real story of the comedians themselves.

"Why Bring That Up?" contains many of the jokes and stories we have heard on their records, with a few new ones added, presented in the two vaudeville acts of "The Two Black Crows" during the picture.

The screen story does not carry Moran and Mack continuously in the blackface characters. It opens with their chance meeting in a speakeasy—George Moran, a small town trouper befriended by Charlie Mack a lunch counter tosser. This results in a team partnership and, by a ruse of a newly acquired manager—another small town trouper—they get a tryout, and a contract.

Some years later they open on Broadway with their big ambition to have a theater of their own just about to be realized. But then comes the usual trouble—the woman in the case. This time it is Betty Ray, also a trouper, who, led on by her lover, wheedles out of Moran much of the money belonging to their joint bank account. Betty also tries to bring about a split between the team so that Moran could work alone.

"Why Bring That Up?" is a comedy-drama, with enough plot and action to insure its success on those points alone. Moran and Mack provide some side-splitting comedy, helped along by some of the others, and also put over some good acting. There is sufficient blackface to satisfy lovers of that type. The theater stage is always crowded with chorus girls—pretty to look at and with pep and voice to keep interest in them alive.

Evelyn Brent, as Betty Ray, adds nothing to her previous work. Harry Green, as Irving, the erstwhile vaudeville player who becomes manager for the team, is especially good, while Bert Swor, Jack Luden and Ed Kane are among the able supporting cast.

The entire picture is laid about the stage and affords quite an insight into the real business of the theater.

Included in the added attractions is a splendid Technicolor M-G-M singing and dancing revue, "Mexicana," presenting native dances and songs; Hearst Metrotone News, showing shots of recent football games and the Wall street panic scenes. Prelude by the Columbia orchestra opens the bill.

RIALTO

"BIG NEWS." Pathe all-talking picture from the play "For Two Cents," by George S. Brooks. Robert Armstrong and Carol Lombard, featured under the direction of Gregory La Cava. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

In several respects this latest expose of the foibles and griefs of the strange beings who commit journalism outdoes all predecessors. The scene of labor is a little more sordid than has heretofore been shown. The chief drunkard gets drunker. The managing editor yells more ferociously. The reporters, by the way of relieving their woeful state, wisecrack more ardently and continuously.

The consistent exaggeration does not make for sincerity, but one realizes, as the unreeling takes place, that genuineness is not a primary object of the picture. It strives to be funny and exciting and sensational, and, for the most part, it succeeds.

A young reporter, one Steve Banks, is ousted by his paper and his wife the same day because he shows signs of going the way of his friend and awful example, a confirmed drunk who was once a newspaper associate. On his own time, he scoops the town on a big dope ring story, is reemployed by the Express and ready to turn the dope gang over to the police, when the leader of that charming group murders the editor under circumstances which incriminate Steve, steals the confession of the girl who has squealed," and has her before further testimony can be given.

So strong is the case against Steve that his wife, who has really loved him all the time, believes him guilty. So what do you think she does? She tells the represenetatives of law and order that she herself cut the gas tube to get a good story for her paper. You see she, too, as a reporter on the rival Morning Herald. Then the murdered man's dictaphone makes its voice heard in behalf of innocence, and Steve, won over to nothing stronger than tea as a beverage, returns to a happy home to enjoy onions and liver. Even to the matter of food he is queer.

Robert Armstrong does good work in the leading role, though his initial drunk scene might be improved upon. Carol Lombard, playing opposite him, contributes a pleasing voice, poor make-up and rather stilted delivery.

Sam Hardy comes forth with one of his choice characterizations as the head gangster and Charles Sellon is amusing as the mad ruler of the madhouse, the irascible managing editor. Warner Richmond stands out in the relatively small part of the district attorney's envoy, other members of the supporting cast being Tom Kennedy, Wade Boteler, Louis Payne, James Donlan and Cupid Aimesworth. The sets are confined largely to drab newspaper and speak-easy interiors.

A short subject that will prove intensely interesting to golfers is Grantland Rice's sound Sportlight, "Duffers and Champs," in which the foremost golf champions of the day explain, with illustrations, what brought them where they are. Mack Sennett presents a talking comedy, "The Barber's Daughter," featuring Andy Clyde and Thelma Hill, and there is a Lyman H. Howe "Hodge Podge," with views of Japan and Holland worth seeing. An illustrated song, "Honey," sung by Oscar Grogan, and a silent newsreel shown to orchestral accompaniment, bring the bill to a close.
